Republicans Confident Ohio Results Indicate Victory Next November

Taft, Martin and Hamilton Issue Optimistic Statements; Other Elections Pending

By The Associated Press

Republicans read the Ohio elections returns with obvious jubilation yesterday (Wednesday) and many predicted that the defeat suffered there by Democratic candidates for the House was just a forerunner of what would happen to the Democrats on a national scale in November.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio), a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, said that the victory of Republican J. Herry McGregor in Ohio's Seventeenth Congressional district showed a "continuation of the decisive trend toward Republican success in 1940." The district has been Democratic since 1930.

Rep. Martin, of Massachusetts, the House Republican leader, and John Hamilton, Republican national committeeman, echoed Taft's sentiment.

Leaders Comment on Vote

"Political trends like the present one can be depended upon to continue," Martin said, "and this will bring about the election of a Republican president and a Republican House in 1940."

"The Republicans take the first blood of 1940," Hamilton commented

"This confirms the trend we have contended has been running since 1938."

The Republican congressional campaign committee said the Ohio returns were proof that "practically all" of the forty-three congressional districts in which contests were close two years ago would elect Republicans to the House in the fall.

McGregor won by 4,500 votes from Byron B. Ashbrook, nephew of the late Representative William A. Ashbrook, Democrat, whose seat was being contested. In the other Ohio congressional contest, Mrs. Chester C. Bolton, Cleveland Republican, was elected to succeed her late husband. She defeated Anthony A. Flegler by more than 16,000 votes in a traditionally Republican district.

More Republican Victories

In eight elections since 1938 to fill vacancies in the House, Republicans have captured five seats and the Democrats, three. The McGregor victory of Tuesday, however, represented the only instance in which a Republican had replaced a Democrat. In all the other contests Republicans succeeded Republicans and Democrats succeeded Democrats.

Four other House seats now are vacant as the result of deaths, and two special elections within the next six weeks are expected to provide further tests of New Deal and anti-New Deal strength. Voters of the sixth Iowa district will choose a successor to the late Cassius C Dowell, Republican, on March 5, and the first Nebraska district will fill the seat of the late George H. Heinke, Republican, on April 9.

British Preparing For German Drive In North France

Nazis May Strike Across Flanders as in World War

By DREW MIDDLETON

London, Feb. 28 (AP)—Britain's new army, nearly a million men in France and at home, is arraying its forces in northern France to meet any German blow that might come along the route through Belgium followed by the Kaiser's legions in 1914.

British plans, closely coordinated with those of the French, are interpreted by military experts as intended, among other things to guard against such a blow, which, wheeling south as a quarter century ago, would strike across the Flanders plain at Paris.

Neutral military men in Paris and London, sources close to the British general staff and Italian officers in Rome have expressed belief that Germany may seek a decision on the Flanders plain once more.

May Delay Drive

Such a drive may be delayed, the observers agree, but most of them are of the opinion that Germany, which they think could have some 300 divisions (about 4,500,000 men) under arms by spring, is waiting only for better weather conditions to seek a decision in battle.

"The smoke screen of the near eastern 'adventure' is just a little too emphatic," said a neutral officer. "What's really been happening is a steady strengthening of British and French battle positions

Three Nazi Patrols Broken Up by French Forces

By ROY P. PORTER

Paris, Feb. 28 (AP)—Renewed patrol fighting on the Western front, accompanied by continued aerial activity, was reported tonight by military dispatches which said that French artillery had smashed German attempts to feel out advance positions.

At the same time official announcements disclosed that British reconnaissance planes had flown over Berlin—as well as Kiel, Cuxhaven and Hanover—again last night, and reported that two German planes, which participated in mass flights over France, had been downed in the past forty-eight hours.

Increased Land Action

The land action was reported particularly hot in the sector between the Moselle and Saar rivers, not far from the Luxembourg border, where the Nazis have struck again and again in the last ten days at French advance positions.

Three German patrols were halted in this area by French barrages before they got within striking distance of their objectives, dispatches from the front said.

Further east, in the vicinity of the Blies river, French artillery was reported to have directed a hot fire against German positions, discouraging patrol activity in this sector. The French high command took note of these operations in

Budapest Police Surround French Legation in City

Action Forced when Czech Refugees Are Given Protection

By ROBERT B. PARKER, JR.

Budapest, Feb. 28 (AP)—Budapest police, said to have been forced to act as a result of German pressure, today laid a virtual siege around the French legation here, where forty Czecho-Slovak refugees were harbored with new French passports.

Nazi threats concerning Hungary's "wide-open frontier," with demands that Hungary return men who had fled from jails of the German secret police in the protectorate of Bohemia and Moravia, resulted in attempts to beak up the "underground railway" which has been operating under official French auspices from Bohemia and Moravia to France.

Hundreds of other Czecho-Slovak refugees, most of them held in Hungarian jails, declared they faced deportation to Germany as a result of Nazi pressure. Many of them said they feared they would be put to death if they were deported.

A band of forty-eight Czecho-Slovaks who were held in the Budapest citadel wrote neutral legations that "the influence of the Gestapo (German secret police) had forced the Hungarians to treat us severely."

Ask Neutral Help

Describing themselves as former Czecho-Slovak army officers, college professors and students, the writers asked for neutral help lest they be sent back to the protectorate "where certain death awaits."

One letter written on Feb. 13 said:

"Five members of our party made an attempt to escape from the citadel Feb. 11. They tried to get away when they were sent to get water from the courtyard pump.

"Nine bullets were fired at them. One of the students seemed to have been hit and wounded."

The letter said that two of the escaped men were caught by police and "beaten to bloody unconsciousness at the citadel." It asserted that five other prisoners who were eye-witnesses of the escape attempt "were deprived of food for two days"

Hull's Recovery Views Sent to Every Nation

United States Seeking Support of Plan for Action after War

Washington, Feb. 28 (AP)—The United States is actively seeking the support of all nations for its view that the end of the war should also bring the end of economic autarchy, regimentation and totalitarianism, Secretary Hull revealed today.

To that end, Hull said, his previous statement on the economic order and disarmament that should follow the war has been sent to American representatives abroad with instructions to bring it to the attention of foreign governments.

Asked whether this action was limited to the neutral countries, he said it was sent to all countries. He added that his preliminary impression was that the reactions thus far received were favorable.

Seeks Liberal Emonomy

Discussing in broad general terms what his government seeks to do, Hull stressed the need for organizing the nations along the lines of liberal economy in advance of the end of the war.

He said that if the forces of peace and general stability, especially economic, were not organized preparatory to the transition and reconstruction period, the forces of autarchy and regimentation and economic totalitarianism would probably follow the same tendency they did after the World War.

This tendency, he said, was to spread their practices on an ever narrowing and more disastrous basis to increasing areas of the world.

Hull emphasized that the conversations going on had nothing whatever to do with conditions during the pendency of the war, but only to preparations for post-war ad-

House Votes To Help Finland by $20,000,000 Loan

But Members Decline To Take a Record Vote on Important Bill

SENATE APPROVAL IS SCHEDULED FOR TODAY

Upper Body Must Approve Changes Made by the House

By RICHARD L. TURNER

Washington, Feb. 28 (AP) — The House voted to help Finland to the extent of a $20,000,000 loan for non-military purchases in the United States today but shied away, emphatically, from taking a record vote on the question.

Although overwhelmingly in favor of helping the Finns, many members feared that European events might take such a turn that a vote for the loan could bring them election time difficulties. So by a general but tacit agreement, passage came on a rising ballot. It showed 168 for the bill and fifty-one against, the total a bare quorum of the House.

The measure would add $100,000,000 to the lending funds of the Export-Import Bank, with the understanding that $20,000,000 of that amount would go to Finland, and a like sum to China. At no point in the measure is Finland directly mentioned.

Senate Action Next

Previously passed by the Senate, the bill now goes back to that branch for action on House amendments forbidding Export-Import Bank loans to countries in default on their war debts, and permitting the purchase of commercial aircraft, as distinguished from military planes, Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, announced that he would try to

State Income Tax Law Assailed as Unfair and Weird

Attorney W. Machen Attacks It as "Friend of the Court"

Baltimore, Feb. 28. (AP)—Arthur W. Machen, Baltimore attorney and tax expert, testified today that Maryland's income tax law was "Weird, discriminatory" and the "most unfair" legislation ever passed by a Maryland legislature.

Appearing as a "friend of the court" in action instituted to test validity of the levy, Machen's sharp criticism climaxed a day of heated attacks on provisions of the law classifying income as to sources for tax purposes.

Opening his discussion, offered as a disinterested attorney invited by Judge Eugene O'Dunne to appear in the case, Machen asserted:

Calls Law Unfair

"I want to discuss the act itself, rather than its legal aspects. It is weird, fantastic, the most discriminatory, the most unfair ever passed by any assembly in the state. . . .

"It is fraudulent on its face, and if it were not for the type of men who made up the committee which drafted it, I would say it was an outright attempt to deceive the legislature."

Judge O'Dunne interrupted to ask who drafted the law.

"The Rawls-Bruce committee," Machen replied.

"Bruce?" asked Judge O'Dunne.

"Howard Bruce," the lawyer answered.

William Lee Rawls of Baltimore was chairman of the governor's commission on taxation and revenue which presented the recommendations from which the income tax law was drawn. Bruce was associated with the commission.

Criticizes Inequalities

Machen said he found it "beyond belief that such inequalities can stand" a test of constitutionality. Specifically, he cited the tax imposed at six per cent on ground-rent payments as opposed to other income from property which is taxed at only two and a half per cent.

Previously, Judge O'Dunne had noted that the question was not whether the law was unjust but "is it illegal?"

Moscow Statement Says Finns Still Are Falling Back in Spite of Futile Efforts To Stop Advance

Moscow, Feb. 29 (Thursday) (AP)—Soviet Russia's army today reported the capture of six Finnish towns and villages on the Karelian isthmus, including Ylasomme, only four miles south of Viipuri, one of Finland's most important cities.

The Russians said the Finns still were falling back in the face of their ceaseless pounding after fruitless counterattacks yesterday in which the defenders were said to have suffered "heavy losses."

The reported Soviet gains were on the western side of the Vuoksi lakes, a chain of lakes which run northwestward through the heart of the Karelian isthmus.

Capture Finnish Position

Soviet troops penetrated and captured Finnish positions on the north bank of the Salmenkaita river west of the Vuoksi lakes, occupied the town of Ritasaari on the western bank of Vuoksi lake, and the villages of Malkela, Hammarnijarvi and Seikurila, north of Lake Jurapan, and Kamara station on the Viipuri-Leningrad railway, the communique declared.

Kamara is sixteen miles southeast of Viipuri.

The communique:

Finnish Losses Heavy

"Feb. 28. Soviet troops continued developing their offensive on the Karelian isthmus.

"The enemy attempted counter attacks in order to halt the offensive of Soviet troops, but suffered heavy losses, and continued to retreat.

"Soviet troops captured the enemy's defensive fortifications on the northern bank of the Salmenkaita river, occupied the town of Ritasaari on the western bank of Vuoksi lake, also the villages of Malkela, Hammarnijarvi and Seikurila north of Lake Jurapan, Kamara, four kilometers southwest of the station of Heinjoki, and Ylasomme, six kilometers south of Viipuri.

"According to incomplete data, Feb. 28 Soviet troops occupied forty-two of the enemy's defensive fortifications.

"Other sectors of the front no important changes.

"In view of unfavorable weather Soviet aviation performed only reconnoitering flights."

Lloyd George Says Britain Must Grow Crops To Win War

Veteran Statesman Asserts Every Acre Must Be Utilized

London, Feb. 28.—David Lloyd George, white-maned veteran of the last war, warned Britain today that to win her present siege warfare against Germany she must till "every acre of this blessed isle" because the Reich had learned the lesson of 1918.

Germany now imports only "five percent of all foodstuffs against England's sixty percent," and "we must remember that in 1918 we were within three weeks of being without wheat," he told the national defense and public interest committee with all the vigor of his seventy-seven years.

The government's concern over food supplies was shown by Food Minister W. S. Morrison's announcement that Britain's 1940 whisky output would be limited to one-third that of 1939 while breweries would get no more grain than last year and their sugar consumption would be cut thirty percent.

Grain for Stock Limited

Limited supply of grains for stock feeding was the reason for the restrictions, Morrison told the House of Commons.

The speech of Lloyd George, who rounds out half a century in Commons this year, was echoed by Prime Minister Chamberlain, who told executives of county agricultural committees that the nation must increase "our production of food at home."

He said that was the way out of the dilemma brought on by

Belligerents Attempting To Harm Enemy by Putting Pressure on U. S.

By ANDRUE BERDING

Washington, Feb. 28 (AP)—Europe's belligerents, as in other wars past, are endeavoring to hamper their enemy by putting pressure on the United States and other neutrals to protect their neutral rights.

This maneuver is repeatedly carried out. For instance, from London last week came an unofficial summary of the British reply to the United States note objecting to the British blockade of German exports. One paragraph head:

"The rules that protect neutral shipping on the high seas in wartime, according to the British, are based on the supposition that all belligerents will carry them out and that neutrals will see to it that they do. If the neutrals do not insist that the belligerents obey the rules, the British argue, this country cannot be bound by them either."

Nazis Accuse British

The Germans have said to the neutrals, in effect: "Britain is violating your neutral rights when she takes your ships into the contraband ports. If you do not take strong steps to prevent Britain from doing this we will have to violate your neutral rights by sinking your ships."

Officials here regard all this as a method by which one side in conflict seeks to array neutrals against his enemy.

But American officials are adamant in their view that a neutral is not required to take action against a belligerent who is violating his rights merely because that belligerent's enemy brings pressure to bear upon him to do so.

Recall World War

They recall the many attempts made in the World war by the Central powers and the Allies to get the United States to force the other side to respect this country's commerce, etc.

Secretaries of State Bryan and Lansing refused even to entertain a request by either side to force the other to respect our rights. The exchanges with Germany stand out with particular clearness.

Bryan's successor, Robert Lansing, took the same attitude.

Dr. Dazey Shouts Heated Denial Of Charge at Trial for Murder

Los Angeles, Feb. 28 (AP)—Dr. George K. Dazey, charged with the murder of his second wife, Doris, shoutingly denied a prosecution contention tonight that he knew she was contemplating a divorce.

"Isn't it a fact that because of a former divorce you had, because you were hauled into court eight or ten times for failure to provide, that you didn't want to go through with the ordeal again?" asked Joseph Carr, deputy district attorney who conducted the day-long cross examination.

"I want to say what I think," the physician shouted, "but I guess I'd better not." Then he replied: "I did not."

"Isn't it a fact that before you married Doris Dazey you thought she had money?" Carr persisted.

Not Swayed by Money

"I never thought about it," Dr. Dazey replied. "In fact, she told me she didn't have any."

He denied he had asked her "on numerous occasions" to get money from her parents, although he admitted there had been a small loan when the Dazeys bought their home, which once stood in the name of her mother.

"And isn't it a fact that the only reason you want the baby is because you know he is the sole heir of the Schwuchow fortune?" the prosecutor asked.

The doctor's face reddened and he leaned forward and clenched his fists.

Wants Custody of Son

"I want the baby because he's mine," he snapped. "I wanted a baby all my life and everybody who knows me knows it."

The custody of the Dazeys' son, Walter, now nearly five years old, is a matter at issue in the Juvenile court between Dr. Dazey and his dead wife's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Walter B. Schwuchow, wealthy Santa Monica residents.

Dr. Dazey persisted in his declaration that he last saw his wife alive when he left home on the afternoon before her asphyxiation death in 1935.

The state charges the physician rendered her unconscious and carried her to their garage where she was found dead.

State Income Tax Law Assailed as Unfair and Weird

Attorney W. Machen Attacks It as "Friend of the Court"

Baltimore, Feb. 28. (AP)—Arthur W. Machen, Baltimore attorney and tax expert, testified today that Maryland's income tax law was "Weird, discriminatory" and the "most unfair" legislation ever passed by a Maryland legislature.

Appearing as a "friend of the court" in action instituted to test validity of the levy, Machen's sharp criticism climaxed a day of heated attacks on provisions of the law classifying income as to sources for tax purposes.

Opening his discussion, offered as a disinterested attorney invited by Judge Eugene O'Dunne to appear in the case, Machen asserted:

Calls Law Unfair

"I want to discuss the act itself, rather than its legal aspects. It is weird, fantastic, the most discriminatory, the most unfair ever passed by any assembly in the state. . . .

"It is fraudulent on its face, and if it were not for the type of men who made up the committee which drafted it, I would say it was an outright attempt to deceive the legislature."

Judge O'Dunne interrupted to ask who drafted the law.

"The Rawls-Bruce committee," Machen replied.

"Bruce?" asked Judge O'Dunne.

"Howard Bruce," the lawyer answered.

William Lee Rawls of Baltimore was chairman of the governor's commission on taxation and revenue which presented the recommendations from which the income tax law was drawn. Bruce was associated with the commission.

Criticizes Inequalities

Machen said he found it "beyond belief that such inequalities can stand" a test of constitutionality. Specifically, he cited the tax imposed at six per cent on ground-rent payments as opposed to other income from property which is taxed at only two and a half per cent.

Previously, Judge O'Dunne had noted that the question was not whether the law was unjust but "is it illegal?"

At the outset of the hearing,

Son of Former President Plans To Command British Brigade

London, Feb. 28 (AP) — Major Kermit Roosevelt, son of the "Rough-rider," probably will lead an international brigade being organized in England to help the Finns, it was announced today by the Finnish aid bureau which is doing the recruiting.

The first 500 of these 2,500 volunteers already is on the way, and the former American explorer and shipping president is waiting for the war office to open tomorrow to resign his comission in the actionless British army and lead the internationals to Finland.

This was disclosed as official quarters were reported to have under serious consideration the sending of a large Allied expedition to

"I killed him because I loved him," said William J. Larkin, 26, after strangling his 21-month-old son, Johnny (above), according to Chester, Pa., police. Larkin said his estranged wife had threatened to take away the baby and that he knew "the state would take my life and then we could be together all the time."

Moscow Statement Says Finns Still Are Falling Back in Spite of Futile Efforts To Stop Advance

Moscow, Feb. 29 (Thursday) (AP)—Soviet Russia's army today reported the capture of six Finnish towns and villages on the Karelian isthmus, including Ylasomme, only four miles south of Viipuri, one of Finland's most important cities.

The Russians said the Finns still were falling back in the face of their ceaseless pounding after fruitless counterattacks yesterday in which the defenders were said to have suffered "heavy losses."

The reported Soviet gains were on the western side of the Vuoksi lakes, a chain of lakes which run northwestward through the heart of the Karelian isthmus.

Capture Finnish Position

Soviet troops penetrated and captured Finnish positions on the north bank of the Salmenkaita river west of the Vuoksi lakes, occupied the town of Ritasaari on the western bank of Vuoksi lake, and the villages of Malkela, Hammarnijarvi and Seikurila, north of Lake Jurapan, and Kamara station on the Viipuri-Leningrad railway, the communique declared.

Kamara is sixteen miles southeast of Viipuri.

The communique:

Finnish Losses Heavy

"Feb. 28, Soviet troops continued developing their offensive on the Karelian isthmus.

"The enemy attempted counter attacks in order to halt the offensive of Soviet troops, but suffered heavy losses, and continued to retreat.

"Soviet troops captured the enemy's defensive fortifications on the northern bank of the Salmenkaita river, occupied the town of Ritasaari on the western bank of Vuoksi lake, also the villages of Malkela, Hammarnijarvi and Seikurila north of Lake Jurapan, Kamara, four kilometers southwest of the station of Heinjoki, and Ylasomme, six kilometers south of Viipuri.

"According to incomplete data, Feb. 28 Soviet troops occupied forty-two of the enemy's defensive fortifications.

"Other sectors of the front no important changes.

"In view of unfavorable weather Soviet aviation performed only reconnoitering flights."

Veteran Statesman Asserts Every Acre Must Be Utilized

London, Feb. 28.—David Lloyd George, white-maned veteran of the last war, warned Britain today that to win her present siege warfare against Germany she must till "every acre of this blessed isle" because the Reich had learned the lesson of 1918.

Germany now imports only "five percent of all foodstuffs against England's sixty percent," and "we must remember that in 1918 we were within three weeks of being without wheat," he told the national defense and public interest committee with all the vigor of his seventy-seven years.

The government's concern over food supplies was shown by Food Minister W. S. Morrison's announcement that Britain's 1940 whisky output would be limited to one-third that of 1939 while breweries would get no more grain than last year and their sugar consumption would be cut thirty percent.

Grain for Stock Limited

Limited supply of grains for stock feeding was the reason for the restrictions, Morrison told the House of Commons.

The speech of Lloyd George, who rounds out half a century in Commons this year, was echoed by Prime Minister Chamberlain, who told executives of county agricultural committees that the nation must increase "our production of food at home."

He said that was the way out of the dilemma brought on by

Red Army Offensive Continues Progress

By WADE WERNER

Helsinki, Feb. 28 (AP)—The Red army's relentless pressure against Finnish defenses along the shell-pocked Kerelian isthmus continued today to the accompaniment of successful Russian attacks on the for northern front near Petsamo.

The Finnish high command communique made scant mention of the isthmus fighting, saying only that the "enemy suffered heavily" and that Finnish forces fought defensive actions with "lively" artillery action on both sides.

As Soviet forces attacked across the ice of Viipuri bay, apparently planning to envelope the city of Viipuri, civilians were withdrawn from

By ANDRUE BERDING

Washington, Feb. 28 (AP)—Europe's belligerents, as in other wars past, are endeavoring to hamper their enemy by putting pressure on the United States and other neutrals to protect their neutral rights.

This maneuver is repeatedly carried out. For instance, from London last week came an unofficial summary of the British reply to the United States note objecting to the British blockade of German exports. One paragraph head:

"The rules that protect neutral shipping on the high seas in wartime, according to the British, are based on the supposition that all belligerents will carry them out and that neutrals will see to it that they do. If the neutrals do not insist that the belligerents obey the rules, the British argue, this country cannot be bound by them either."

Nazis Accuse British

The Germans have said to the neutrals, in effect: "Britain is violating your neutral rights when she takes your ships into the contraband ports. If you do not take strong steps to prevent Britain from doing this we will have to violate your neutral rights by sinking your ships."

Officials here regard all this as a method by which one side in conflict seeks to array neutrals against his enemy.

But American officials are adamant in their view that a neutral is not required to take action against a belligerent who is violating his rights merely because that belligerent's enemy brings pressure to bear upon him to do so.

Recall World War

They recall the many attempts made in the World war by the Central powers and the Allies to get the United States to force the other side to respect this country's commerce, etc.

Secretaries of State Bryan and Lansing refused even to entertain a request by either side to force the other to respect our rights. The exchanges with Germany stand out with particular clearness.

Bryan's successor, Robert Lansing, took the same attitude.

Dr. Dazey Shouts Heated Denial Of Charge at Trial for Murder

Los Angeles, Feb. 28 (AP)—Dr. George K. Dazey, charged with the murder of his second wife, Doris, shoutingly denied a prosecution contention tonight that he knew she was contemplating a divorce.

"Isn't it a fact that because of a former divorce you had, because you were hauled into court eight or ten times for failure to provide, that you didn't want to go through with the ordeal again?" asked Joseph Carr, deputy district attorney who conducted the day-long cross examination.

"I want to say what I think," the physician shouted, "but I guess I'd better not." Then he replied: "I did not."

"Isn't it a fact that before you married Doris Dazey you thought she had money?" Carr persisted.

Not Swayed by Money

"I never thought about it," Dr. Dazey replied. "In fact, she told me she didn't have any."

He denied he had asked her "on numerous occasions" to get money from her parents, although he admitted there had been a small loan when the Dazeys bought their home, which once stood in the name of her mother.

"And isn't it a fact that the only reason you want the baby is because you know he is the sole heir of the Schwuchow fortune?" the prosecutor asked.

The doctor's face reddened and he leaned forward and clenched his fists.

Wants Custody of Son

"I want the baby because he's mine," he snapped. "I wanted a baby all my life and everybody who knows me knows it."

The custody of the Dazeys' son, Walter, now nearly five years old, is a matter at issue in the Juvenile court between Dr. Dazey and his dead wife's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Walter B. Schwuchow, wealthy Santa Monica residents.

Dr. Dazey persisted in his declaration that he last saw his wife alive when he left home on the afternoon before her asphyxiation death in 1935.

The state charges the physician rendered her unconscious and carried her to their garage where she was found dead.

Dingell Consigns Stalin and Hitler To Hot Hereafter

Congressman Flays Them in Speech on Finnish Loan

Washington, Feb. 28, (AP)—Shouting "to hell with Stalin, to hell with Hitler," Rep. Dingell (D-Mich.) appealed to the House in picturesque language today not to restrict the $20,000,000 Finnish loan to non-military purposes.

"We restrict the loan for powder puffs, silken scantie panties and for cream puffs," he cried, "when we know the Finns need shrapnel, buckshot, barbed wire and all the fiercest implements of hell because they are fighting to stop anti-Christ and the hosts of hell led by Beelzebub.

"Let every man stand up and be counted, let him vote as he talks and let us dispense with hypocrisy and catch-phrases. Either we are courageously for Finland, freedom and Christianity or we are for the dictatorship of Stalin, persecution, murder, depravity and everything that is base and cowardly."

Another of Dingell's references was to "the starving, brainless Russian bear which is being led to destruction by a degenerate, scab paperhanger."

"I would give my last dollar to drive them into hell for all time," he continued, "and then I would raise Old Glory on high as the symbol of hope and succor to all the free and Democratic people of the world and as a warning to the international bandits and thugs, or I would haul her down lest someone might object to her flutter in the free breeze, and I would change the bright red bars to yellow as I laid her away forever."

justments, economic and disarmament.

His ideas on the economic order that schould follow the peace are understood to embrace:

Hull's Program

1—A liberal system of trade, with abandonment of systems of economic autarchy. This system has been followed by Nazi Germany, but the Allies have also had to limit their liberal economic systems since the outbreak of the war.

2—Lower tariffs should be agreed upon, and other types of commercial restrictions such as barter and import quota arrangements should be eliminated.

3—Trick currencies, such as one currency for internal corculation and another for external circulation, should be given up.

In contacting other nations, Hull is said to be limiting himself to general expositions of his ideas and is not as yet seeking to tie them down to concrete planks.

Wants Strong Commitments

He is principally concerned with getting—before the end of the war—strong commitments from all nations that, at the end of the war, they will embrace liberal trade policies whatever they may be doing now.

Hull would not say whether any of the states contacted has presented plans or programs of their own in response to his suggested ideas. He said he could be more explicit later.

A similar contest was promised in Wisconsin where a Dewey slate was filed yesterday and a Vandenberg slate was said to be on the way to Madison for filing.

A slate of delegates pledged to support Vice President Garner for the Democratic nomination was filed in New York.

Washington, Senator Walsh (D-Mass), an opponent of some of President Roosevelt's policies, told reporters that he would not "be a party to any opposition to a third term for Mr. Roosevelt. He added that he would support Postmaster General Farley if he had an opportunity, but had no intention of "opposing the president's renomination if he indicates a willingness to accept it."

New Method Found To Collect Reward

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 28. (AP)—Postoffice officials said today the man who returned Charles E. Hodges's brief case had "a new one on us" in collecting rewards.

The managing director of the Charleston Chamber of Commerce lost the case last week in Washington. The finder was instructed to forward it here—but Hodges said nothing about first class mail, or a reward.

He got the case back by paying $5.26—$2.26 postage and $3 reward (the finder's idea), all C. O. D.

The general opinion here is that the British troops in the Near East (where Britain and France are reported to have nearly 600,000 men) are there for training and little else.

Plan Made by Strategist

The plan which many military men in London believe the Germans will follow was drawn up by the noted German strategist, General Count von Schlieffen, in 1908 and followed in modified form by von Kluck in 1914.

Modern instruments of war may have compelled some modifications, but the body of the plan remains in all its grandiose proportions: a wheeling movement of 1,500,000 men through Belgium with its axis on the Ardennes forest and its outer flank enfilading Paris.

Today's commentators expect the German battle line to be extended to permit tank and armored divisions full scope on Holland's flat spaces. Such divisions would be able to avoid and to flank some of Belgium's strongest defensive positions on which the British and French might try to stand if the Belgians called for aid.

Chance To Break Through

In spite of the British and French efforts to build an unbreakable wall from Switzerland to the sea, forces moving with the speed and cohesion which marked the German drive through Poland and protected by a strong air force would have an excellent chance to break through, an Italian artillery man told me.

"German military theory always has been, 'find the enemy and destroy him,'" said a British officer. "The Germans know the drain of supporting an army and the German army, which has been mobilized almost continuously since the fall of 1938, must be used to prove to the people that their sacrifices are not in vain."

Europeans know war too well to believe that this one can continue long in its comparatively bloodless phase.

W. & J. Victorious Over Allegheny

Meadville, Pa., Feb. 28. (AP)—Two goals, the final one 15 seconds before the finish tonight gave the Washington and Jefferson Presidents a 40 to 38 basketball triumph over a fighting Allegheny college squad.

Alex Hart converted a pair of foul tires 35 seconds before the end to break a deadlock, only to have Al Reece arch the ball into the basket from the court corner. Nine seconds later Howdy Tidrick shoved in the winning two points from close under the cage.

Reece counted 17 points for scoring honors, while Hart collected 16.

Sixteen policemen and detectives surrounded the French legation grounds today with orders to arrest everyone who leaves with new French passports. Police tried to follow the orders but failed to halt the limousine of the French minister, Pierre Guperlets, in which they said five Czech refugees were spirited away by the chauffeur.

French Grant Passports

Police said that the French military attache, Lieut. Col. Tony Albord, granted the passports through agents who were established in northern Hungarian villages shortly after the start of the war.

The Germans were understood to have demanded that Hungary request Albord's recall.

Police admitted that there were hundreds of Czecho-Slovaks in prison throughout Hungary accused of entering the country illegally.

Once the refugees reached the center of Budapest they were safe, police admitted, because many Hungarian families have willingly hidden them until they could make their way to the Yugoslav frontier.

Heavy Firing in North Sea Area

Amsterdam, Feb. 29 (Thursday) (AP)—Air defense batteries south of Amsterdam went into action at 12:25 a. m. today (7:25 p. m., EST, Wednesday), the roar of their explosions mingling with the sounds of heavy gunfire which had been drifting in from the North Sea for more than an hour.

No immediate explanation of the anti-aircraft activity was given, and there was no information concerning the identity of the foreign planes at which their shells were apparently directed.

The roar of the gunfire in the North Sea was heard at The Hague, and at Zandvoort, a resort town west of Amsterdam, flashes of light could be clearly seen illuminating the night sky in the southwest at 1 a. m.

Persons in Scheveningen, near The Hague, said flashes of light were seen, and that the firing appeared to be off the hook of Holland.

The action apparently was well outside Netherlands territorial waters.

Observers said the firing appeared to be too heavy to have been from trawlers.

Bethany, W. Va., Feb. 28. (AP)—Westminster college's cagers defeated Bethany tonight 70 to 54, although able to score but four more field goals than the losers because of the tight Bison zone defense.

From the foul line the Titans made good 18 of 21 attempts against 10 for the Bisons. Cullison led the Bisons' attack with 18 points and G. Ridl was best for the visitors with 17.

Lloyd George Says

slashing imports of all non-essentials.

Obviously alluding to Lloyd George's protest that the government's program for reclaiming 2,000,000 acres was too small, Chamberlain asserted that "there are venerable prophets of agriculture who tell you that this is much too low a figure."

Two Million Acres Obtainable

He added, however, that 2,000,000 acres was the highest figure the government thought obtainable, and he promised that "whatever steps are necessary" would be taken.

Distillers commented that "there was enough whisky in stock to last for years to come," but that the reduced output might result in "an airpocket" in future stocks.

Lloyd George said he found war preparedness satisfactory on land and sea and in the air, but "we are not so well off for food as we were the last time."

Pointing out that Germany now had back and side doors to Russia, Italy, the Balkans and Scandinavia despite the British blockade, Lloyd George recalled the 1918 wheat crisis. He gravely reminded his audience that with the present German submarine building program, "such a contingency must be kept in mind."

Then his wife left him. One day in 1938 he got his gun and went to her new home "to get her back with me or else . . ."

He shot her three times and put a bullet through his head. She recovered. Carter survived the usually-mortal wound, but it paralyzed his facial muscles and one eye is sightless.

Investigators said in the parole report that Carter still broods over his domestic trouble, that he told them he "still loves that woman, can't get her out of my blood."

His former wife still lives in Baltimore, so Moser decreed the convict who can't shake his woman-trouble blues should not be returned to the same community.

Invading

many villages along the bay's western shore since they had come within range of advancing Russian artillery.

The Russians seemed determined to thrust the spearhead of their attack westward along the Gulf of Finland coast at all costs.

There were signs this might prove costly since the Finns have strong batteries along the coast, though the coastal fortifications farther south, centering around Koivisto, already have fallen into Russian hands.

In addition the Finns are standing firm at Taipale, the eastern end of the Isthmus defense line where repeated Soviet assaults have failed to gain ground ever since the war started Nov. 30.

Taipale remains the rock on which all Russian attacks have broken like waves against a cliff.

(Here two lines of the cable from Helsinki were deleted by the Finnish censor.)

Apparently the Russian high command feels confident the Finns are not strong enough to counter-attack, but they have been wrong on several previous occasions—notably at Suomussalmi and northeast of Lake Ladoga where entire Russian divisions were cut off and destroyed.

Apparently something also has gone wrong with Soviet calculations in the Kuhmo region, about midway on the long Russian-Finnish border.

The Finnish communique said that operations there were continuing against "surrounded enemy positions" and that several "strong points" had been captured.

Northeast of Lake Ladoga, fifty miles from the Isthmus front, Russian "attempts to advance" were repulsed, the Finns said of fighting on the sector where the Russian Eighteenth army division was divided up into convenient lengths last month and annihilated.

In the for north Finnish troops were forced back eight miles as the Russians advanced to Nautsi on the Norwegian frontier seventy-five miles below the Arctic coastline. Every building in Nautsi was reported aflame.

Finnish planes in revived activity were reported to have bombed Soviet munitions dumps, troop concentrations and other military objectives behind the battle lines, as well as carried out scouting flights.

Russian air action was described by the Finns as "quieter than usual."

Field Glass Peeping Gives Woman Convincing Evidence and Alimony

Cleveland, Feb. 28 (AP)—Mrs. G. H. Martin White focused a pair of field glasses on a second-story window of a Columbus home and saw her husband "making love" to another woman, she testified today at trial of her suit for separate maintenance.

White, on the stand, denied any improper conduct with a woman whom his wife identified as Miss Nellie Benn, business machine operator and saleswoman. The Clevelander said he rented a room in the home for his own use on business trips there.

Judge Frank S. Day granted Mrs. White $300 a month alimoney for separate maintenance, and refused White's divorce plea, made after his wife's petition.

Mrs. White said she "became suspicious" because her husband's "business trips always seem to end up in Columbus."

"Later I found out what the attraction was. It was another woman. I hired a woman detective and we followed to Columbus.

"We sat in an automobile parked across the street and, using field glasses, watched him go into a room upstairs with her. She put on a pink negligee with a lot of lace around the neck. We watched them make love."

Mrs. Gertrude Day, an investigator, testified she and Mrs. White went to Columbus to check up on the husband last July 13, 14 and 15.

The two women met outside the Columbus home, Mrs. Day declared, and watched White and Miss Benn in a bedroom.

"She sat on a stool while he took down her hair," Mrs. Day testified. "We stayed there watching until 2 a. m."

"Well," asked Judge Day. "What happened?"

"We couldn't see," said the witness. "The lights were turned off."

Last May White filed a $250,000 damage suit against Mr. and Mrs. W. Henry Hartman, of Shaker Heights, charging they enticed away his wife and four children through "wealth and influence." Mrs. Hartman is Mrs. White's sister. The Whites were wed in 1918.

Garner Group To Campaign Hard in State of Illinois

Chicago, Feb. 28 (AP)—Vice President Garner's Illinois forces tonight launched a state-wide campaign against President Roosevelt based on the third term issue.

The Garner-for-President Committee outlined plans to organize support for the Texan in his contest with the chief executive in the April 9 presidential preference primary. Spokesman Julius F. Smietanka announced:

"This is the beginning of a smashing fight. The theme of the campaign will be centered around the anti-third term issue.

"There is a strong undercurrent against the third term as the people see the danger of perpetuating a powerful, autocratic, office-holding group. The committee believes, with Mr. Garner, that America should adhere to the tradition of two terms for a president; and that unselfishness should prevail."

The Garner group thus accepted Mayor Edward J. Kelly's challenge to state Democrats to take a stand against the third term.

Kelly issued the defi yesterday, when the Cook county (Chicago) Democratic Central Committee and the Kelly-Nash organization urged the president to run again.

Bequeaths $450,000 He Did Not Possess

Philadelphia, Feb. 28 (AP)—An 83-year-old attorney's plan to conduct, through his will, a strange after-death experiment in what he regarded as the proper upbringing of his grandchildren has collapsed less than three years after his death.

Theophilus B. Stork, who wrote that he had "a horror" of unrestricted gifts of money to young persons, schemed to match the earnings of his heirs, dollar for dollar, over a five-year period. It failed for a very cogent reason:

Most of the $450,000 estate that he thought he was bequeathing did not belong to him.

This was disclosed today by his son, Dr. Charles Wharton Stork, poet, critic, professor of English at Bryn Mawr College and father of the four children whose lives the grandfather sought to influence from beyond the grave.

A 78-year-old trust fund, Dr. Stork said, formed a major part of his father's supposed estate. A final accounting recently, however, showed that the grandfather held only a life interest in it and that upon his death it passed to Dr. Stork.

Said Dr. Stork today:

"Fortunately, the children didn't need the lesson their grandfather was seeking to teach them. They had learned it already. But I am holding the money in trust for them so that it will reach them eventually, even if not in exactly the manner my father planned."

State Income

counsel for three taxpayers who brought the test suit, seeking to halt collection of the tax by the state, argued that submission of a constitutional amendment permitting a graduated income tax—such as was submitted in 1938 and defeated—was a tacit admission the legislature lacked authority to levy other than a flat income tax.

Faith with People Broken

"We think the legislature has broken faith with the people and has done them a pretty bad trick," George V. Parkhurst, one of the attorneys, asserted.

Parkhurst demanded that the income tax law, a keystone in the state's revenue program for 1940-41, be declared void and unconstitutional.

Should the court declare the act void, and be upheld by the court of appeals, state fiscal officials have said a special session of the legislature would be necessary to enact new revenue-producing measures.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

Russia occupation of Nautsi appears to have plugged the only available direct route by which Great Britain and France could have sent military assistance to Finland without crossing neutral Norway and Sweden.

Nautsi is close to the Norwegian-Finnish border at the southern end of the corridor that gave Finland its Arctic outlet. The Red army's renewed attack on thinly held Finnish defenses on the Petsamo front apparently has completely cleared the narrow Arctic corridor of organized Finnish resistance.

Allies May Send Troop

Recently reported naval activity by the Allies in the Arctic has strengthened the view that an Allied expeditionary force might be sent to Finland by the Petsamo route. Demands in England for direct Allied aid to Finland by such influential figures as Hore-Belisha, former war minister, coupled with appearance of Allied war craft in the Arctic, probably helped stir the Red army to sudden action.

Yet the dominant factor of Russian advances in the far North, as on the Karelian isthmus, is unquestionably Finland's increasingly urgent need to conserve her manpower by shortening her defense lines. The vital sector for Finland is the Karelian front and the area just north of Lake Ladoga, where an attempted wide Russian flanking movement still is stalled.

May Not Use Corridor

Study of the map of southern Finland must raise doubts in military minds that the Petsamo corridor is actually destined to play a very significant part in deciding Finland's fate unless it is as an airway. With Red forces in complete control as indicated by their occupation of Nautsi, availability of that pathway for any Allied troops that might be ordered to Finland is dubious at best.

The Finnish Arctic corridor lies hundreds of miles north of any of the critical objectives of Russian attacks in Finland.

Nautsi is a village on the Petsamo-Gulf of Bothnia highway, the only important road in the region. It is 400 miles or so from the gulf, however, too long a distance for any real Russian attempt to cut Finland in half by that route.

Although Russian successes on the Petsamo front have small immediate military significance, they do definitely increase the strain on Norwegian neutrality in the Russo-Finnish fight. Russia and Norway are now confronting each other all along the Norwegian side of the Petsamo corridor, a distance of nearly a hundred miles.

Improved Weather Aids Flood Refugees

San Francisco, Feb. 28 (AP)—Sunshine through broken clouds today cheered residents of a score of flood-swept northern California towns, from which between 3,500 and 4,000 persons had been removed.

Two deaths were attributed to the flood, which spread torrents out of rivers and creeks from as far north as Dunsmuir, to San Francisco bay where the Sacramento river spills into the Pacific.

Harold E. Von Bergen, hydraulic engineer, drowned at Sacramento when a boat captsized as he measured the river's overflow. At Redding, the body of Irene Clemens, 19, was recovered after her car overturned in a creek.

While the weather bureau predicted two or three days of fair weather before another storm could hit, but warned that precautionary measures in the vast river network of the Sacramento valley must not be relaxed.

"We cannot minimize the danger upstream, despite the fact the weather is to our advantage," said E. H. Fletcher, meteorologist and river expert at Sacramento. "If the levees are guarded and no unforseen breaks occur, the situation can be handled."

Non-Belligerents Hear Goebbels on Neutrality

Berlin, Feb. 28 (AP)—Propaganda Minister Goebbels gave non-belligerents another lecture on neutrality tonight, declaring that "even in neutral states the precepts of freedom of opinion may not be misused knowingly and systematically to insult the warring powers."

Addressing a mass meeting in Muenster's largest hall, Goebbels resumed the pressure campaign on neutrals which he opened Feb. 13 before Nazi party orators.

He found fault with the concepts of neutrality held in some places abroad, and said, "we cannot agree with the definition which recognizes only military, not political neutrality as well."

Young Woman Takes Off Clothes in Public

Dallas, Feb. 28 (AP) — A 25-year old woman snarled traffic for blocks today by climbing atop a park truck and taking off all her clothing while hundreds of persons looked on.

Shouting "I want to stay naked as long as I live," the woman fought a policeman, a physician and an ambulance driver before being subdued at a hospital.

Dr. Harry Wilson of Emergency hospital said she was drunk and insane.

West Va. Loses to Nittany Lions in An Extra Period

Penn State Five Defeats Old Rivals by Score of 55 to 51

Morgantown, W. Va., Feb. 28 (AP)—Penn State's Nittany Lions took a scoring extra period basketball game from West Virginia tonight, 55 to 51, before 2,098 spectators.

The visitors led 47-45 with thirty seconds of the regular game remaining but West Virginia's Sam Mandich tipped in a basket to send the contest into overtime.

Penn State then clinched the win in the first three minutes with Johnny Barr firing away for two lightning-quick baskets and Bob Crowell and Howard Smith contributing one each.

The Mountaineers came on with a rush in the last minute and a half, with first Homer Brooks and Mandich goaling, but it was too late.

The game, reminiscent to the nerve-wracking three-extra-period clash the two teams played here last winter, was closely contested every minute of the way. The first period ended with the Mountaineers leading 15-12, chiefly through some sharpshooting by Jimmy Ruch. At the half, the Nittany Lions were out in front, 30 to 26.

Smith Replaces Wilshire With Standard Brands

New York, Feb. 28, (AP)—Thomas L. Smith has replaced Joseph Wilshire as "top man" in the $78,000,000 Standard Brands, Inc., one of the nation's biggest food companies.

This was disclosed today in the pamphlet report of the company for 1939. In the report appeared this crisp sentence:

"Effective in December 1939 the president became chief executive officer of the company."

Thomas L. Smith is Standard Brands president, hence the company's new chief executive officer.

Formerly Joseph Wilshire, chairman of the board, was "top man."

But by-laws of the company were changed last December, executives explained today, and now give the president, rather than the chairman of the board the top authority in the company.

Extensive changes in the internal management of the company had been reported in financial circles for some weeks.

obtain Senate approval for the changes tomorrow, sending the measure to the White House immediately.

Senator Brown (D-Mich), its author, said he saw no objection to the House amendments and believed the Senate should accept them so the funds could be made available immediately.

Peculiar Situation

A peculiar situation has surrounded the bill from the start of its legislative career. It has had general approval, but many of its supporters have been more than a little skittish as to the future consequences of casting their votes for it.

Thus, there was much cloak room talk of what would be the situation of those who voted for the bill if by campaign time the British, for instance, should have an expeditionary force fighting the Russians in Finland. In effect the situation was a reflection of what is commonly regarded as a general nation-wide sentiment for helping Finland, but against jeopardizing American neutrality in any way.

So, the word was passed up and down the aisles and through the cloakrooms that no record vote—a vote on which each would have to record his stand for or against the proposal—would be taken.

Major Kermit

Finland to replace the unofficial form of volunteer aid.

Roosevelt is the fifty-year old son of the late President Theodore Roosevelt of the United States. He is a major in the British army which he joined shortly after the outbreak of the war with Germany.

He served with both the British and American forces in the World War.

Field Marshal Carl Gustaf Mannerheim, supreme commander of the Finnish forces, was reported to have considered Roosevelt as commander of the volunteer brigade made up of British, Scandinavians, Estonians and other nationals recruited in England. British officers would be in charge of the British contingent.

Tonight the Finnish radio announced at Helsinki that the first Canadian volunteers had arrived in Finland to join the Finnish ranks.

The international brigade already formed has no official status in Britain, but its members will wear battle dress like that of the British army.

Daladier Reviews Diplomacy

On the home front, Premier Daladier conducted a detailed review of French diplomacy before the Chamber of Deputies Foreign Affairs Committee. A communique, issued by the committee after the conference, said:

"During his explanation Premier Daladier, while discarding the illusions of those who depict Germany as a country which is on the threshold of collapse, enumerated the grave interior difficulties which the Reich is attempting to camouflage by its propaganda, and developed—with a vigor which drew unanimous applause—the reasons which justify our confidence in victory."

2,730 Lives Lost In Traffic Crashes

Chicago, Feb. 28. (AP)—The United States, "aghast at human slaughter in war-torn Europe," had a "peacetime traffic toll" of 2,730 lives last month, the National Safety Council stated tonight.

January was the fourth successive month to show an increase in the number of motor vehicle deaths. The upward trend thus extended into the New Year after 32,600 fatalities were reported in 1939.

"America is shocked to read of enemy attacks on Europe's defenseless women and children," asserted Col. John Stilwell, president of the council. "Yet it accepts with apparent resignation the fact that thousands of equally defenseless persons have been struck down and killed just as tragically in our own country."

Dingell Consigns Stalin and Hitler To Hot Hereafter

Congressman Flays Them in Speech on Finnish Loan

Washington, Feb. 28, (AP)—Shouting "to hell with Stalin, to hell with Hitler," Rep. Dingell (D-Mich.) appealed to the House in picturesque language today not to restrict the $20,000,000 Finnish loan to non-military purposes.

"We restrict the loan for powder puffs, silken scantie panties and for cream puffs," he cried, "when we know the Finns need shrapnel, buckshot, barbed wire and all the fiercest implements of hell because they are fighting to stop anti-Christ and the hosts of hell led by Beelzebub.

"Let every man stand up and be counted, let him vote as he talks and let us dispense with hypocrisy and catch-phrases. Either we are courageously for Finland, freedom and Christianity or we are for the dictatorship of Stalin, persecution, murder, depravity and everything that is base and cowardly."

Another of Dingell's references was to "the starving, brainless Russian bear which is being led to destruction by a degenerate, scab paperhanger."

"I would give my last dollar to drive them into hell for all time," he continued, "and then I would raise Old Glory on high as the symbol of hope and succor to all the free and Democratic people of the world and as a warning to the international bandits and thugs, or I would haul her down lest someone might object to her flutter in the free breeze, and I would change the bright red bars to yellow as I laid her away forever."

justments, economic and disarmament.

Hull's Program

1—A liberal system of trade, with abandonment of systems of economic autarchy. This system has been followed by Nazi Germany, but the Allies have also had to limit their liberal economic systems since the outbreak of the war.

2—Lower tariffs should be agreed upon, and other types of commercial restrictions such as barter and import quota arrangements should be eliminated.

3—Trick currencies, such as one currency for internal corculation and another for external circulation, should be given up.

In contacting other nations, Hull is said to be limiting himself to general expositions of his ideas and is not as yet seeking to tie them down to concrete planks.

Wants Strong Commitments

He is principally concerned with getting—before the end of the war—strong commitments from all nations that, at the end of the war, they will embrace liberal trade policies whatever they may be doing now.

Hull would not say whether any of the states contacted has presented plans or programs of their own in response to his suggested ideas. He said he could be more explicit later.

A similar contest was promised in Wisconsin where a Dewey slate was filed yesterday and a Vandenberg slate was said to be on the way to Madison for filing.

A slate of delegates pledged to support Vice President Garner for the Democratic nomination was filed in New York.

In Washington, Senator Walsh (D-Mass), an opponent of some of President Roosevelt's policies, told reporters that he would not "be a party to any opposition to a third term for Mr. Roosevelt. He added that he would support Postmaster General Farley if he had an opportunity, but had no intention of "opposing the president's renomination if he indicates a willingness to accept it."

New Method Found To Collect Reward

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 28. (AP)—Postoffice officials said today the man who returned Charles E. Hodges's brief case had "a new one on us" in collecting rewards.

The managing director of the Charleston Chamber of Commerce lost the case last week in Washington. The finder was instructed to forward it here—but Hodges said nothing about first class mail, or a reward.

He got the case back by paying $5.26—$2.26 postage and $3 reward (the finder's idea), all C. O. D.

in France, especially in the last few weeks, when the weather relented and allowed concrete in fortifications to settle."

The general opinion here is that the British troops in the Near East (where Britain and France are reported to have nearly 600,000 men) are there for training and little else.

Plan Made by Strategist

The plan which many military men in London believe the Germans will follow was drawn up by the noted German strategist, General Count von Schlieffen, in 1908 and followed in modified form by von Kluck in 1914.

Modern instruments of war may have compelled some modifications, but the body of the plan remains in all its grandiose proportions: a wheeling movement of 1,500,000 men through Belgium with its axis on the Ardennes forest and its outer flank enfilading Paris.

Today's commentators expect the German battle line to be extended to permit tank and armored divisions full scope on Holland's flat spaces. Such divisions would be able to avoid and to flank some of Belgium's strongest defensive positions on which the British and French might try to stand if the Belgians called for aid.

Chance To Break Through

In spite of the British and French efforts to build an unbreakable wall from Switzerland to the sea, forces moving with the speed and cohesion which marked the German drive through Poland and protected by a strong air force would have an excellent chance to break through, an Italian artillery man told me.

"German military theory always has been, 'find the enemy and destroy him,'" said a British officer. "The Germans know the drain of supporting an army and the German army, which has been mobilized almost continuously since the fall of 1938, must be used to prove to the people that their sacrifices are not in vain."

Europeans know war too well to believe that this one can continue long in its comparatively bloodless phase.

W. & J. Victorious Over Allegheny

Meadville, Pa., Feb. 28. (AP)—Two goals, the final one 15 seconds before the finish tonight gave the Washington and Jefferson Presidents a 40 to 38 basketball triumph over a fighting Allegheny college squad.

Alex Hart converted a pair of foul tires 35 seconds before the end to break a deadlock, only to have Al Reece arch the ball into the basket from the court corner. Nine seconds later Howdy Tidrick shoved in the winning two points from close under the cage.

Reece counted 17 points for scoring honors, while Hart collected 16.

Sixteen policemen and detectives surrounded the French legation grounds today with orders to arrest everyone who leaves with new French passports. Police tried to follow the orders but failed to halt the limousine of the French minister, Pierre Guperlets, in which they said five Czech refugees were spirited away by the chauffeur.

French Grant Passports

Police said that the French military attache, Lieut. Col. Tony Albord, granted the passports through agents who were established in northern Hungarian villages shortly after the start of the war.

The Germans were understood to have demanded that Hungary request Albord's recall.

Police admitted that there were hundreds of Czecho-Slovaks in prison throughout Hungary accused of entering the country illegally.

Once the refugees reached the center of Budapest they were safe, police admitted, because many Hungarian families have willingly hidden them until they could make their way to the Yugoslav frontier.

Heavy Firing in North Sea Area

Amsterdam, Feb. 29 (Thursday) (AP)—Air defense batteries south of Amsterdam went into action at 12:25 a. m. today (7:25 p. m., EST, Wednesday), the roar of their explosions mingling with the sounds of heavy gunfire which had been drifting in from the North Sea for more than an hour.

No immediate explanation of the anti-aircraft activity was given, and there was no information concerning the identity of the foreign planes at which their shells were apparently directed.

The roar of the gunfire in the North Sea was heard at The Hague, and at Zandvoort, a resort town west of Amsterdam, flashes of light could be clearly seen illuminating the night sky in the southwest at 1 a. m.

Persons in Scheveningen, near The Hague, said flashes of light were seen, and that the firing appeared to be off the hook of Holland.

The action apparently was well outside Netherlands territorial waters.

Observers said the firing appeared to be too heavy to have been from trawlers.

Westminster Defeats Bethany 70 to 54

Bethany, W. Va., Feb. 28. (AP)—Westminster college's cagers defeated Bethany tonight 70 to 54, although able to score but four more field goals than the losers because of the tight Bison zone defense.

From the foul line the Titans made good 18 of 21 attempts against 10 for the Bisons. Cullison led the Bisons' attack with 18 points and G. Ridl was best for the visitors with 17.

Lloyd George Says

slashing imports of all non-essentials.

Obviously alluding to Lloyd George's protest that the government's program for reclaiming 2,000,000 acres was too small, Chamberlain asserted that "there are venerable prophets of agriculture who tell you that this is much too low a figure."

Two Million Acres Obtainable

He added, however, that 2,000,000 acres was the highest figure the government thought obtainable, and he promised that "whatever steps are necessary" would be taken.

Distillers commented that "there was enough whisky in stock to last for years to come," but that the reduced output might result in "an airpocket" in future stocks.

Lloyd George said he found war preparedness satisfactory on land and sea and in the air, but "we are not so well off for food as we were the last time."

Pointing out that Germany now had back and side doors to Russia, Italy, the Balkans and Scandinavia despite the British blockade, Lloyd George recalled the 1918 wheat crisis. He gravely reminded his audience that with the present German submarine building program, "such a contingency must be kept in mind."

bosses offered today to take him back).

Then his wife left him. One day in 1938 he got his gun and went to her new home "to get her back with me or else . . ."

He shot her three times and put a bullet through his head. She recovered. Carter survived the usually-mortal wound, but it paralyzed his facial muscles and one eye is sightless.

Investigators said in the parole report that Carter still broods over his domestic trouble, that he told them he "still loves that woman, can't get her out of my blood."

His former wife still lives in Baltimore, so Moser decreed the convict who can't shake his woman-trouble blues should not be returned to the same community.

Invading

many villages along the bay's western shore since they had come within range of advancing Russian artillery.

The Russians seemed determined to thrust the spearhead of their attack westward along the Gulf of Finland coast at all costs.

There were signs this might prove costly since the Finns have strong batteries along the coast, though the coastal fortifications farther south, centering around Koivisto, already have fallen into Russian hands.

In addition the Finns are standing firm at Taipale, the eastern end of the Isthmus defense line where repeated Soviet assaults have failed to gain ground ever since the war started Nov. 30.

Taipale remains the rock on which all Russian attacks have broken like waves against a cliff.

(Here two lines of the cable from Helsinki were deleted by the Finnish censor.)

Apparently the Russian high command feels confident the Finns are not strong enough to counter-attack, but they have been wrong on several previous occasions—notably at Suomussalmi and northeast of Lake Ladoga where entire Russian divisions were cut off and destroyed.

Apparently something also has gone wrong with Soviet calculations in the Kuhmo region, about midway on the long Russian-Finnish border.

The Finnish communique said that operations there were continuing against "surrounded enemy positions" and that several "strong points" had been captured.

Northeast of Lake Ladoga, fifty miles from the Isthmus front, Russian "attempts to advance" were repulsed, the Finns said of fighting on the sector where the Russian Eighteenth army division was divided up into convenient lengths last month and annihilated.

In the far north Finnish troops were forced back eight miles as the Russians advanced to Nautsi on the Norwegian frontier seventy-five miles below the Arctic coastline. Every building in Nautsi was reported aflame.

Finnish planes in revived activity were reported to have bombed Soviet munitions dumps, troop concentrations and other military objectives behind the battle lines, as well as carried out scouting flights.

Russian air action was described by the Finns as "quieter than usual."

"Chamberlain Dance" Makes Club Trouble

Philadelphia, Feb. 28 (AP)—A "Chamberlain dance" was described by a state liquor board agent today in testimony against a social club charged with presenting indecent entertainment.

Garner Group To Campaign Hard in State of Illinois

Chicago, Feb. 28 (AP)—Vice President Garner's Illinois forces tonight launched a state-wide campaign against President Roosevelt based on the third term issue.

The Garner-for-President Committee outlined plans to organize support for the Texan in his contest with the chief executive in the April 9 presidential preference primary. Spokesman Julius F. Smietanka announced:

"This is the beginning of a smashing fight. The theme of the campaign will be centered around the anti-third term issue.

"There is a strong undercurrent against the third term as the people see the danger of perpetuating a powerful, autocratic, office-holding group. The committee believes, with Mr. Garner, that America should adhere to the tradition of two terms for a president; and that unselfishness should prevail."

The Garner group thus accepted Mayor Edward J. Kelly's challenge to state Democrats to take a stand against the third term.

Kelly issued the defi yesterday, when the Cook county (Chicago) Democratic Central Committee and the Kelly-Nash organization urged the president to run again.

Bequeaths $450,000 He Did Not Possess

Philadelphia, Feb. 28 (AP)—An 83-year-old attorney's plan to conduct, through his will, a strange after-death experiment in what he regarded as the proper upbringing of his grandchildren has collapsed less than three years after his death.

Theophilus B. Stork, who wrote that he had "a horror" of unrestricted gifts of money to young persons, schemed to match the earnings of his heirs, dollar for dollar, over a five-year period. It failed for a very cogent reason:

Most of the $450,000 estate that he thought he was bequeathing did not belong to him.

This was disclosed today by his son, Dr. Charles Wharton Stork, poet, critic, professor of English at Bryn Mawr College and father of the four children whose lives the grandfather sought to influence from beyond the grave.

A 78-year-old trust fund, Dr. Stork said, formed a major part of his father's supposed estate. A final accounting recently, however, showed that the grandfather held only a life interest in it and that upon his death it passed to Dr. Stork.

Said Dr. Stork today:

"Fortunately, the children didn't need the lesson their grandfather was seeking to teach them. They had learned it already. But I am holding the money in trust for them so that it will reach them eventually, even if not in exactly the manner my father planned."

counsel for three taxpayers who brought the test suit, seeking to halt collection of the tax by the state, argued that submission of a constitutional amendment permitting a graduated income tax—such as was submitted in 1938 and defeated—was a tacit admission the legislature lacked authority to levy other than a flat income tax.

Faith with People Broken

"We think the legislature has broken faith with the people and has done them a pretty bad trick," George V. Parkhurst, one of the attorneys, asserted.

Parkhurst demanded that the income tax law, a keystone in the state's revenue program for 1940-41, be declared void and unconstitutional.

Should the court declare the act void, and be upheld by the court of appeals, state fiscal officials have said a special session of the legislature would be necessary to enact new revenue-producing measures.

Field Glass Peeping Gives Woman Convincing Evidence and Alimony

Cleveland, Feb. 28 (AP)—Mrs. G. H. Martin White focused a pair of field glasses on a second-story window of a Columbus home and saw her husband "making love" to another woman, she testified today at trial of her suit for separate maintenance.

White, on the stand, denied any improper conduct with a woman whom his wife identified as Miss Nellie Benn, business machine operator and saleswoman. The Clevelander said he rented a room in the home for his own use on business trips there.

Judge Frank S. Day granted Mrs. White $300 a month alimoney for separate maintenance, and refused White's divorce plea, made after his wife's petition.

Mrs. White said she "became suspicious" because her husband's "business trips always seem to end up in Columbus."

"Later I found out what the attraction was. It was another woman. I hired a woman detective and we followed to Columbus.

"We sat in an automobile parked across the street and, using field glasses, watched him go into a room upstairs with her. She put on a pink negligee with a lot of lace around the neck. We watched them make love."

Mrs. Gertrude Day, an investigator, testified she and Mrs. White went to Columbus to check up on the husband last July 13, 14 and 15.

The two women met outside the Columbus home, Mrs. Day declared, and watched White and Miss Benn in a bedroom.

"She sat on a stool while he took down her hair," Mrs. Day testified. "We stayed there watching until 2 a. m."

"Well," asked Judge Day. "What happened?"

"We couldn't see," said the witness. "The lights were turned off."

Last May White filed a $250,000 damage suit against Mr. and Mrs. W. Henry Hartman, of Shaker Heights, charging they enticed away his wife and four children through "wealth and influence." Mrs. Hartman is Mrs. White's sister. The Whites were wed in 1918.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

Russia occupation of Nautsi appears to have plugged the only available direct route by which Great Britain and France could have sent military assistance to Finland without crossing neutral Norway and Sweden.

Nautsi is close to the Norwegian-Finnish border at the southern end of the corridor that gave Finland its Arctic outlet. The Red army's renewed attack on thinly held Finnish defenses on the Petsamo front apparently has completely cleared the narrow Arctic corridor of organized Finnish resistance.

Allies May Send Troop

Recently reported naval activity by the Allies in the Arctic has strengthened the view that an Allied expeditionary force might be sent to Finland by the Petsamo route. Demands in England for direct Allied aid to Finland by such influential figures as Hore-Belisha, former war minister, coupled with appearance of Allied war craft in the Arctic, probably helped stir the Red army to sudden action.

Yet the dominant factor of Russian advances in the far North, as on the Karelian isthmus, is unquestionably Finland's increasingly urgent need to conserve her manpower by shortening her defense lines. The vital sector for Finland is the Karelian front and the area just north of Lake Ladoga, where an attempted wide Russian flanking movement still is stalled.

May Not Use Corridor

Study of the map of southern Finland must raise doubts in military minds that the Petsamo corridor is actually destined to play a very significant part in deciding Finland's fate unless it is as an airway. With Red forces in complete control as indicated by their occupation of Nautsi, availability of that pathway for any Allied troops that might be ordered to Finland is dubious at best.

The Finnish Arctic corridor lies hundreds of miles north of any of the critical objectives of Russian attacks in Finland.

Nautsi is a village on the Petsamo-Gulf of Bothnia highway, the only important road in the region. It is 400 miles or so from the gulf, however, too long a distance for any real Russian attempt to cut Finland in half by that route.

Although Russian successes on the Petsamo front have small immediate military significance, they do definitely increase the strain on Norwegian neutrality in the Russo-Finnish fight. Russia and Norway are now confronting each other all along the Norwegian side of the Petsamo corridor, a distance of nearly a hundred miles.

Improved Weather Aids Flood Refugees

San Francisco, Feb. 28 (AP)—Sunshine through broken clouds today cheered residents of a score of flood-swept northern California towns, from which between 3,500 and 4,000 persons had been removed.

Two deaths were attributed to the flood, which spread torrents out of rivers and creeks from as far north as Dunsmuir, to San Francisco bay where the Sacramento river spills into the Pacific.

Harold E. Von Bergen, hydraulic engineer, drowned at Sacramento when a boat captsized as he measured the river's overflow. At Redding, the body of Irene Clemens, 19, was recovered after her car overturned in a creek.

While the weather bureau predicted two or three days of fair weather before another storm could hit, but warned that precautionary measures in the vast river network of the Sacramento valley must not be relaxed.

"We cannot minimize the danger upstream, despite the fact the weather is to our advantage," said E. H. Fletcher, meteorologist and river expert at Sacramento. "If the levees are guarded and no unforseen breaks occur, the situation can be handled."

Non-Belligerents Hear Goebbels on Neutrality

Berlin, Feb. 28 (AP)—Propaganda Minister Goebbels gave non-belligerents another lecture on neutrality tonight, declaring that "even in neutral states the precepts of freedom of opinion may not be misused knowingly and systematically to insult the warring powers."

Addressing a mass meeting in Muenster's largest hall, Goebbels resumed the pressure campaign on neutrals which he opened Feb. 13 before Nazi party orators.

He found fault with the concepts of neutrality held in some places abroad, and said, "we cannot agree with the definition which recognizes only military, not political neutrality as well."

Young Woman Takes Off Clothes in Public

Dallas, Feb. 28 (AP) — A 25-year old woman snarled traffic for blocks today by climbing atop a park truck and taking off all her clothing while hundreds of persons looked on.

Shouting "I want to stay naked as long as I live," the woman fought a policeman, a physician and an ambulance driver before being subdued at a hospital.

Dr. Harry Wilson of Emergency hospital said she was drunk and insane.

West Va. Loses to Nittany Lions in An Extra Period

Penn State Five Defeats Old Rivals by Score of 55 to 51

Morgantown, W. Va., Feb. 28 (AP)—Penn State's Nittany Lions took a scoring extra period basketball game from West Virginia tonight, 55 to 51, before 2,098 spectators.

The visitors led 47-45 with thirty seconds of the regular game remaining but West Virginia's Sam Mandich tipped in a basket to send the contest into overtime.

Penn State then clinched the win in the first three minutes with Johnny Barr firing away for two lightning-quick baskets and Bob Crowell and Howard Smith contributing one each.

The Mountaineers came on with a rush in the last minute and a half, with first Homer Brooks and Mandich goaling, but it was too late.

The game, reminiscent to the nerve-wracking three-extra-period clash the two teams played here last winter, was closely contested every minute of the way. The first period ended with the Mountaineers leading 15-12, chiefly through some sharpshooting by Jimmy Ruch. At the half, the Nittany Lions were out in front, 30 to 26.

Smith Replaces Wilshire With Standard Brands

New York, Feb. 28, (AP)—Thomas L. Smith has replaced Joseph Wilshire as "top man" in the $78,000,000 Standard Brands, Inc., one of the nation's biggest food companies.

This was disclosed today in the pamphlet report of the company for 1939. In the report appeared this crisp sentence:

"Effective in December 1939 the president became chief executive officer of the company."

Thomas L. Smith is Standard Brands president, hence the company's new chief executive officer.

Formerly Joseph Wilshire, chairman of the board, was "top man."

But by-laws of the company were changed last December, executives explained today, and now give the president, rather than the chairman of the board the top authority in the company.

Extensive changes in the internal management of the company had been reported in financial circles for some weeks.

obtain Senate approval for the changes tomorrow, sending the measure to the White House immediately.

Senator Brown (D-Mich), its author, said he saw no objection to the House amendments and believed the Senate should accept them so the funds could be made available immediately.

Peculiar Situation

A peculiar situation has surrounded the bill from the start of its legislative career. It has had general approval, but many of its supporters have been more than a little skittish as to the future consequences of casting their votes for it.

Thus, there was much cloak room talk of what would be the situation of those who voted for the bill if by campaign time the British, for instance, should have an expeditionary force fighting the Russians in Finland. In effect the situation was a reflection of what is commonly regarded as a general nation-wide sentiment for helping Finland, but against jeopardizing American neutrality in any way.

So, the word was passed up and down the aisles and through the cloakrooms that no record vote—a vote on which each would have to record his stand for or against the proposal—would be taken.

British officers would be in charge of the British contingent.

Tonight the Finnish radio announced at Helsinki that the first Canadian volunteers had arrived in Finland to join the Finnish ranks.

The international brigade already formed has no official status in Britain, but its members will wear battle dress like that of the British army.

Protecting the Bully's Victim Is Important

Fear-Stricken Child Should Be Taught to Defend Himself

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH.D

Tragic is the suffering of many a boy who lives in constant dread of one or more bullies of the neighborhood, especially on the way to and from school. "I wish I was dead," one such boy told his mother. He suddenly lost interest in school and tried to stay home under all sorts of excuses but the valid one. In desperation he may call the bullies names, say mean things to them or attack them from ambush. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Slipping?—Yes

FURTHER TANGIBLE EVIDENCE that the New Deal is slipping and slipping badly has been furnished by the special congressional elections just held in Ohio to fill vacancies caused by deaths.

The news columns have shown that J. Harry McGregor, Republican, triumphed by a large majority over his Democratic opponent in the Seventeenth district, which is normally Democratic, while in the usually Republican Twenty-second district the Republican nominee, Mrs. Frances P. Bolton, running to succeed her deceased husband, was elected by almost two to one.

The significant phase of these bye elections is that the New Deal was put squarely at issue. Mrs. Bolton, carrying the usual handicap of a woman in politics, made but a single campaign speech, advocating "American common sense economy in government." McGregor likewise stressed the same thing, calling for return of "a common sense business judgment in Washington instead of theories and ideas."

If coming events cast their shadows before, here is substantial indication that the American people are sick and tired of the crackpot theories, the industry baiting and the burdensome costs of their national government, and purpose to put into effect a much-needed salutary change. The Ohio results are heartening, indeed, for all those who have been feeling that way.

Disproportionate Increases

GOVERNMENTAL COSTS can naturally be expected to increase as the population and resources expand. But one of the chief obstacles in part of that expansion lies in the fact that governmental costs in recent years have raced far and away ahead of the normal increase in population and resources.

Among the hundreds of pages of propaganda pouring daily through the mails upon the editorial desk comes a piece from the Tax Policy League of New York city pertaining to per capita state tax collections. It goes on to show that California heads the list with a per capita yield of $51.99, and that South Carolina tails it with a per capita yield of only $11.35. The average for the entire country was, last year, $29.83.

But the point of interest is the rate of increase. The total shown for 1936 is $2,576,062,761, while that for last year has jumped to $3,836,231,292. That is what you can call growth with a vengeance. Maryland is shown to have participated in the broad jump. The state tax yield for 1936 is shown at $29,626,955 as against $44,721,391 for last year. That, too, is ahead of the normal expansion in people and resources.

It is becoming more obvious day by day that these increases should be harmonized.

Enlarging a State

ASK the average person the area of Michigan, and if he looks it up the answer will be 57,980 square miles. This was considered correct a few weeks ago, but it is wrong today. Instead of ranking twenty-second among the states in area, Michigan is eighth, and is now the largest state east of the Mississippi river. Why has it taken more than 100 years to find this out?

Chase S. Osborn, former governor of the state, has for years endeavored to have federal authorities give Michigan what he considers its proper area rating. And he has at last convinced the authorities that the state has been belittled ever since it came into the union. He has contended that the area of Michigan should include all water and lake bottom under its jurisdiction as applied to the Great Lakes. It meant the inclusion of 16,653 square miles of Lake Superior; 12,922 of Lake Michigan; 9,925 of Lake Huron and 460 of Lake Erie—a total of 39,960 square miles. This gives Michigan a total of 97,940 square miles.

The new figure has been accepted by the federal Census Bureau, the United States Land Office and the Geological Survey, with the word that the change will be made in the 1940 census report and all other geographical information sent out of Washington.

Apparently Superfluous

CONSIDERABLE OPPOSITION is to be noticed among newspapers of the area that would be affected as well as elsewhere to the proposed federal canal to connect the Ohio river and Lake Erie at an estimated cost of $240,000,000.

The question of the economic justification of such a waterway is being raised. The only purpose to be served, objectors say, is to give the steel manufacturers of the Youngstown section cheap water transportation at the cost of the federal taxpayer.

The many objections lodged moved the president to request an opinion on the project from the Interstate Commerce Commission. That has been given. The opinion carries the conclusion that additional transportation facilities are not needed in the area the canal would serve, and that the principal beneficiaries would be a few large shippers and not the general public.

"Railroads, weakened by public provision of facilities for their competitors," the commission stated, "cannot respond as fully as they should to the needs of the public for efficient and safe transportation. In speaking of railroads, sight may not be lost of the effect of loss of traffic on employment, and on the scale of wages the railroads will be able to pay."

This proposal seems only another instance of a senseless squandering of public moneys upon things not absolutely needed rather than upon things which are really necessary. The country appears to have had entirely too many instances in kind. In view of the many miles of abandoned canals throughout the country—we have one of them right here in Maryland—it has been generally supposed that we had long since forged ahead of the old canal era.

Make Your Anger Profit

INSTEAD of sulking when you get mad, make up your mind to "show the world"—and you'll go places.

That's the common sense formula presented by Dale Carnegie, author of the famous book, How To Win Friends and Influence People, in an original article in Your Life Magazine.

Plenty of famous folk have done just that. Ernestine Schumann-Heink was one. Destitute, hungry, cold, she was on the point of taking her own life and the lives of her three small children when she determined to ask the director of the Hamburg opera for more and larger parts. Laughed at, she was angry—so angry that she "showed the world" that she was its greatest contralto.

Clarence Darrow, one of the most famous criminal lawyers of modern times, was another. Anger at a woman's belittling remark caused him to move suddenly from the little Ohio town where he was practicing law. Anger carried him on to the top of his profession.

A drugstore manager's bawling out of a young clerk was the stinging lash that kept Charles Walgren in the drug business and finally made him head of the vast chain which bears his name.

"The next time someone makes you angry," Mr. Carnegie counsels, "don't try to get even with him. Any fool can do that. Do something that fools never do—try to turn that emotion into a drive for self-improvement or self-advancement."

Pretty good advice.

The Milk Bottle

IT'S ONLY a broken milk bottle; never mind, the creamery furnishes them. How many articles in common use, like the milk bottle, are counted as costing nothing? The American people are the greatest wasters in the world.

Now consider this despised milk bottle. The Bureau of Dairy Industry of the United States Department of Agriculture has been watching the milk bottles. And it recently gave out some figures that prove the annual loss from broken or misplaced bottles totals close to $3,000,000. That is what milk bottle carelessness costs.

Who pays it? Somebody has to stand that loss. The bottles cost a little more than a nickel apiece. The manufacturers get their price for the bottles. Probably the farmers who sell the milk get a little less for their product. The bottles have to be paid for and something over 800,000,000 of them will be broken or lost in the course of this year.

And the part of the $3,000,000 loss that can not be charged back to the farmer must be paid by the consumer. Somebody has to pay the losses of a going concern. There is no profit in waste.

The Surface Tension Of Marriage

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Take a needle, rub it between the fingers so it becomes rather oily, and lay it on a small piece of paper.

Float the paper on the surface of the water in a shallow bowl. Depress the paper so that it sinks. Do this very gently and observe that the needle, of steel and so much heavier than the same colume of water, floats easily on the surface.

Marshall Maslin

How amazing? No, not amazing at all. Not miraculous. Not any "defiance of the laws of nature." The needle floats because of Surface Tension; and that tension, even of so delicate a stuff as water, is tough enough to support a needle. . . . But break that tension with a feather and the needle will sink.

Not long ago I read a magazine article in which the author, a learned man, a psychonalyst, spoke of the surface tension of marriage as thought it were as delicate and as easily destroyed as the tension of water. . . . He gave many examples of unhappy marriage, of little disturbances that destroyed the peace of men and women. . . . He wrote convincingly and I agreed as I read his words.

But afterwards I found myself thinking: This man is not writing of normal marriages, of normal human beings. These men and women he describes are sick, spiritually crippled, neurasthenic, neurotic. The women are like the princess in the fable who slept on seventeen mattresses but couldn't sleep if a pea was under the lowest of them. The men are nervous wrecks, vain, excitable and fussy.

Normal human beings are tougher than that. They are more intelligent. Their nerves aren't so sensitive. Their memory for slights isn't so retentive. Their bumps of forgiveness are not depressions. They have more common sense. . . . It is true that some marriages are wrecked by serious divergences of habit and character, but if it were true that every marriage can be destroyed by a tiny difference between a man and woman, by a minor impatience, or even by one big roaring quarrel, no marriage would endure and all marriages would be infinitely pathetic.

I wish the experts who write about marriage would write more about the ones that last and not so much about the ones that go bust. We human beings are tougher than we get credit for being.

American School Scene Changes

By EDWIN C. HILL

The passing of the little red school-house is another unwelcome reminder of how the American scene is changing. That the country school is passing is attested by a current news item, recording their closing at the rate of about 300 a year in Pennsylvania alone. In twenty years they have dropped from 10,183 to 5,350, and the rate of decline has been hastened in the last year or two.

Edwin C. Hill

Traditionally, we have treasured the little red school-house as the arcanum of our democracy, the cradle of our liberties, and the politicians who could cite a cross-roads education have made the most of it. Horace Mann, the father of universal public school education in America, said more than one hundred years ago that here was the one answer to all that assailed or endangered democracy.

We have an impressive pantheon of great men and women who learned their three R's in the one-room school. If we have overworked the symbol, we have much substance to treasure, and the question of what we are substituting for the little red school-house merits more than a passing glance.

Impressive and Elaborate

Obviously, we have the most impressive and elaborate public school plant any nation ever had. But here's that special school number of the Survey-Graphic of a few months ago which jolts our complacency. There are large sections of the country, particularly since the start of the depression years, which have school facilities far below those of the days of McGuffey's Reader and the "Hoosier Schoolmaster."

In isolated rural districts we have an appalling number of children barred from the most rudimentary education. As we move into our new dream of great, centralized school buildings, serving a wide countryside, we are still in default in the much simpler obligations of Horace Mann's dream—the dream that somehow got sidetracked.

Suggestive Case

It was only last week that Dr. Emil Altman, medical examiner for the New York Board of Education, reported a teacher who flunked the following: "If three apples cost five cents, how much would fifteen apples cost?" She filled many sheets of paper and had to give it up. This, of course, is not typical and is cited merely to suggest that grand and beautiful temples of education may be "whited sepulchres."

I received a disquieting reminder of this the other day from the friend who had made an automobile tour of the South, venturing into remote districts off the main highway. He was profoundly impressed by the many magnificent new school houses, built with federal funds. Some of them had marble facades, swimming pools, laboratories, gymnasiums, auditoriums and what not. WPA workmen had done a splendid job.

But there was a catch in it. There wasn't any education going on in these noble temples to Minerva. The boys in the backroom had seen to that. Federal money was to have been augmented by local funds to staff the schools and make them going concerns. Funds voted locally had been sluiced off into political channels. There isn't even money for heating and maintenance, to say nothing of teaching.

Works Differently

The Survey-Graphic study showed a depressing number of districts that could not even rise to the demands of a clean, weatherproof and comfortably heated one-room school. The current decline in the number of little red school-houses is attributed, however, to bus transportation, the consolidation of small districts and the development of a bigger and better school, with higher pay for teachers, with the larger resources of a wider community. That has worked well in many sections, particularly in California. In some instances it hasn't worked so well.

The little red school-house, a civic forum, as well as a school, where they used to have the Lyceum debates, was a center of political autonomy as well as a school. Political skullduggery doesn't do so well in small campass. Everybody knows everybody in the small puddle and it's harder to get away with anything. Flux the little district in a large school area, gear it into county politics and the alert self-sufficiency of the small unit is lost. That has happened here and there.

No doubt the little red schoolhouse is through. That being the case, it would be well to take a sharp look at what goes on behind the stately walls of its successor. We pay more money for education, per capita, than any people in the world. Are we getting our money's worth?—Copyright, 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

THAT STARTLING RESEMBLANCE

Hull Is Firm on His Neutrality Thesis But Is Facing Opposition in Congress

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

State Secretary Cordell Hull faces considerable opposition in Congress, as against his thesis that the United States is in no danger from either Chino-Japanese or the Russo-Finnish conflict; therefore that it would be a mistake for us to put our neutrality law in effect in either of these situations.

Cordell Hull

It generally is agreed that the Finn-Soviet fight doesn't endanger us immediately. There are plenty of critics, however, who argue that a complete Russian victory would threaten us ultimately And they take the view that Japan already threatens American interests on the Asiatic mainland and that the setting up of a Japanese-controlled government in China would involve us in trouble with Nippon in short order. In fact, it's pointed out that our relations with Tokio are strained at present.

At "Declared" War

There isn't any question that our neutrality law applies to the conflict between Britain and France versus Germany. The Allies and the Reich are at "declared" war.

Nominally, though, so far as we're concerned, Japan isn't at war with China, nor is Russia at war with Finland, because there haven't been any declarations. Nevertheless, we can announce that, as we see it, a "state of war" exists between the Japanese and the Chinese, and between the Russians and the Finns.

It's true that these wars actually are raging. Yet if we say that we recognize as much, we automatically imply that the Japanese and Russians are liars, because they deny it.

Japan's Ambitions

Now, I don't think anybody disputes that Japan not only is trying to conquer China but that the mikado's aim is to crowd all Occidental business out of Chinese territory. This includes American business. It's a commercial grab at America's expense, among other countries'.

Later it'll be worse if the Japanese develop ambitions in the Philippines, Alaska, Hawaii and maybe on the Latin-American west coast, which they've talked about hitherto. We'd have a stake, too, if they should take a liking to Hongkong, French Indo-China, possibly Australasia and the Dutch East Indies.

But these are remoter considerations; Uncle Sam's interest in China is pretty urgent.

To say that Japan is no threat to the United States strikes me as an exaggeration.

As to Russia

During the last World war I spent some time in Scandinavia.

At that stage of the game Russia was pro-Ally.

But Russia was looking ahead all the same. Its objective was the Norwegian port of Narvig, in northern Norway, on the Atlantic. That's the place it's shooting for today.

If Stalin gets Finland, he won't have far to go to get to Narvig. From there he'll have an Atlantic point to shoot from. I don't mean to exaggerate it as a base. Still, it's a possibility. And, anyway, a Stalinized Scandinavia would be a civilized headache.

For all these reasons there's a pretty strong sentiment on Capitol Hill in favor of a definite expression by Uncle Sam, outlining his position. It may seem as if neither Japan nor Russia should be offended by an outright announcement that we're neutral. Nevertheless, we'd be serving notice, in effect, that we know they're at war when they say they're not. Moreover, they'd know perfectly well that we consider them wanton aggressors. Besides, numerous congressmen want to shut off shipments of our supplies, particularly munitions, to these belligerents, which would be a great hardship to the Japanese; it wouldn't make so much difference to the Russians. However, the latter certainly would feel affronted.

Looking for Trouble?

Secretary Hull's view is that such a policy on our part simply would be looking for trouble, and he thinks there's no present necessity for us to do so. He has explained to our congressional foreign relations committees that he believes the state department has both the Russo-Finnish and Japanese-Chinese situations fully in hand, and he objects to any more legislative tinkering with it—at the current stage of the game, anyway.

Parenthetically, the executive branch of the United States government constitutionally is supposed to have a tolerably free hand in the management of our international affairs, and it's jealous of much interference by the legislators.

All the same, Secretary Hull's contention that neither the rumpus in Finland nor the one in China is potentially dangerous to Uncle Samuel is disputed by good-sized blocs of solons in both houses of congress.

Maryland Farm Musings

By the Extension Service of the University of Maryland

Maryland, as a state, ranks tenth among all states in the number of Percherons registered in 1939, and eleventh in the number of Percherons transferred in 1939. The Frederick County Fair ranked seventh in the United States in the number of purebred Percheron horses entered in its classes in 1939.

March 7 is the date selected for the annual Frederick county Percheron day. It will be held at the fair grounds and there will be classes for yearling colts, yearling fillies, two-year-old colts and two-year-old fillies. There will be a 4-H Club judging contest in the morning, as well as a contest in which adults will be invited to participate.

The annual meeting of the Maryland State Poultry Council will be held this year in Elkton on July 31. Important problems facing the industry will be taken up at the meeting and a banquet is being planned.

James M. Gwin, of the University of Maryland Poultry department, will be in charge of the poultry dressing and packing demonstrations at the Poultry Industry Exposition which will be held in Atlantic City from October 1 to 4, it is announced by Grant Jasper, president of the Northeastern Producers' Council. This will be the fifth all-poultry-industry exposition sponsored by the northeastern poultrymen, but the first to be held at Atlantic City.

On the Record

By Louis J. Taber, Master of the National Grange

While those who are charged with the responsibility of negotiating these so-called reciprocal trade agreements have repeatedly assured Congress and the country that they approach their task with great care and discrimination, there is no record available to the public to prove the truth of these assertions. Rates are changed without making public the reasons therefor, as was formerly done in recommendations and reports of the Tariff Commission. These changes in rates are made arbitrarily and often in the face of what appear to be convincing reasons presented by producers against the lowering of rates.—Louis J. Taber, Master, National Grange, before Ways and Means Committee, Jan. 25, 1940.

Pressure Politics

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

The power of pressure politics when well organized is illustrated in the continued success of the silver bloc.

Having succeeded through the shrewd manipulation of a small but well-knit voting minority in Congress, in committing the country to the fantastic program of undertaking to buy up most of the world's silver and bestowing a rich subsidy on the domestic silver mining industry, the silver senators now are making a surprisingly successful drive to keep the thing alive.

There is pending in the Senate the Townsend bill which would direct abandonment of the purchase of foreign silver. Every argument is on the side of this measure. The silver program has failed completely. Although the government has bought vast sums of silver at an inflated price, there is not even an approach toward the goal of building silver resources to one-third of the value of gold holdings. And none of the promised economical results of this hoarding of the metal have occurred, either. Yet the silver bloc still is fighting, and with some promise of success, against the Townsend bill, with no other argument to support its position than that to quit now would have seriously disturbing effects in China!

Thus pressure politics. The record is not a very flattering commentary on the current performance in Washington.

Diesels Can Make Defense Stronger

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

Cincinnati, Feb. 29—The World war produced many new weapons and methods—flame, smoke, gas, tanks, zeps, mass air fighting, depth and air bombs, submarine detectors and so forth. Toward the end of it the "nut factory" (a committee set up to sift all new inventions and suggestions) began to study burrowing machines and mechanical trench diggers. Fighting was then on, under and over the sea and on and over the land. But, except for old-fashioned mining and trench digging by hand, the war hadn't yet gone underground.

Hugh Johnson

None of the underground inventions seemed to promise much. The suggested machinery was too light to do much more than gimlet and scratch. That need no longer be the case. I think we shall see some real subterranean tactics if this war goes unhappily on.

Third in Succession

This is my third column in succession on astonishing developments made possible by the Diesel engine—in railroads, in generating electric power and now in digging and dirt moving. I didn't start on these three revolutionary developments on three successive days of a trip through some industrial plants—which suggests that there may be more in the making.

The reason why the World war burrowing and trenching machines couldn't be better was that there wasn't then any such compact and potent self-moving power plant as the modern Diesel engine to pull, push and heave. Even after it was well developed in this country, no engineers seemed to realize the weight and strength of the massive machinery that it could move and operate. Like the airplane, and nearly all inventions in agricultural machinery, that principal was recognized by an amateur who is now cashing in on it in a big way.

Heavy Work Done

I saw a yellow spidery-looking steel monsterdriven by a track-laying Diesel-powered tractor which can and does crunch its way into a forest and uproot trees up to twenty inches in diameter somewhat as you would pull a turnip. Beside it stood another land leviathan dragging steel hooks as massive as the heaviest anchor flukes. It can plow an eight foot furrow through rocky land and shale and leave it so thoroughly broken up that its neighbor, a super trench-digger, can follow it and leave behind the two a trench dug half as fast as a man can walk.

There is, in addition, a whole battery of these monsters—one to shape up the sides of an excavation, one to "bulldoze" away the tops of hillocks or move tons of dirt in almost any fashion and to almost any shape desired.

Equally Astonishing

Among this particular brood of behomoths there wasn't any tunneling machine, but a separate development in high speed, high power, earth boring machinery in the oil drilling industry is equally astonishing and, I suppose, equally applicable to the possible new technique of underground warfare. Maybe I am going Deisel-dippy. Maybe the opening up of this new mechanical field isn't as fascinating to the average reader as it is to me. Maybe these three columns were boring. I won't do it any more. I happened to be especially interested by experiences in all three fields—railroads, electrical power and technical warfare.

May Affect War

This latter aspect might greatly affect this war. For example, if the Finns were equipped with these tree jerking, mound building, trench digging mechanical miracles, they could build new rearward defensive lines as fast as the Russians could take the forward ones. If these developments are promptly utilized by the general staffs of all armies—including our own—they will enormously increase the strength of the defensive. That is a way to save both human lives and weaker nations from the massive power of all such international bullies as Hitler and Stalin—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Slipping?—Yes

FURTHER TANGIBLE EVIDENCE that the New Deal is slipping and slipping badly has been furnished by the special congressional elections just held in Ohio to fill vacancies caused by deaths.

The news columns have shown that J. Harry McGregor, Republican, triumphed by a large majority over his Democratic opponent in the Seventeenth district, which is normally Democratic, while in the usually Republican Twenty-second district the Republican nominee, Mrs. Frances P. Bolton, running to succeed her deceased husband, was elected by almost two to one.

The significant phase of these bye elections is that the New Deal was put squarely at issue. Mrs. Bolton, carrying the usual handicap of a woman in politics, made but a single campaign speech, advocating "American common sense economy in government." McGregor likewise stressed the same thing, calling for return of "a common sense business judgment in Washington instead of theories and ideas."

If coming events cast their shadows before, here is substantial indication that the American people are sick and tired of the crackpot theories, the industry baiting and the burdensome costs of their national government, and purpose to put into effect a much-needed salutary change. The Ohio results are heartening, indeed, for all those who have been feeling that way.

Disproportionate Increases

GOVERNMENTAL COSTS can naturally be expected to increase as the population and resources expand. But one of the chief obstacles in part of that expansion lies in the fact that governmental costs in recent years have raced far and away ahead of the normal increase in population and resources.

Among the hundreds of pages of propaganda pouring daily through the mails upon the editorial desk comes a piece from the Tax Policy League of New York city pertaining to per capita state tax collections. It goes on to show that California heads the list with a per capita yield of $51.99, and that South Carolina tails it with a per capita yield of only $11.35. The average for the entire country was, last year, $29.83.

But the point of interest is the rate of increase. The total shown for 1936 is $2,576,062,761, while that for last year has jumped to $3,838,231,292. That is what you can call growth with a vengeance. Maryland is shown to have participated in the broad jump. The state tax yield for 1936 is shown at $29,626,955 as against $44,721,391 for last year. That, too, is ahead of the normal expansion in people and resources.

It is becoming more obvious day by day that these increases should be harmonized.

Enlarging a State

ASK the average person the area of Michigan, and if he looks it up the answer will be 57,980 square miles. This was considered correct a few weeks ago, but it is wrong today. Instead of ranking twenty-second among the states in area, Michigan is eighth, and is now the largest state east of the Mississippi river. Why has it taken more than 100 years to find this out?

Chase S. Osborn, former governor of the state, has for years endeavored to have federal authorities give Michigan what he considers its proper area rating. And he has at last convinced the authorities that the state has been belittled ever since it came into the union. He has contended that the area of Michigan should include all water and lake bottom under its jurisdiction as applied to the Great Lakes. It meant the inclusion of 16,653 square miles of Lake Superior; 12,922 of Lake Michigan; 9,925 of Lake Huron and 460 of Lake Erie—a total of 39,960 square miles. This gives Michigan a total of 97,940 square miles.

The new figure has been accepted by the federal Census Bureau, the United States Land Office and the Geological Survey, with the word that the change will be made in the 1940 census report and all other geographical information sent out of Washington.

Apparently Superfluous

CONSIDERABLE OPPOSITION is to be noticed among newspapers of the area that would be affected as well as elsewhere to the proposed federal canal to connect the Ohio river and Lake Erie at an estimated cost of $240,000,000.

The question of the economic justification of such a waterway is being raised. The only purpose to be served, objectors say, is to give the steel manufacturers of the Youngstown section cheap water transportation at the cost of the federal taxpayer.

The many objections lodged moved the president to request an opinion on the project from the Interstate Commerce Commission. That has been given. The opinion carries the conclusion that additional transportation facilities are not needed in the area the canal would serve, and that the principal beneficiaries would be a few large shippers and not the general public.

"Railroads, weakened by public provision of facilities for their competitors," the commission stated, "cannot respond as fully as they should to the needs of the public for efficient and safe transportation. In speaking of railroads, sight may not be lost of the effect of loss of traffic on employment, and on the scale of wages the railroads will be able to pay."

This proposal seems only another instance of a senseless squandering of public moneys upon things not absolutely needed rather than upon things which are really necessary. The country appears to have had entirely too many instances in kind. In view of the many miles of abandoned canals throughout the country—we have one of them right here in Maryland—it has been generally supposed that we had long since forged ahead of the old canal era.

Make Your Anger Profit

INSTEAD of sulking when you get mad, make up your mind to "show the world"—and you'll go places.

That's the common sense formula presented by Dale Carnegie, author of the famous book, How To Win Friends and Influence People, in an original article in Your Life Magazine.

Plenty of famous folk have done just that. Ernestine Schumann-Heink was one. Destitute, hungry, cold, she was on the point of taking her own life and the lives of her three small children when she determined to ask the director of the Hamburg opera for more and larger parts. Laughed at, she was angry—so angry that she "showed the world" that she was its greatest contralto.

Clarence Darrow, one of the most famous criminal lawyers of modern times, was another. Anger at a woman's belittling remark caused him to move suddenly from the little Ohio town where he was practicing law. Anger carried him on to the top of his profession.

A drugstore manager's bawling out of a young clerk was the stinging lash that kept Charles Walgren in the drug business and finally made him head of the vast chain which bears his name.

"The next time someone makes you angry," Mr. Carnegie counsels, "don't try to get even with him. Any fool can do that. Do something that fools never do—try to turn that emotion into a drive for self-improvement or self-advancement."

Pretty good advice.

The Milk Bottle

IT'S ONLY a broken milk bottle; never mind, the creamery furnishes them. How many articles in common use, like the milk bottle, are counted as costing nothing? The American people are the greatest wasters in the world.

Now consider this despised milk bottle. The Bureau of Dairy Industry of the United States Department of Agriculture has been watching the milk bottles. And it recently gave out some figures that prove the annual loss from broken or misplaced bottles totals close to $3,000,000. That is what milk bottle carelessness costs.

Who pays it? Somebody has to stand that loss. The bottles cost a little more than a nickel apiece. The manufacturers get their price for the bottles. Probably the farmers who sell the milk get a little less for their product. The bottles have to be paid for and something over 800,000,000 of them will be broken or lost in the course of this year.

And the part of the $3,000,000 loss that can not be charged back to the farmer must be paid by the consumer. Somebody has to pay the losses of a going concern. There is no profit in waste.

An old shoe, thrown at a Pennsylvania wedding, knocked the bridegroom unconscious. This after a time can be noticeable, even in a bridegroom.

Suggestive Case

It was only last week that Dr. Emil Altman, medical examiner for the New York Board of Education, reported a teacher who flunked the following: "If three apples cost five cents, how much would fifteen apples cost?" She filled many sheets of paper and had to give it up. This, of course, is not typical and is cited merely to suggest that grand and beautiful temples of education may be "whited sepulchres."

I received a disquieting reminder of this the other day from the friend who had made an automobile tour of the South, venturing into remote districts off the main highway. He was profoundly impressed by the many magnificent new school houses, built with federal funds. Some of them had marble facades, swimming pools, laboratories, gymnasiums, auditoriums and what not. WPA workmen had done a splendid job.

But there was a catch in it. There wasn't any education going on in these noble temples to Minerva. The boys in the backroom had seen to that. Federal money was to have been augmented by local funds to staff the schools and make them going concerns. Funds voted locally had been sluiced off into political channels. There isn't even money for heating and maintenance, to say nothing of teaching.

Works Differently

The Survey-Graphic study showed a depressing number of districts that could not even rise to the demands of a clean, weatherproof and comfortably heated one-room school. The current decline in the number of little red school-houses is attributed, however, to bus transportation, the consolidation of small districts and the development of a bigger and better school, with higher pay for teachers, with the larger resources of a wider community. That has worked well in many sections, particularly in California. In some instances it hasn't worked so well.

The little red school-house, a civic forum, as well as a school, where they used to have the Lyceum debates, was a center of political autonomy as well as a school. Political skullduggery doesn't do so well in small campass. Everybody knows everybody in the small puddle and it's harder to get away with anything. Flux the little district in a large school area, gear it into county politics and the alert self-sufficiency of the small unit is lost. That has happened here and there.

No doubt the little red schoolhouse is through. That being the case, it would be well to take a sharp look at what goes on behind the stately walls of its successor. We pay more money for education, per capita, than any people in the world. Are we getting our money's worth?—Copyright, 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Rep. Daniel A. Reed

Republican Daniel A. Reed, New York representative, declares he will risk all rather than answer "snooping" questions by census takers. He objects particularly to proposed questions on value of property, mortgages, interest rate and other queries on income, and declares he is confident parts of the census are unconstitutional.

THAT STARTLING RESEMBLANCE

Hull Is Firm on His Neutrality Thesis But Is Facing Opposition in Congress

Central Press Columnist

State Secretary Cordell Hull faces considerable opposition in Congress, as against his thesis that the United States is in no danger from either Chino-Japanese or the Russo-Finnish conflict; therefore that it would be a mistake for us to put our neutrality law in effect in either of these situations.

Cordell Hull

It generally is agreed that the Finn-Soviet fight doesn't endanger us immediately. There are plenty of critics, however, who argue that a complete Russian victory would threaten us ultimately And they take the view that Japan already threatens American interests on the Asiatic mainland and that the setting up of a Japanese-controlled government in China would involve us in trouble with Nippon in short order. In fact, it's pointed out that our relations with Tokio are strained at present.

At "Declared" War

There isn't any question that our neutrality law applies to the conflict between Britain and France versus Germany. The Allies and the Reich are at "declared" war.

Nominally, though, so far as we're concerned, Japan isn't at war with China, nor is Russia at war with Finland, because there haven't been any declarations. Nevertheless, we can announce that, as we see it, a "state of war" exists between the Japanese and the Chinese, and between the Russians and the Finns.

It's true that these wars actually are raging. Yet if we say that we recognize as much, we automatically imply that the Japanese and Russians are liars, because they deny it.

Japan's Ambitions

Now, I don't think anybody disputes that Japan not only is trying to conquer China but that the mikado's aim is to crowd all Occidental business out of Chinese territory. This includes American business. It's a commercial grab at America's expense, among other countries'.

Later it'll be worse if the Japanese develop ambitions in the Philippines, Alaska, Hawaii and maybe on the Latin-American west coast, which they've talked about hitherto. We'd have a stake, too, if they should take a liking to Hongkong, French Indo-China, possibly Australasia and the Dutch East Indies.

But these are remoter considerations; Uncle Sam's interest in China is pretty urgent.

To say that Japan is no threat to the United States strikes me as an exaggeration.

As to Russia

During the last World war I spent some time in Scandinavia.

At that stage of the game Russia was pro-Ally.

But Russia was looking ahead all the same. Its objective was the Norwegian port of Narvig, in northern Norway, on the Atlantic. That's the place it's shooting for today.

If Stalin gets Finland, he won't have far to go to get to Narvig. From there he'll have an Atlantic point to shoot from. I don't mean to exaggerate it as a base. Still, it's a possibility. And, anyway, a Stalinized Scandinavia would be a civilized headache.

For all these reasons there's a pretty strong sentiment on Capitol Hill in favor of a definite expression by Uncle Sam, outlining his position. It may seem as if neither Japan nor Russia should be offended by an outright announcement that we're neutral. Nevertheless, we'd be serving notice, in effect, that we know they're at war when they say they're not. Moreover, they'd know perfectly well that we consider them wanton aggressors. Besides, numerous congressmen want to shut off shipments of our supplies, particularly munitions, to these belligerents, which would be a great hardship to the Japanese; it wouldn't make so much difference to the Russians. However, the latter certainly would feel affronted.

Looking for Trouble?

Secretary Hull's view is that such a policy on our part simply would be looking for trouble, and he thinks there's no present necessity for us to do so. He has explained to our congressional foreign relations committees that he believes the state department has both the Russo-Finnish and Japanese-Chinese situations fully in hand, and he objects to any more legislative tinkering with it—at the current stage of the game, anyway.

Parenthetically, the executive branch of the United States government constitutionally is supposed to have a tolerably free hand in the management of our international affairs, and it's jealous of much interference by the legislators.

All the same, Secretary Hull's contention that neither the rumpus in Finland nor the one in China is potentially dangerous to Uncle Samuel is disputed by good-sized blocs of solons in both houses of congress.

Maryland Farm Musings

By the Extension Service of the University of Maryland

Maryland, as a state, ranks tenth among all states in the number of Percherons registered in 1939, and eleventh in the number of Percherons transferred in 1939. The Frederick County Fair ranked seventh in the United States in the number of purebred Percheron horses entered in its classes in 1939.

March 7 is the date selected for the annual Frederick county Percheron day. It will be held at the fair grounds and there will be classes for yearling colts, yearling fillies, two-year-old colts and two-year-old fillies. There will be a 4-H Club judging contest in the morning, as well as a contest in which adults will be invited to participate.

The annual meeting of the Maryland State Poultry Council will be held this year in Elkton on July 31. Important problems facing the industry will be taken up at the meeting and a banquet is being planned.

James M. Gwin, of the University of Maryland Poultry department, will be in charge of the poultry dressing and packing demonstrations at the Poultry Industry Exposition which will be held in Atlantic City from October 1 to 4, it is announced by Grant Jasper, president of the Northeastern Producers' Council. This will be the fifth all-poultry-industry exposition sponsored by the northeastern poultrymen, but the first to be held at Atlantic City.

On the Record

By Louis J. Taber, Master of the National Grange

While those who are charged with the responsibility of negotiating these so-called reciprocal trade agreements have repeatedly assured Congress and the country that they approach their task with great care and discrimination, there is no record available to the public to prove the truth of these assertions. Rates are changed without making public the reasons therefor, as was formerly done in recommendations and reports of the Tariff Commission. These changes in rates are made arbitrarily and often in the face of what appear to be convincing reasons presented by producers against the lowering of rates.—Louis J. Taber, Master, National Grange, before Ways and Means Committee, Jan. 25, 1940.

Pressure Politics

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

The power of pressure politics when well organized is illustrated in the continued success of the silver bloc.

Having succeeded through the shrewd manipulation of a small but well-knit voting minority in Congress, in committing the country to the fantastic program of undertaking to buy up most of the world's silver and bestowing a rich subsidy on the domestic silver mining industry, the silver senators now are making a surprisingly successful drive to keep the thing alive.

There is pending in the Senate the Townsend bill which would direct abandonment of the purchase of foreign silver. Every argument is on the side of this measure. The silver program has failed completely. Although the government has bought vast sums of silver at an inflated price, there is not even an approach toward the goal of building silver resources to one-third of the value of gold holdings. And none of the promised economical results of this hoarding of the metal have occurred, either. Yet the silver bloc still is fighting, and with some promise of success, against the Townsend bill, with no other argument to support its position than that to quit now would have seriously disturbing effects in China!

Thus pressure politics. The record is not a very flattering commentary on the current performance in Washington.

Diesels Can Make Defense Stronger

Hugh Johnson

Cincinnati, Feb. 29—The World war produced many new weapons and methods—flame, smoke, gas, tanks, zeps, mass air fighting, depth and air bombs, submarine detectors and so forth. Toward the end of it the "nut factory" (a committee set up to sift all new inventions and suggestions) began to study burrowing machines and mechanical trench diggers. Fighting was then on, under and over the sea and on and over the land. But, except for old-fashioned mining and trench digging by hand, the war hadn't yet gone underground.

None of the underground inventions seemed to promise much. The suggested machinery was too light to do much more than gimlet and scratch. That need no longer be the case. I think we shall see some real subterranean tactics if this war goes unhappily on.

Third in Succession

This is my third column in succession on astonishing developments made possible by the Diesel engine—in railroads, in generating electric power and now in digging and dirt moving. I didn't start on these three revolutionary developments on three successive days of a trip through some industrial plants—which suggests that there may be more in the making.

The reason why the World war burrowing and trenching machines couldn't be better was that there wasn't then any such compact and potent self-moving power plant as the modern Diesel engine to pull, push and heave. Even after it was well developed in this country, no engineers seemed to realize the weight and strength of the massive machinery that it could move and operate. Like the airplane, and nearly all inventions in agricultural machinery, that principal was recognized by an amateur who is now cashing in on it in a big way.

Heavy Work Done

I saw a yellow spidery-looking steel monsterdriven by a track-laying Diesel-powered tractor which can and does crunch its way into a forest and uproot trees up to twenty inches in diameter somewhat as you would pull a turnip. Beside it stood another land leviathan dragging steel hooks as massive as the heaviest anchor flukes. It can plow an eight foot furrow through rocky land and shale and leave it so thoroughly broken up that its neighbor, a super trench-digger, can follow it and leave behind the two a trench dug half as fast as a man can walk.

There is, in addition, a whole battery of these monsters—one to shape up the sides of an excavation, one to "bulldoze" away the tops of hillocks or move tons of dirt in almost any fashion and to almost any shape desired.

Equally Astonishing

Among this particular brood of behomoths there wasn't any tunneling machine, but a separate development in high speed, high power, earth boring machinery in the oil drilling industry is equally astonishing and, I suppose, equally applicable to the possible new technique of underground warfare. Maybe I am going Deisel-dippy. Maybe the opening up of this new mechanical field isn't as fascinating to the average reader as it is to me. Maybe these three columns were boring. I won't do it any more. I happened to be especially interested by experiences in all three fields—railroads, electrical power and technical warfare.

May Affect War

This latter aspect might greatly affect this war. For example, if the Finns were equipped with these tree jerking, mound building, trench digging mechanical miracles, they could build new rearward defensive lines as fast as the Russians could take the forward ones. If these developments are promptly utilized by the general staffs of all armies—including our own—they will enormously increase the strength of the defensive. That is a way to save both human lives and weaker nations from the massive power of all such international bullies as Hitler and Stalin—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

THE DAILY STORY

THE BRACELET

The Man Mary Ann Loves Deserves Everything, Even the Best Tricks in Her Repertoire.

By ELEANOR WILLIS

All traces of dinner had been removed. Everything had been neatly placed in its crevice or niche. The kitchenette apartment had again put on its mysterious noncommittal look. It had disowned all traces of a kitchen, and a visitor coming in for the first time would wonder if there were not more rooms to the apartment.

It was half an hour before Bill was due.

Mary Ann was putting the final lipstick on and trying to arrange an obstinate curl.

Betty, her roommate, looked up from her novel. "For heaven's sake, are you wearing that new dress tonight? You're not going anywhere special, are you?"

"Just a show or something I guess. Would you let me borrow that wide silver bracelet of yours?"

"O. K. It'll go well with that buckle." Betty was thoughtful for a moment. "Has that very personable young man of yours asked you to marry him yet, or should I mind my own business?"

"Well, no, not exactly," said Mary Ann.

"Now look here, my dear little innocent, it's about time you pull a couple of rabbits out of a hat and snag him."

"Oh, now, Betty——" but Mary Ann was shouted down.

"Yes, I know what you're going to say. You don't want to use any tricks on the man you love. He can take you as you are or not at all."

"That's right," Mary Ann's tone showed annoyance.

"Well, I was only trying to say that a little harmless psychology sometimes goes a long, long way." Betty turned back to her novel.

Mary Ann picked up a magazine and absently turned the pages. Again she began to wonder about Bill. She had been seeing him for about four months off and on. Lately he had been taking her out consistently. Not a word about how he felt about her had crossed his lips.

And now—she did not dare tell this to Betty—his attention seemed to be flagging. As far as putting any kind of an act on for him—well, she not only wouldn't do it, but she couldn't. She wasn't that kind of person.

The doorbell rang. Mary Ann opened the door instantly. Smiling, Bill entered. He was tall, blond, and attractive.

"Say, Mary Ann, I hope you don't mind my being early. There's a mind reader at one of the downtown theatres. If we leave now we can just make the last show.

"Hello," said Betty, looking up from her story. "I don't know what either one of you have for that guy to read—but don't let me spoil your fun."

Mary Ann and Bill arrived just before the last show was to go on.

Swami, the Impressive Eye, strode onto the stage swathed in Oriental finery. The master of ceremonies introduced him to the audience.

"And now," continued the master of ceremonies, "I shall walk through the audience. If any of you care to submit articles. Swami will tell your fortune. He tells only what you are doing. He does not forecast the future."

The man walked down from the stage. As he passed Mary Ann, who was sitting in a seat on the aisle, she took Betty's bracelet from her arm and submitted it for Swami's scrutiny. It was taken up to the stage and laid on a table.

She and Bill waited with amused curiosity until Swami picked up the bracelet.

As he had done with the other objects submitted to him, he looked at the bracelet with great intensity.

Swami Picked Up the Bracelet

"The owner of this bracelet is a very intelligent young lady. She is very clever in her method of handling men."

Mary Ann nodded an unconscious assent. Bill looked at her intensely. She did not notice. She was interested in what else Swami had to say about Betty.

"This bracelet," continued the Swami, "was given this young lady by a tall, dark young man. He is very much in love with her. He wants to marry her. She has not made up her mind as yet."

Mary Ann leaned over to Bill. "This man is really good."

Bill glowered at her.

"This young lady is fond of reading, and looks well in green." He gave the bracelet back to the master of ceremonies, who brought it to Mary Ann.

For a few moments Mary Ann paid no attention to the stage. She was so amazed at the accuracy with which the story of Betty and John Brandow had been told.

Bill's voice brought her back to reality.

"A—Ah Mary Ann, do you mind terribly if we don't stay for the rest of the show?"

"Why, no, of course not."

Bill took her to a quaint little restaurant. The orchestra was playing a Strauss waltz. Mary Ann loved Strauss waltzes, and it was not until the music was over and they had placed their order that she realized Bill had uttered hardly a word since they left the theater.

He was usually so sauve and smooth, so gay and amusing. She looked at him. He seemed worried.

"What's the matter, Bill?" she said.

"Well, look, Mary Ann. I know I'm not the greatest catch in the world—but I am awfully in love with you. Will you marry me?" And then he sighed, as if he had relieved himself of a heavy burden.

Mary Ann gasped.

"Oh, I know you're thinking about that other guy. But you're not in love with him if you can't make up your mind."

"What other guy?" asked Mary Ann, innocently.

"Oh you know as well as I. That guy who gave you the bracelet."

Then Mary Ann remembered. She had never told Bill the bracelet belonged to Betty.

"Try and make up your mind by the end of the week, darling. Just because I'm so sure of myself, is no reason you should have to tell me right away."

Mary Ann did not explain about the bracelet. Betty's wisdom had influenced her. She thought she might tell him later. But not now.

That night when she arrived back at her apartment, Betty was asleep.

Mary Ann woke her up and told her everything.

When the story was finished, and the congratulations over, Betty said, "But—Mary Ann, that isn't exactly honest," and she smiled the amused smile of a wise woman.

Mary Ann said, "I know it isn't, Betty."

"Well, I'll tell you what," said Betty, "to keep you from being too dishonest I'll make you a present of the bracelet."

One safe course is to set out to change the bully, making him welcome in your home, ascertaining his interests and aptitudes, helping him acquire skills at play and craftsmanship, hiring him to run errands, praising him honestly before his parents and inducing him to become a Boy Scout.

Good Dividends

Civilize the roughneck of the neighborhood and see what you have done, not only for him but also for yourself and your own child. This principle applies to the child who, by pilfering and destroying property, is considered a pest in the neighborhood. Just to ostracize this boy doesn't help him; rather, it makes him worse. A few parents working together can make over such a child, rendering him a safer and fitter playmate for their children. Of course, there is a limit to patience and physical energy.

Few parents recognize the bully in their own child. Those who do can help this child with more love and affection to gain more successes in worthy ways, so he feels more worth while. Often they can do much for the bully by giving him boxing lessons so he can overcome his fears and feel no further need of attacking smaller, weaker children to demonstrate his courage.

club, told of his 10-year-old son who, after a long siege of intimidation by a boy two years older, gave this bully such a trouncing that no one bothered him thereafter.

One safe course is to set out to change the bully, making him welcome in your home, ascertaining his interests and aptitudes, helping him acquire skills at play and craftsmanship, hiring him to run errands, praising him honestly before his parents and inducing him to become a Boy Scout.

Good Dividends

Civilize the roughneck of the neighborhood and see what you have done, not only for him but also for yourself and your own child. This principle applies to the child who, by pilfering and destroying property, is considered a pest in the neighborhood. Just to ostracize this boy doesn't help him; rather, it makes him worse. A few parents working together can make over such a child, rendering him a safer and fitter playmate for their children. Of course, there is a limit to patience and physical energy.

Few parents recognize the bully in their own child. Those who do can help this child with more love and affection to gain more successes in worthy ways, so he feels more worth while. Often they can do much for the bully by giving him boxing lessons so he can overcome his fears and feel no further need of attacking smaller, weaker children to demonstrate his courage.

What Do Your Shoulders Say?

By HELEN FOLLETT

HAIR, complexion and fingernails get plenty of attention. Home work is done on them, and they get professional care often. The average girl pays heed to her figure; she weeps if hips take on a spread or the armlets are skinny, worries over fatted calves or an overdeveloped upper story. But one item she is likely to overlook, and that is the pair of shoulders she's starting round with her.

The body speaks with the shoulders. Square them and you look fighty. Let them droop and you look sad. Shrug 'em and you are supercilious and haughty. Lazy girls, too inert to keep their back bones strong and steady, get plump shoulders that make them appear chunky.

If, because of lack of exercise, the shoulders have become muscle-bound, do this for five minutes night and morning:

Stand erect, tummy flat, chest expanded, hands at the side. With wrists free and fingers separated, bring the hands above the head, slapping the backs together. Send them out at the sides with a good old muscle pull and bring them down at the sides to first position. It is a sort of flying movement. Use the arms as if they were wings; make a full, wide sweep of each movement.

After ten swings, pause, take three long deep breaths. Way down to the soles of your shoes. Then at it again.

Liver spots and moth patches are enough to drive one crazy. Fortunately, they come late in life when a woman has learned to bear burdens with courage and fortitude. If that's any help.

They are caused by changes in the skin pigment; just why these changes take place nobody knows. The best means of getting after them is to use a proprietary bleach. We cannot give formulas for such preparations because they cannot very well be compounded by the amateur cosmetic mixer.

Exposure to wind and strong sunlight makes these blemishes more pronounced, so follow a policy of protection.

BONITA GRANVILLE . . . has trim, beautiful shoulders.

Her Child or Her Fiance?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

When I first knew George and we went around and had good times, dining and dancing together, I didnt' think it necessary to tell him all about my past life. He knew I had been divorced, but I didn't say anything about my little daughter, aged seven, who was living with my mother. Her father pays $5 a week for her support. In the meantime my mother died and Clarice, my little girl, is now living with me.

My fiance objects to her sharing our future home and says that with her father's allowance she can be placed in an excellent school. In fact he has made an issue of this and says if Clarice lives with us the engagement must be broken, as he will not tolerate another man's child under our roof. I'm worried to death about the whole matter and don't know what to do.

MISERABLE.

It seems to me it wouldn't take long to decide to send away such a lover as the one you describe. A man who makes no allowance for the maternal instinct will make no allowances for anything else in life. And no woman is really happy with a jealous man.

Even if you decide to put your little daughter in school, I hope you'll marry a man of another type.

His Mother Never Liked Her

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a girl of 21 years, and have been going steady for four years with a boy 24 years old. A few months ago he began to get moody and now says we are not getting on well enough to be serious, and he says he is doubtful if I am the right girl. I don't drink or smoke, and have been true to him.

Another girl is trying to get him, and she is well aware of the fact that we've been going together all these years. However, I have broken up with him and am miserable over the whole thing. I feel that if he is still interested he will come back. He is inclined to be selfish and says it is another girl, but I wonder. His mother never liked me, but why, I don't know, because I never see her, and I know I've never done anything to be ashamed of, and have really kept him straight.

BETTE.

It seems to me your problem with this young man comes under the heading of a blessing in disguise. You tell me he is moody, that his mother never liked you, and he's doubtful whether you're the right girl. All this looks to me as if he were working up a case against you.

Well, my dear, what's the matter with showing him you're the right girl for someone else? When a potential mother-in-law begins acting up before there has even been a marriage, it's certainly time for a girl to watch her step.

Can Follow Example

You may serve the hostess first or not at your dinner, as you wish. However, if the dish being served is unusual, or if the guests may not know how much of it to take, it is a good idea for the hostess to be served first and the guests can follow her example.

Stay a While

Try not to introduce two strangers to each other and then leave them immediately. Stay with them for a little while, if possible, and try to make them feel acquainted by giving them some clew to mutual interests.

Opinions Divide At Group Meeting On Fate of Home

Since woman's horizons have broadened beyond the four walls of her home and many of the functions are taken over by other agencies, as the churches and schools, the American Home is "disintegrating", according to Mrs. A. L. Rogers, speaker at the panel discussion of the American Home group of the Woman's Civic Club yesterday afternoon at Girl Scout headquarters, Greene street.

The modern trend to easier divorces and fewer home ties of all kinds, the desire to get in the car and go places, all lead us from home, Mrs. Rogers averred.

Foundation Weakened

The very foundation of home is weakened, Mrs. Harry B. Simpson said, by so many selfish marriages. Marriages where children are not wanted and are sent to nursery schools, and cared for only by servants, being allowed to follow their own tendencies. The farmer and his son used to do the plowing together, talking as they worked, becoming more companionable, having more common interests, but today the labor saving devices have changed this. Many have moved to town, living in cramped quarters and the children are forced to play on the street or go to movies. There is no longer a "place at home" Mrs. Simpson said.

The discontent at home was stressed in the desire to do something thrilling, driving fast and far, and being away from home for long periods, all of which were cited as tending to destroy family life. Even the schools take the place of the home with their social and sport activities, it was noted.

Too Many Divorces

Mrs. Simpson also said that the economic independence of women today is another factor which loosens her interest in her home. She stated that 3,124 divorces were granted in Florida alone this year and that one out of six marriages today end in divorce. Reno now is known as the biggest little city in the world all because the couples are not willing to share the burdens of marriage.

Mrs. Nellie Wilson Footer and Mrs. Walter B. Johnson rose in defence of the home. Mrs. Footer admitted, "one is apt to be sentimental at the very word 'home'". After all, she stated, home is the keystone for happiness, not only of one nation, but of the world. It is through science that civilization is beginning to comprehend the magnitude of right thinking and right acting and their relations to each other.

Bright Future Seen

From a recent survey, many see a bright future, when the young people of today instructed in home psychology would apply it to the rearing of their children, Mrs. Footer said. Women of the past, with few exceptions, did accept the dictates of the men folk but today they are thinking for themselves.

The idea of mother in an arm chair wearing a lace cap, has given place to mother playing golf or wearing an aviatrix helmet, the speaker said. Outwardly she has changed, her life has broadened, but home is still her greatest treasure. Knowing succeeding generations as well as the present one will reap the success. Parents are trying hard to be companionable, exerting self discipline and mutual regard.

Have Much in Common

Mrs. Footer said members of the family of today have much in common, with picnics, swimming parties and the like. The parent-teachers associations are examples of splendid cooperation between home and school. The children are treated as miniature adults so that they develop a broader outlook. The high school jitterbug may shag all over the place to a hot number, but it also enjoys a ballad. Johan Strauss shocked society with the waltz. The girls of today want jobs, but in a couple of years are ready to trade them for a home.

The Y.M.C.A., Salvation Army, Scouts and social service organizations, all with the aid of science build good families and communities, Mrs. Footer declared. She defended the movies and pointed out how censorship and public demand make family pictures and shows, such as the Judge Hardy series and "Little Women." The popularity of the radio, too, keeps the family home.

There is, Mrs. Footer asserted, a definite swing toward united home resulting in home entertainment and family group around the piano.

"Home is still the basic unit," Mrs. Footer said. "Our homes are not disintegrating but strengthening by the powerful under current for good. Our homes are changing for the better."

THERE ARE some kinds of hands you don't expect to see as often as the 29th of February rolls around. When they do arrive, you are likely to miss the point on them, but you are not likely to forget them. The only trouble about what you learn from them is that you will have to wait an inordinate time before you can use it. Unless, of course, it makes you more alert to probe the possibilities of other unusual combinations and types that come along.

That was pretty bizarre bidding, especially South's 3-No Trump call as soon as he heard about the spades, counting on running a lot of clubs. As it turned out, South could have made his small slam contract, in view of the defense he got, but he fumbled it.

West, who had restrained himself from doubling, led his diamond A. When South false-carded with the diamond 9, West read his partner's 6 as possibly an encouraging card from a hand also containing the 4, and so repeated the diamond suit with the 2.

South, disgusted at his own bad bidding, saw that his club string was blocked, as he had no re-entries to his hand. So he took four diamond tricks, discarding useless spades and hearts on them, then four club tricks in dummy and two major aces, conceding a two-trick set.

It then dawned on him that he could have discarded the dummy's four high clubs on his diamond tricks, then run his own clubs and made his contract.

What Do Your Shoulders Say?

By HELEN FOLLETT

BONITA GRANVILLE . . . has trim, beautiful shoulders.

HAIR, complexion and fingernails get plenty of attention. Home work is done on them, and they get professional care often. The average girl pays heed to her figure; she weeps if hips take on a spread or the armlets are skinny, worries over fatted calves or an overdeveloped upper story. But one item she is likely to overlook, and that is the pair of shoulders she's tarting round with her.

The body speaks with the shoulders. Square them and you look lighty. Let them droop and you look sad. Shrug 'em and you are supercilious and haughty. Lazy girls, too inert to keep their back bones strong and steady, get plump shoulders that make them appear chunky.

If, because of lack of exercise, the shoulders have become muscle-bound, do this for five minutes night and morning:

Stand erect, tummy flat, chest expanded, hands at the side. With wrists free and fingers separated, bring the hands above the head, slapping the backs together. Send them out at the sides with a good old muscle pull and bring them down at the sides to first position. It is a sort of flying movement. Use the arms as if they were wings; make a full, wide sweep of each movement.

After ten swings, pause, take three long deep breaths. Way down to the soles of your shoes. Then at it again.

Liver spots and moth patches are enough to drive one crazy. Fortunately, they come late in life when a woman has learned to bear burdens with courage and fortitude. If that's any help.

They are caused by changes in the skin pigment; just why these changes take place nobody knows. The best means of getting after them is to use a proprietary bleach. We cannot give formulas for such preparations because they cannot very well be compounded by the amateur cosmetic mixer.

Exposure to wind and strong sunlight makes these blemishes more pronounced, so follow a policy of protection.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed, 1939, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Her Child or Her Fiance?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

When I first knew George and we went around and had good times, dining and dancing together, I didnt' think it necessary to tell him all about my past life. He knew I had been divorced, but I didn't say anything about my little daughter, aged seven, who was living with my mother. Her father pays $5 a week for her support. In the meantime my mother died and Clarice, my little girl, is now living with me.

My fiance objects to her sharing our future home and says that with her father's allowance she can be placed in an excellent school. In fact he has made an issue of this and says if Clarice lives with us the engagement must be broken, as he will not tolerate another man's child under our roof. I'm worried to death about the whole matter and don't know what to do.

MISERABLE.

It seems to me it wouldn't take long to decide to send away such a lover as the one you describe. A man who makes no allowance for the maternal instinct will make no allowances for anything else in life. And no woman is really happy with a jealous man.

Even if you decide to put your little daughter in school, I hope you'll marry a man of another type.

His Mother Never Liked Her

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a girl of 21 years, and have been going steady for four years with a boy 24 years old. A few months ago he began to get moody and now says we are not getting on well enough to be serious, and he says he is doubtful if I am the right girl. I don't drink or smoke, and have been true to him.

Another girl is trying to get him, and she is well aware of the fact that we've been going together all these years. However, I have broken up with him and am miserable over the whole thing. I feel that if he is still interested he will come back. He is inclined to be selfish and says it is another girl, but I wonder. His mother never liked me, but why, I don't know, because I never see her, and I know I've never done anything to be ashamed of, and have really kept him straight.

BETTE.

It seems to me your problem with this young man comes under the heading of a blessing in disguise. You tell me he is moody, that his mother never liked you, and he's doubtful whether you're the right girl. All this looks to me as if he were working up a case against you.

Well, my dear, what's the matter with showing him you're the right girl for someone else? When a potential mother-in-law begins acting up before there has even been a marriage, it's certainly time for a girl to watch her step.

Can Follow Example

You may serve the hostess first or not at your dinner, as you wish. However, if the dish being served is unusual, or if the guests may not know how much of it to take, it is a good idea for the hostess to be served first and the guests can follow her example.

Stay a While

Try not to introduce two strangers to each other and then leave them immediately. Stay with them for a little while, if possible, and try to make them feel acquainted by giving them some clew to mutual interests.

Opinions Divide At Group Meeting On Fate of Home

Since woman's horizons have broadened beyond the four walls of her home and many of the functions are taken over by other agencies, as the churches and schools, the American Home is "disintegrating", according to Mrs. A. L. Rogers, speaker at the panel discussion of the American Home group of the Woman's Civic Club yesterday afternoon at Girl Scout headquarters, Greene street.

The modern trend to easier divorces and fewer home ties of all kinds, the desire to get in the car and go places, all lead us from home, Mrs. Rogers averred.

Foundation Weakened

The very foundation of home is weakened, Mrs. Harry B. Simpson said, by so many selfish marriages. Marriages where children are not wanted and are sent to nursery schools, and cared for only by servants, being allowed to follow their own tendencies. The farmer and his son used to do the plowing together, talking as they worked, becoming more companionable, having more common interests, but today the labor saving devices have changed this. Many have moved to town, living in cramped quarters and the children are forced to play on the street or go to movies. There is no longer a "place at home" Mrs. Simpson said.

The discontent at home was stressed in the desire to do something thrilling, driving fast and far, and being away from home for long periods, all of which were cited as tending to destroy family life. Even the schools take the place of the home with their social and sport activities, it was noted.

Too Many Divorces

Mrs. Simpson also said that the economic independence of women today is another factor which loosens her interest in her home. She stated that 3,124 divorces were granted in Florida alone this year and that one out of six marriages today end in divorce. Reno now is known as the biggest little city in the world all because the couples are not willing to share the burdens of marriage.

Mrs. Nellie Wilson Footer and Mrs. Walter B. Johnson rose in defence of the home. Mrs. Footer admitted, "one is apt to be sentimental at the very word 'home'". After all, she stated, home is the keystone for happiness, not only of one nation, but of the world. It is through science that civilization is beginning to comprehend the magnitude of right thinking and right acting and their relations to each other.

Bright Future Seen

From a recent survey, many see a bright future, when the young people of today instructed in home psychology would apply it to the rearing of their children, Mrs. Footer said. Women of the past, with few exceptions, did accept the dictates of the men folk but today they are thinking for themselves.

The idea of mother in an arm chair wearing a lace cap, has given place to mother playing golf or wearing an aviatrix helmet, the speaker said. Outwardly she has changed, her life has broadened, but home is still her greatest treasure. Knowing succeeding generations as well as the present one will reap the success. Parents are trying hard to be companionable, exerting self discipline and mutual regard.

Have Much in Common

Mrs. Footer said members of the family of today have much in common, with picnics, swimming parties and the like. The parent-teachers associations are examples of splendid cooperation between home and school. The children are treated as miniature adults so that they develop a broader outlook. The high school jitterbug may shag all over the place to a hot number, but it also enjoys a ballad. Johan Strauss shocked society with the waltz. The girls of today want jobs, but in a couple of years are ready to trade them for a home.

The Y.M.C.A., Salvation Army, Scouts and social service organizations, all with the aid of science build good families and communities, Mrs. Footer declared. She defended the movies and pointed out how censorship and public demand make family pictures and shows, such as the Judge Hardy series and "Little Women." The popularity of the radio, too, keeps the family home.

There is, Mrs. Footer asserted, a definite swing toward united home resulting in home entertainment and family group around the piano.

"Home is still the basic unit," Mrs. Footer said. "Our homes are not disintegrating but strengthening by the powerful under current for good. Our homes are changing for the better."

"The Authority on Authorities"

ONCE IN FOUR YEARS

THERE ARE some kinds of hands you don't expect to see as often as the 29th of February rolls around. When they do arrive, you are likely to miss the point on them, but you are not likely to forget them. The only trouble about what you learn from them is that you will have to wait an inordinate time before you can use it. Unless, of course, it makes you more alert to probe the possibilities of other unusual combinations and types that come along.

That was pretty bizarre bidding, especially South's 3-No Trump call as soon as he heard about the spades, counting on running a lot of clubs. As it turned out, South could have made his small slam contract, in view of the defense he got, but he fumbled it.

West, who had restrained himself from doubling, led his diamond A. When South false-carded with the diamond 9, West read his partner's 6 as possibly an encouraging card from a hand also containing the 4, and so repeated the diamond suit with the 2.

South, disgusted at his own bad bidding, saw that his club string was blocked, as he had no re-entries to his hand. So he took four diamond tricks, discarding useless spades and hearts on them, then four club tricks in dummy and two major aces, conceding a two-trick set.

It then dawned on him that he could have discarded the dummy's four high clubs on his diamond tricks, then run his own clubs and made his contract.

After East opens this deal with 1-Club, how should North and South bid to reach the best contract?

Predictions of Steel Production Increases Send Many Stocks Up

Better Aircraft Business Also Helps Bolster Market

New York, Feb. 28 (AP) — Reports of advancing aircraft production and predictions of better days for steel manufacturing spurred their representative stocks into a rise today which carried the entire market upward.

The Associated Press average of 60 selected stocks rose .1 of a point to 49.7. Transactions totaled 567,710 shares compared with 510,030 yesterday. It was the fourth consecutive advance in the amount of daily trade.

Some sources professed to see British liquidation of securities in the intermittent selling bursts. However, the very fact of the small total transactions indicated no great amount of this type of selling.

Leaders in the upswing were Douglas, United Aircraft, Martin, Pan American Airways, U. S. Steel, Chrysler, Allied Chemical, Eastman, Dupont, International Nickel, Phelps Dodge, American Telephone, Standard Oil of N. J., and Santa Fe.

New highs for the year were set by Loft, Interborough Rapid Transit and Brooklyn & Queens Transit preferred.

Improved quotations in the Curb were recorded for Thew Shovel, Sherwin Williams, Aluminum Ltd., Creole Petroleum and Phoenix Securities. Transactions totaled 121,000 shares compared with 122,000 yesterday.

Predictions of Steel Production Increases Send Many Stocks Up

Better Aircraft Business Also Helps Bolster Market

New York, Feb. 28 (AP) — Reports of advancing aircraft production and predictions of better days for steel manufacturing spurred their representative stocks into a rise today which carried the entire market upward.

The Associated Press average of 60 selected stocks rose .1 of a point to 49.7. Transactions totaled 567,710 shares compared with 510,030 yesterday. It was the fourth consecutive advance in the amount of daily trade.

Some sources professed to see British liquidation of securities in the intermittent selling bursts. However, the very fact of the small total transactions indicated no great amount of this type of selling.

Leaders in the upswing were Douglas, United Aircraft, Martin, Pan American Airways, U. S. Steel, Chrysler, Allied Chemical, Eastman, Dupont, International Nickel, Phelps Dodge, American Telephone, Standard Oil of N. J., and Santa Fe.

New highs for the year were set by Loft, Interborough Rapid Transit and Brooklyn & Queens Transit preferred.

Improved quotations in the Curb were recorded for Thew Shovel, Sherwin Williams, Aluminum Ltd., Creole Petroleum and Phoenix Securities. Transactions totaled 121,000 shares compared with 122,000 yesterday.

Roosevelt Sends Memorandum to President of Chile

Santiago, Chile, Feb. 28 (AP)—President Roosevelt has sent a confidential memorandum to Chile outlining a post-war plan of economic organization and disarmament, it has been reported in informed quarters.

The plan, which some circles said they believed had a connection with Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles' European tour, was reported submitted with a view to getting the reaction of neutral nations, and particularly the opinion of the South American Republics.

Sources which reported submission of the memorandum refused to outline its details, and United States embassy officials refused to comment on the reports.

Informed quarters said, however, that Chile likely would reply within a week.

Expert Guess on Coal Output Is Close

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 28 (AP)—An expert's guess—in August—of the total coal production for the state in 1939 missed by just one day's production.

H. G. Houtz, department of mines engineer gauging the uncertainties before the industry when the late-year rise got under way, estimated tonnage would reach 108,000,000.

The official figures show 108,515,655 tons.

Production for 1938 totaled 93,511,000 tons and for 1937, 118,965,000 tons.

Hunt for Faster Planes Brings War within War

Struggle Is To Keep Pursuers Speedier than Bombers

BY DEVON FRANCIS
AP Aviation Editor

New York, — Airplanes faster than any the world has seen in the 37 years of powered flight probably will go into action this spring in the war between Germany and the Allies.

The quest for more speed in military planes was dramatized during the rearmament race preceding the war. It has been intensified in the last six months.

Warring nations and nations apprehensive of war, want more speed for reasons obvious even to the common citizen who digs into his pocket to pay for faster flying lethal instruments. Less obvious, however, has been the nip-and tuck struggle for added speed between bombing and fighting planes.

Why and Wherefores

Let's take an air war apart and see why.

It's a principal of air warfare that an attacking plane must be faster than its target. Keeping pursuit speeds above bomber speeds in 1914-18 was not a critical problem. Big, clumsy and equipped with engines of limited power, the bombers nexitably were slower than the small, more cleanly designed pursuit ships.

Top bomber speeds then were about 112 miles an hour. Pursuits had been boosted to almost 150 miles an hour at the time of the armistice.

But between that war and the present one something happened to the bomber. In place of all the struts, bracing wires and chicken-coop fuselages came smooth, clean cantilever wings and crew housing shaped more or less like a teardrop.

More important, perhaps, was a sensational increase in engine power from less than 1,000 horse-power to more than 2,000 with a tremendous saving in weight. The old American Liberty V-12 engine delivered 400 horsepower and weighed more than 800 pounds. Today's engines develop a horsepower for little more than a pound of weight.

The Bigger, The Easier

So bombers began doubling, even trebling, in speed. Small fighter planes, on the other hand, gained speed more slowly. That was due to many factors, among them the large size of the fuselage in relation to the wing, and their tricky handling characteristics.

Curiously enough, it was easier for designers to reduce the overall wind resistance of bombers than of fighters for a given amount of wing-spread and engine power. It was easier to make them less liable to sudden spins and stalls. The stability and ease of flying of today's Curtiss Hawk, for example, have helped that plane give such a credit-albe account of itself in the French air force.

Before this war started a bomber capable of only 250 miles an hour was obsolescent. The British Blenheim bomber developed a top speed of almost 300 miles an hour, and the German Junkers JU-88 almost 325. The American Douglas "DR-7" now being sent to France, was described as having a top speed "far in excess" of 300 miles an hour.

Meanwhile the International Aeronautical Engineers battle for greater pursuit speeds went on. The German Heinkel "HE-112" was reported to have a top speed of 358 miles an hour., the British Spitfire, 362, the French Morane, 315. The new twin-engine German Messerschmidt hoosted the ante to around 380.

Top Speed Is Different

In the United States, experimental pursuit speeds have been pushed beyond 400 miles an hour, and one type of pursuit capable of delivering that is now in production for the Army Air corps.

That, of course, is the top speed. Service speeds, those at which an airplane can fly hour after hour without damage to the engine, would be considerably less. Moreover, a good deal of misimformation on air speeds has been given currency lately by the failure to designate the altitudes at which top speeds are achieved.

Air forces need speed for both tactical and equality reasons. When a new, speedier airplane was introduced during the last European war, it usually established a temporary air superiority for the side that developed it. Tactically, speed supplies the element of surprise in attacks and gives a place that much added safety.

Unless the warring nations pull something new out of the hat speed can be achieved only by a combination of (1) small wing area, which increases the hazards of takeoffs, and landings, (2) cleanliness of design and (3) greater power, which brings in its train a whole family of prickly engineering problems.

Compressibility Burble

Deterrents to speed also include what engineers call "compressibility burble," in which the air piles up ahead of the wing, loses its smooth flow and therefore destroys lift.

Nevertheless, engineers are shooting for speeds of 500 miles an hour before the close of the year. Both sides, in the war probably are keeping an ace card face down on the table. Only the other day the British air ministry hinted of a new and faster pursuit.

Here's a German bombing plane of a type capable of a speed of 325 miles an hour.

If both these planes started from San Francisco at the same time, the 400-mile craft would reach New York in around six and a half hours, the slower one would require a bit more than 8 hours.

Shanty Boatmen Long for Spring

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 28. (AP)—When spjringtime comes to the rivers it will gladden the hearts of the shanty boatmen, but most of them will answer the wanderlust with a tighter tug on the hausers.

Up and down the state's streams hundreds of homes-on-water are tied at the banks, and if the word of the Elk clan is that of the others, they'll stay there.

To leave, said the Charleston brethren, will mean departing from relief checks, which small, nevertheless insure an existence.

That, of course, doesn't speak for the more affluent river dwellers, some of them living in comparative luxury on motor boats. The usual shantyboat is without means of propulsion—except the hand on the oars.

Boatmen here thrown some light on something most West Virginians have noticed—why the shantyboats are thickest at the mouth of the rivers.

At the place the rivers meet, said the veterans, the current is weaker than upstream. The strain on the ropes is less.

Prisoner Identified As One of Cross Gangsters

Oil City, Pa., Feb. 28 (AP)—District Attorney Maurice P. Breene, of Venango county, has identified Lester Lewis Corey, 52, held by FBI agents in Detroit, as a member of the notorious "Cross brothers" gang of western Pennsylvania.

Corey is under joint indictment here for several robberies with the Cross brothers, one of whom since has been slain in South Dakota, and the other captured and sentenced in Ohio.

Breene said the brothers, David L. Cross, 28, and Paul Cross, 22, and their associates conducted a reign of terror in this community late in 1937 which culminated in the Crosses' shooting their way clear when trapped by police in a roadhouse near Grove City.

Roosevelt Sends Memorandum to President of Chile

Santiago, Chile, Feb. 28 (AP)—President Roosevelt has sent a confidential memorandum to Chile outlining a post-war plan of economic organization and disarmament, it has been reported in informed quarters.

The plan, which some circles said they believed had a connection with Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles' European tour, was reported submitted with a view to getting the reaction of neutral nations, and particularly the opinion of the South American Republics.

Sources which reported submission of the memorandum refused to outline its details, and United States embassy officials refused to comment on the reports.

Informed quarters said, however, that Chile likely would reply within a week.

Expert Guess on Coal Output Is Close

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 28 (AP)—An expert's guess—in August—of the total coal production for the state in 1939 missed by just one day's production.

H. G. Houtz, department of mines engineer gauging the uncertainties before the industry when the late-year rise got under way, estimated tonnage would reach 108,000,000.

The official figures show 108,515,655 tons.

Production for 1938 totaled 93,511,000 tons and for 1937, 118,965,000 tons.

Struggle Is To Keep Pursuers Speedier than Bombers

BY DEVON FRANCIS
AP Aviation Editor

New York, — Airplanes faster than any the world has seen in the 37 years of powered flight probably will go into action this spring in the war between Germany and the Allies.

The quest for more speed in military planes was dramatized during the rearmament race preceding the war. It has been intensified in the last six months.

Warring nations and nations apprehensive of war, want more speed for reasons obvious even to the common citizen who digs into his pocket to pay for faster flying lethal instruments. Less obvious, however, has been the nip-and tuck struggle for added speed between bombing and fighting planes.

Why and Wherefores

Let's take an air war apart and see why.

It's a principal of air warfare that an attacking plane must be faster than its target. Keeping pursuit speeds above bomber speeds in 1914-18 was not a critical problem. Big, clumsy and equipped with engines of limited power, the bombers nexitably were slower than the small, more cleanly designed pursuit ships.

Top bomber speeds then were about 112 miles an hour. Pursuits had been boosted to almost 150 miles an hour at the time of the armistice.

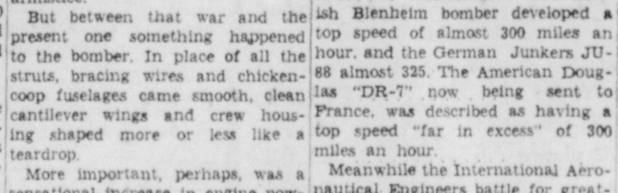

But between that war and the present one something happened to the bomber. In place of all the struts, bracing wires and chicken-coop fuselages came smooth, clean cantilever wings and crew housing shaped more or less like a teardrop.

More important, perhaps, was a sensational increase in engine power from less than 1,000 horse-power to more than 2,000 with a tremendous saving in weight. The old American Liberty V-12 engine delivered 400 horsepower and weighed more than 800 pounds. Today's engines develop a horsepower for little more than a pound of weight.

The Bigger, The Easier

So bombers began doubling, even trebling, in speed. Small fighter planes, on the other hand, gained speed more slowly. That was due to many factors, among them the large size of the fuselage in relation to the wing, and their tricky handling characteristics.

Curiously enough, it was easier for designers to reduce the overall wind resistance of bombers than of fighters for a given amount of wing-spread and engine power. It was easier to make them less liable to sudden spins and stalls. The stability and ease of flying of today's Curtiss Hawk, for example, have helped that plane give such a credit-albe account of itself in the French air force.

If both these planes started from San Francisco at the same time, the 400-mile craft would reach New York in around six and a half hours, the slower one would require a bit more than 8 hours.

Before this war started a bomber capable of only 250 miles an hour was obsolescent. The British Blenheim bomber developed a top speed of almost 300 miles an hour, and the German Junkers JU-88 almost 325. The American Douglas "DR-7" now being sent to France, was described as having a top speed "far in excess" of 300 miles an hour.

Meanwhile the International Aeronautical Engineers battle for greater pursuit speeds went on. The German Heinkel "HE-112" was reported to have a top speed of 358 miles an hour., the British Spitfire, 362, the French Morane, 315. The new twin-engine German Messerschmidt hoosted the ante to around 380.

Top Speed Is Different

In the United States, experimental pursuit speeds have been pushed beyond 400 miles an hour, and one type of pursuit capable of delivering that is now in production for the Army Air corps.

That, of course, is the top speed. Service speeds, those at which an airplane can fly hour after hour without damage to the engine, would be considerably less. Moreover, a good deal of misinformation on air speeds has been given currency lately by the failure to designate the altitudes at which top speeds are achieved.

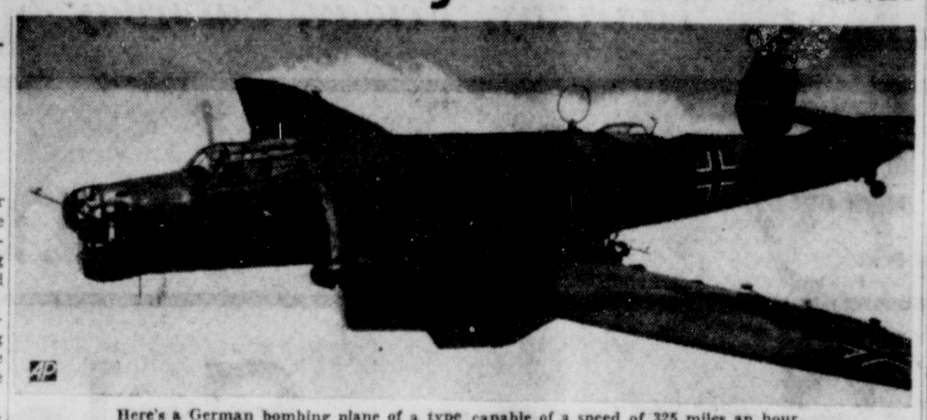

Air forces need speed for both tactical and equality reasons. When a new, speedier airplane was introduced during the last European war, it usually established a temporary air superiority for the side that developed it. Tactically, speed supplies the element of surprise in attacks and gives a place that much added safety.

Unless the warring nations pull something new out of the hat speed can be achieved only by a combination of (1) small wing area, which increases the hazards of takeoffs, and landings, (2) cleanliness of design and (3) greater power, which brings in its train a whole family of prickly engineering problems.

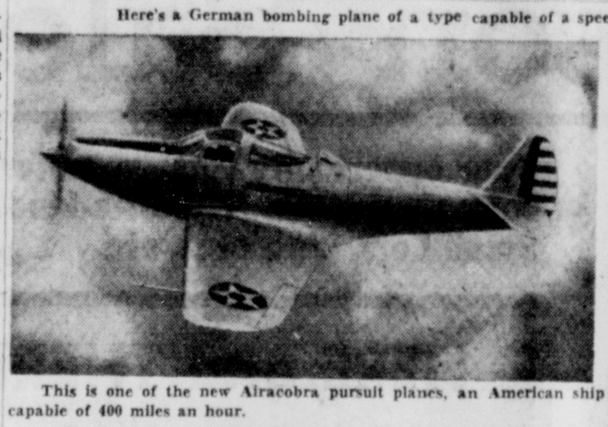

Compressibility Burble

Deterrents to speed also include what engineers call "compressibility burble," in which the air piles up ahead of the wing, loses its smooth flow and therefore destroys lift.

Nevertheless, engineers are shooting for speeds of 500 miles an hour before the close of the year. Both sides, in the war probably are keeping an ace card face down on the table. Only the other day the British air ministry hinted of a new and faster pursuit.

Here's a German bombing plane of a type capable of a speed of 325 miles an hour.

This is one of the new Airacobra pursuit planes, an American ship capable of 400 miles an hour.

Shanty Boatmen Long for Spring

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 28. (AP)—When spjringtime comes to the rivers it will gladden the hearts of the shanty boatmen, but most of them will answer the wanderlust with a tighter tug on the hausers.

Up and down the state's streams hundreds of homes-on-water are tied at the banks, and if the word of the Elk clan is that of the others, they'll stay there.

To leave, said the Charleston brethren, will mean departing from relief checks, which small, nevertheless insure an existence.

That, of course, doesn't speak for the more affluent river dwellers, some of them living in comparative luxury on motor boats. The usual shantyboat is without means of propulsion—except the hand on the oars.

Boatmen here thrown some light on something most West Virginians have noticed—why the shantyboats are thickest at the mouth of the rivers.

At the place the rivers meet, said the veterans, the current is weaker than upstream. The strain on the ropes is less.

Prisoner Identified As One of Cross Gangsters

Oil City, Pa., Feb. 28 (AP)—District Attorney Maurice P. Breene, of Venango county, has identified Lester Lewis Corey, 52, held by FBI agents in Detroit, as a member of the notorious "Cross brothers" gang of western Pennsylvania.

Corey is under joint indictment here for several robberies with the Cross brothers, one of whom since has been slain in South Dakota, and the other captured and sentenced in Ohio.

Breene said the brothers, David L. Cross, 28, and Paul Cross, 22, and their associates conducted a reign of terror in this community late in 1937 which culminated in the Crosses' shooting their way clear when trapped by police in a roadhouse near Grove City.

Diet of Children Usually Superior To That of Parents

People Are Better and More Scientifically Fed Now

By LOGAN CLENDENING M. D.

It is a truism that the diet of the average child of today is far superior to that of its parents or grandparents at the same period of life. The economic status has little to do with this. Taken group by group, people are better and more scientifically fed than previous generations on the same economic level.

Many factors enter into this. We have a better scientific knowledge of what constitutes a balanced diet now than ever before. Scientific agriculture has produced more food, better food and greater variety of food. Methods of transportation, preservation and processing of foods have given us a continuous supply o. food over the year, with no seasonal periods of letdown.

Study Confirms It

It has been assumed for some time that this is true. A recent study gives confirmation. The diet and physical state of 240 young male adults, compared to the diets and stature of their parents at the same age, as made at the Metabolism and Nutrition Clinic of the New York University College of Medicine, furnish the actual facts.

Two hundred and sixty-one parents were studied. Of these forty per cent had come from Russia, twenty-two per cent had come from Austria, Poland, Italy or Rumania, thirty-one per cent were born in the United States. The average height of the male parent was 5' 7", and of the female parent 5' 3". Their children had an average height of 5' 9.7", The average weight was 159 pounds (the average weight of the parents at the same age is not known).

Diet Determined

The diet of the two groups was determined as nearly as possible by questions and observation. The average diet of the parents up to the age of thirty was more deficient in milk, fresh fruit, cheese and meat, as compared to the children's food, than in other articles. The parents received about 100 grams of fresh fruit daily, while their children received 350 grams. The parents got 200 grams of milk a day apiece; the children 450 grams. The parents got more either brown bread or rye, which gave them an adequate intake of vitamin B, but the children's diet provided this vitamin in other forms.

The health of the children's group was rated as follows: Forty-two per cent were in excellent health; forty-seven per cent graded poor; nine per cent graded fair, and only two per cent poor. The health of the parents at the same age could only be roughly estimated, but this estimate indicates that they were definitely under the average of the health of the children's group.

Diet of Children Usually Superior To That of Parents

By LOGAN CLENDENING M. D.

It is a truism that the diet of the average child of today is far superior to that of its parents or grandparents at the same period of life. The economic status has little to do with this. Taken group by group, people are better and more scientifically fed than previous generations on the same economic level.

Many factors enter into this. We have a better scientific knowledge of what constitutes a balanced diet now than ever before. Scientific agriculture has produced more food, better food and greater variety of food. Methods of transportation, preservation and processing of foods have given us a continuous supply o. food over the year, with no seasonal periods of letdown.

Study Confirms It

It has been assumed for some time that this is true. A recent study gives confirmation. The diet and physical state of 240 young male adults, compared to the diets and stature of their parents at the same age, as made at the Metabolism and Nutrition Clinic of the New York University College of Medicine, furnish the actual facts.

Two hundred and sixty-one parents were studied. Of these forty per cent had come from Russia, twenty-two per cent had come from Austria, Poland, Italy or Rumania, thirty-one per cent were born in the United States. The average height of the male parent was 5' 7", and of the female parent 5' 3". Their children had an average height of 5' 9.7". The average weight was 159 pounds (the average weight of the parents at the same age is not known).

Diet Determined

The diet of the two groups was determined as nearly as possible by questions and observation. The average diet of the parents up to the age of thirty was more deficient in milk, fresh fruit, cheese and meat, as compared to the children's food, than in other articles. The parents received about 100 grams of fresh fruit daily, while their children received 350 grams. The parents got 200 grams of milk a day apiece; the children 450 grams. The parents got more either brown bread or rye, which gave them an adequate intake of vitamin B, but the children's diet provided this vitamin in other forms.

The health of the children's group was rated as follows: Forty-two per cent were in excellent health; forty-seven per cent graded poor; nine per cent graded fair, and only two per cent poor. The health of the parents at the same age could only be roughly estimated, but this estimate indicates that they were definitely under the average of the health of the children's group.

Talk of Reorganizing Georges Creek Loop

Jimmy McGuire Is Sponsoring Move To Revive League

Former Colt Pilot Reports Interest Among Fans Along Creek

Figures Six Club Baseball Circuit Could Be Organized

The "Beer Barrel Polka" may be a popular phonograph record at the McGuire and Ricker cafe and restaurant, as elsewhere but baseball and boxing are the top topics of conversation where the former diamond and ring promoters are holding forth on Baltimore street.

With the return of James F. "Jimmy" McGuire to these diggings and his hanging out his sign with Vic Ricker, erstwhile fight promoter, as dispensers of good grub and better booze, baseball bees are buzzing on the B. & O. end of Baltimore street.

The fact is that the idea has germinated and there is a swarm of sentiment afloat along the Georges Creek to revive the old Georges Creek Baseball League. The idea is McGuire's but he had no trouble "selling" it along the creek, and announced yesterday afternoon that the boys up there are giving serious consideration to having the ball rolling before this baseball season rolls around: it wasn't "beer barrel polka" talk popping off either.

Enthusiastic on Creek

McGuire says that he has been approached by several enthusiasts from up in the regions where the soft-coal miners grew up the hard way and that he is confident the league can be launched this year. It would be a six-club circuit and it would be comprised of the best semi-pro talent from this and adjoining sections with a sprinkling of professional talent to give it an added class; the veteran players also serving to coach the youngsters.

From what McGuire has heard he believes Piedmont, W. Va., Lonaconing, Midland, Frostburg and Cumberland in Maryland are ready to be spokes in the wheel with Hyndman, Pa., as the sixth town. Tommy McGuire, Johnny Byrnes, Eddie Diehl and Joe Buskey are mentioned, among others of the well-known creek baseball fraternity, who will be involved in the circuit with the understanding already had that Buskey will come to Cumberland. He has been holding forth at Westvaco for the past several baseball seasons.

McGuire admits that the organization of the league is in its embryo stage, as yet, but believes that it can be brought together in a hurry and launched in pretty fair shape before the season gets under way. He's ready to consider any suggestions and will lend a willing ear to all interested in furthering the proposal.

McGuire who was one of the sponsors of the Cumberland club, and a promoter of the Middle Atlantic League, leaving here to take over the franchise at Uniontown, Pa. Of recent years he has been employed in Washington, D. C., returning here several months ago to go into the restaurant business.

In other matches, Frostburg bested Lonaconing 2-1 on the Majestic lanes at Frostburg and the Midland outfit turned back the Devon Club at Luke 2-1.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

New York, Feb. 28 (AP)—The man who built a drum that couldn't be beat has retired from pro football, and Carl Storck, president of the National Pro League, believes the sport has lost one of its most colorful figures.

The man whose one drum made the drums along the Mohawk sound like the drumming of your fingers is George A. "Dick" Richards, who sold his Detroit Lions this year because of poor health.

The drum couldn't be beat for two reasons, to wit: It was the biggest drum in the world, Richards claimed, and it couldn't be used for some time because no skins were available to cover it.

Richards likes the novel in showmanship, and after transporting the Wayne University band to make music for his team at several out-of-town games, he decided the band should have something which no other band could match.

He decided the something was the biggest drum in captivity, and he ordered it made. However, like the man who built the boat in his basement and then couldn't get it out, he discovered he had nothing to cover it with. The steers just didn't seem to grow that big.

Undaunted, he gave an operative a tape measure and expense account and told him to start hunting. All the stockyards and tanneries in this community were checked, but no dice, so the operative headed for Argentina.

About five months later the weary agent located two steers on the Pampas, purchased them, brought back the hides, and soon Detroit and environs were greeted by noise the like of which they never heard before.

That was just a sample of Richards' originality and perseverance. Another was the great chrysanthemum hunt, which had his office staff galloping around in circles.

He decided a couple of days before a game that all women attending should be presented with chrysanthemums with the compliments of the management.

Richards was in California at the time, and the office force swooned when his instructions arrived. At least 25,000 women were expected for the game, and getting 25,000 chrysanthemums in such a short time just didn't seem possible.

Every florist in the city was contacted, and the florists got in touch with all the greenhouses and jobbers they thought might be able to get the 'mums in Detroit in time for the game. Still the number was insufficient, and as a last resort an airplane was chartered to bring flowers from the West coast.

The total cost ran close to $15,000 but Richards was satisfied. About 27,000 women customers left the game with chrysanthemums pinned on their coats.

Such incidents indicate the Richards might be reasonably termed the Larry MacPhail of pro football, and also might bring up the question of whether he was running the club for fun of for profit.

That could be answered by the fact that he paid $15,000 for the Detroit franchise in 1934, and sold it this year for $225,000.

Phillies To Begin Training Friday

Hitches Met In Attempt To Ally Ivy Loop Group

Yale Named As Formidable Obstacle to Corporation Plan

By LAWRENCE PERRY

New York, Feb. 28 (C. N. F.)—Hitches have been encountered in the present attempt to enlist the seven members of the so-called Ivy League into a close football corporation. Yale is named as one of the formidable obstacles to realization of a plan which is being pushed with ardor by certain members of the group outside the Big Three.

The writer learns on good authority that Dean Clarence Mendell, acting graduate manager of athletics at Yale, adheres steadfastly to his original objection to an exclusive, copper-riveted football alliance. Harvard has not been won over and Princeton is on the fence.

Authorities of old Nassau see merits in the plan. But they see objectionable features, too. Primarily they are not ready to subscribe to an idea which would affect Princeton's autonomy in certain respects—in the matter of schedules, for one thing. So far as the New Jersey institution is concerned—Yale and Harvard, too, probably—it has accepted certain remedial suggestions made by other members of the Ivy group and is ready to accept any others regarded as valuable.

One rather important trend so far as the relationship of the Big Three with the other four members of the league is concerned has been an increasing acceptance of athletic standards and conceptions of eligibility as they obtain at Princeton, New Haven and Cambridge.

Big Three Judgments

This has been a matter of gradual development rather than the working of a definite plan. It has come about through a habit in recent years of presenting problems to the athletic authorities of the Big Three. Here is an example, an authentic one submitted to one of the trio by an outside college. If a student, a transfer, represented his former instiution in cross country, is he eligible to become a member of the track team of the institution to which he has transferred?

It should be understood that in all the Ivy colleges a transfer may not compete in any sport in which he participated as a student in his former college. So the above problem related to whether a cross country runner is a track athlete. On the face of the situation he is and yet on the other hand cross country is a fall sport; track is a spring sport. Authorities of the university to which the problem was submitted—it happened to be Princeton—had to puzzle the thing out. Harvard and Yale have received, and are receiving similar problems just as in the case of Princeton. And all are extremely complex and difficult to decide.

In all cases the answer is somewhat as follows: If the student in question were enrolled in this institution such and such action would be taken in the case you have submitted. Usually this action would be taken in the case you have submitted. Usually this dictum is accepted.

Alumni Views

So far as Yale and an exclusive football conference are concerned football alumni with whom the writer has talked are not for it. Col. John Reed Kilpatrick, head of the Madison Square Garden corporation, does not pretend to speak for the great body of Eli alumni; but he stands among the important and influential graduates of Yale. Hence, his views are interesting and may well be representative.

"While I have not given the matter a great deal of thought," he said to the writer, "I should hate to see Yale in a position in which it could not play any eleven it wanted to play.

"My conviction is firm that Yale each year should play once at least or, better twice, against opponents outside the Ivy group. I am against junketing here, there and everywhere to play football games; but I do think that an interchange of home games against a western and a southern team is desirable if only because of Yale's status as a national university with students enrolled from all sections of the country."

Prospective Changes at Yale

As a matter of fact, Ivy League matters just now are receiving less consideration at Yale than questions relating to the rearrangement of the personnel of the athletic governing body following the retirement of Malcolm D. Farmer as graduate manager of athletics.

It seems likely, when decisions finally are made, that the conduct of athletics at New Haven will no longer be in the hands of one man Some man of wisdom, poise and experience, and middle-aged — the present incumbent of Farmer's office, Dean Mendell, fills the picture—will attend to matters of policy, as Dean Christian Gauss does at Princeton. A younger graduate will attend to practical affairs, as Ken Fairman does at Princeton.

Dumb Dan Morgan, Wishful, Maybe? Sees Doom of Hank

Wily Punch Pilot Picks Garcia To Outbully Armstrong

By DILLON GRAHAM

New York, Feb. 28—Henry Armstrong tackles Ceferino Garcia March 1 in Los Angeles and Dumb Dan Morgan has the idea that Homicidal Hank will get a punch in the puss that'll set him to star-gazing.

After exactly thirty-seven minutes of punching the bag with his vocal chords, during which he employed several thousand quickly chosen words, some of which have not yet found their way into the dictionary, Dumb Dan managed to express his four-word opinion:

"Garcia will kayo Armstrong."

Dum Dan Morgan, dumb as a slick red fox, has managed enough fighters to start a colony and has the voice of experience. He had three world champions. "You gotta crowd Armstrong, stay on top of him all the time," Dan explained.

"He's a great fighter with a marvelous source of stamina. Hank likes to keep bullying and roughing an opponent. As long as he can run the show and push you around and keep you off balance he'll win.

Must Be Out-Bullied

"It'll take a fellow strong enough to out-bully Hank to beat him. A chap who will push against Hank and make him give ground.

"That's what Garcia will do. He'll have a big weight advantage.

"Garcia should've beaten him last time. He had him ready for a knockout twice but let Hank get away. Garcia was short of stamina that night. Taking off poundage to make the weight taxed his strength.

"This time Garcia will be at his natural middleweight poundage. He'll have his full strength and he'll lick Armstrong," Dumb Dan said.

Armstrong outpointed Garcia a year or so ago when Ceferino challenged for the welterfeight championship. After that defeat the Philippine fighter moved into the middleweight division and won the New York state version of the world championship by knocking out Fred Apostoli.

Championship? How?

Out in California they're billing this fight as a "championship go." Championship of what? Los Angeles?

New York state won't sanction it as a title bout because it isn't a fifteen-rounder. And the National Boxing Association won't recognize it because Al Hostak and not Garcia, is champion in the states under its jurisdiction.

However, it will be interesting to see whether Armstrong, who already has held the featherweight, lightweight and welterweight crowns can also beat the middleweight champion. And, official or not, many fight fans will figure Armstrong as champion if he beats Garcia, regardless of the technical matter of the fight being booked for less than firteen rounds.

Armstrong and Garcia Ready for Fight

Los Angeles, Feb. 28. (AP)—Hammerin' Henry Armstrong and Caferino Garcia, who meet for the latter's middleweight title Friday night, passed their physical examinations today.

Dr. Lloyd Mace, California athletic commission physician, declared both fighters were in excellent condition for their ten-round battle.

THROUGH, AT LAST - - - - - - - - - - - By Jack Sords

Baseball's Funny Man Keeps Going Because It's Fun

Al Schact Says He'd Go Nuts If Job Ran Out on Him

Miami, Fla., Feb. 28.—Take Al Schact, baseball's funny man, out of the game and he admits he'd just about go nuts!

"If I had a million dollars, I'd still be doing this work," says the national pastime's greatest clown who's on hand for the spring training camps.

"I'd die away from baseball. I love it.

"Some days I drive 500 miles to get to a game at which I'm supposed to work. I'm dead tired and I think: 'Well, Al, old boy, I don't know whether you can make it out there tonight. It's a hot night and you're plumb worn out.'

"But I get out there feelin' fresh as a kitten. I never feel tired working."

Does Solo Now

Schact, who started his now famous clowning act with Nick Altrock when they both were with the Washington Senators, has been doing his baseball antics alone since the pair broke up several years ago.

But the man who played before more than half a million minor league fans last summer and then went into the majors for a few games and his 20th World Series, is just a little bit confused by all the business details and expenses connected with his new venture as a "professional" clown.

"Why, last year I spent more money for expenses than I used to make as a coach for the Senators," said Schact. "I had to have an office, a secretary, and a chauffeur.

"My bills for telegrams, my hotels, gasoline and car repairs—say, it ain't a bit funny to be funny!"

The secret of his success, he says, is—"I just love my work."

Schact Has Fun

The funny-man act Al uses now has been pretty much of a life-saver through the minor leagues. His long association with ball players, as pitcher and as coach, has made him a big crowd puller—and he can still handle the ball with the best of them.

All the time Schact is having the time of his life. He does his funny pitching act, takes infield drill with the home club, umpires a bit, runs the bases, broadcasts—anything to keep the fans laughing.

Once when Al was going to the ball park to pitch the last game of a double-header, he saw a horse-drawn vegetable wagon which he rented for two bucks. Then he got a negro boy to act as valet, rode that vegetable wagon right up to the pitcher's box, nonchalantly got out, and disdainfully motioned the boy and the wagon away. Then the opposing team almost ran Schact out of the park.

Out of that episode and others grew his idea for the variety of clown acts he performed in his years with the majors. Now he has turned "pro" and is touring a number of minor league cities.

Eek! Not Skis!

Yakima, Wash., (AP) — The St. Louis Browns' front office probably will swoon when it hears that Harlond Clift, its star third baseman, spent the winter in skis.

Front offices frown on anything more strenuous than golf and croquet for their high-salaried hands during the off-season, but Clift has skied for four winters without a hint of injury and he plans to continue. He's perhaps the only major leaguer who does ski.

"It's the best winter conditioner I know," says Clift. "I've left pieces of myself on every tree in Yakima county."

With no contract worries — he signed last fall at a boost in pay —Clift, his wife and their two-year-old son, Harlond, Jr., skied all over the Cascade mountains. Clift had a special set of miniature skis built for his son, and the little fellow learned to navigate them in great style.

Clift's first love is hunting, and he gave it a thorough workout last autumn, killing a 150-pound deer and a 750-pound elk near the family cabin on Bald Mountain in nearby Kittitas county.

His mother, Mrs. A. B. Clift, stole the show from Harlond and his father, however, by bagging the first deer, a 210-pounder, and the first elk, a 600-pounder.

Talk of Reorganizing Georges Creek Loop

Jimmy McGuire Is Sponsoring Move To Revive League

Former Colt Pilot Reports Interest Among Fans Along Creek

Figures Six Club Baseball Circuit Could Be Organized

The "Beer Barrel Polka" may be a popular phonograph record at the McGuire and Ricker cafe and restaurant, as elsewhere but baseball and boxing are the top topics of conversation where the former diamond and ring promoters are holding forth on Baltimore street.

With the return of James F. "Jimmy" McGuire to these diggings and his hanging out his sign with Vic Ricker, erstwhile fight promoter, as dispensers of good grub and better booze, baseball bees are buzzing on the B. & O. end of Baltimore street.

The fact is that the idea has germinated and there is a swarm of sentiment afloat along the Georges Creek to revive the old Georges Creek Baseball League. The idea is McGuire's but he had no trouble "selling" it along the creek, and announced yesterday afternoon that the boys up there are giving serious consideration to having the ball rolling before this baseball season rolls around: it wasn't "beer barrel polka" talk popping off either.

Enthusiastic on Creek

McGuire says that he has been approached by several enthusiasts from up in the regions where the soft-coal miners grew up the hard way and that he is confident the league can be launched this year. It would be a six-club circuit and it would be comprised of the best semi-pro talent from this and adjoining sections with a sprinkling of professional talent to give it an added class; the veteran players also serving to coach the youngsters.

From what McGuire has heard he believes Piedmont, W. Va., Lonaconing, Midland, Frostburg and Cumberland in Maryland are ready to be spokes in the wheel with Hyndman, Pa., as the sixth town. Tommy McGuire, Johnny Byrnes, Eddie Diehl and Joe Buskey are mentioned, among others of the well-known creek baseball fraternity, who will be involved in the circuit with the understanding already had that Buskey will come to Cumberland. He has been holding forth at Westvaco for the past several baseball seasons.

McGuire admits that the organization of the league is in its embryo stage, as yet, but believes that it can be brought together in a hurry and launched in pretty fair shape before the season gets under way. He's ready to consider any suggestions and will lend a willing ear to all interested in furthering the proposal.

McGuire who was one of the sponsors of the Cumberland club, and a promoter of the Middle Atlantic League, leaving here to take over the franchise at Uniontown, Pa. Of recent years he has been employed in Washington, D. C., returning here several months ago to go into the restaurant business.

In other matches, Frostburg bested Lonaconing 2-1 on the Majestic lanes at Frostburg and the Midland outfit turned back the Devon Club at Luke 2-1.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

New York, Feb. 28 (AP)—The man who built a drum that couldn't be beat has retired from pro football, and Carl Storck, president of the National Pro League, believes the sport has lost one of its most colorful figures.

The man whose one drum made the drums along the Mohawk sound like the drumming of your fingers is George A. "Dick" Richards, who sold his Detroit Lions this year because of poor health.

The drum couldn't be beat for two reasons, to wit: It was the biggest drum in the world, Richards claimed, and it couldn't be used for some time because no skins were available to cover it.

Richards likes the novel in showmanship, and after transporting the Wayne University band to make music for his team at several out-of-town games, he decided the band should have something which no other band could match.

He decided the something was the biggest drum in captivity, and he ordered it made. However, like the man who built the boat in his basement and then couldn't get it out, he discovered he had nothing to cover it with. The steers just didn't seem to grow that big.

Undaunted, he gave an operative a tape measure and expense account and told him to start hunting. All the stockyards and tanneries in this community were checked, but no dice, so the operative headed for Argentina.

About five months later the weary agent located two steers on the Pampas, purchased them, brought back the hides, and soon Detroit and environs were greeted by noise the like of which they never heard before.

That was just a sample of Richards' originality and perseverance. Another was the great chrysanthemum hunt, which had his office staff galloping around in circles.

He decided a couple of days before a game that all women attending should be presented with chrysanthemums with the compliments of the management.

Richards was in California at the time, and the office force swooned when his instructions arrived. At least 25,000 women were expected for the game, and getting 25,000 chrysanthemums in such a short time just didn't seem possible.

Every florist in the city was contacted, and the florists got in touch with all the greenhouses and jobbers they thought might be able to get the 'mums in Detroit in time for the game. Still the number was insufficient, and as a last resort an airplane was chartered to bring flowers from the West coast.

The total cost ran close to $15,000 but Richards was satisfied. About 27,000 women customers left the game with chrysanthemums pinned on their coats.

Such incidents indicate the Richards might be reasonably termed the Larry MacPhail of pro football, and also might bring up the question of whether he was running the club for fun of for profit.

That could be answered by the fact that he paid $15,000 for the Detroit franchise in 1934, and sold it this year for $225,000.

Phillies To Begin Training Friday

Hitches Met In Attempt To Ally Ivy Loop Group

Yale Named As Formidable Obstacle to Corporation Plan

By LAWRENCE PERRY

New York, Feb. 28 (C. N. F.)—Hitches have been encountered in the present attempt to enlist the seven members of the so-called Ivy League into a close football corporation. Yale is named as one of the formidable obstacles to realization of a plan which is being pushed with ardor by certain members of the group outside the Big Three.

The writer learns on good authority that Dean Clarence Mendell, acting graduate manager of athletics at Yale, adheres steadfastly to his original objection to an exclusive, copper-riveted football alliance. Harvard has not been won over and Princeton is on the fence.

Authorities of old Nassau see merits in the plan. But they see objectionable features, too. Primarily they are not ready to subscribe to an idea which would affect Princeton's autonomy in certain respects—in the matter of schedules, for one thing. So far as the New Jersey institution is concerned—Yale and Harvard, too, probably—it has accepted certain remedial suggestions made by other members of the Ivy group and is ready to accept any others regarded as valuable.

One rather important trend so far as the relationship of the Big Three with the other four members of the league is concerned has been an increasing acceptance of athletic standards and conceptions of eligibility as they obtain at Princeton, New Haven and Cambridge.

Big Three Judgments

This has been a matter of gradual development rather than the working of a definite plan. It has come about through a habit in recent years of presenting problems to the athletic authorities of the Big Three. Here is an example, an authentic one submitted to one of the trio by an outside college. If a student, a transfer, represented his former instiution in cross country, is he eligible to become a member of the track team of the institution to which he has transferred?

It should be understood that in all the Ivy colleges a transfer may not compete in any sport in which he participated as a student in his former college. So the above problem related to whether a cross country runner is a track athlete. On the face of the situation he is and yet on the other hand cross country is a fall sport; track is a spring sport. Authorities of the university to which the problem was submitted—it happened to be Princeton—had to puzzle the thing out. Harvard and Yale have received, and are receiving similar problems just as in the case of Princeton. And all are extremely complex and difficult to decide.

In all cases the answer is somewhat as follows: If the student in question were enrolled in this institution such and such action would be taken in the case you have submitted. Usually this action would be taken in the case you have submitted. Usually this dictum is accepted.

Alumni Views

So far as Yale and an exclusive football conference are concerned football alumni with whom the writer has talked are not for it. Col. John Reed Kilpatrick, head of the Madison Square Garden corporation, does not pretend to speak for the great body of Eli alumni; but he stands among the important and influential graduates of Yale. Hence, his views are interesting and may well be representative.

"While I have not given the matter a great deal of thought," he said to the writer, "I should hate to see Yale in a position in which it could not play any eleven it wanted to play.

"My conviction is firm that Yale each year should play once at least or, better twice, against opponents outside the Ivy group. I am against junketing here, there and everywhere to play football games; but I do think that an interchange of home games against a western and a southern team is desirable if only because of Yale's status as a national university with students enrolled from all sections of the country."

Prospective Changes at Yale

As a matter of fact, Ivy League matters just now are receiving less consideration at Yale than questions relating to the rearrangement of the personnel of the athletic governing body following the retirement of Malcolm D. Farmer as graduate manager of athletics.

It seems likely, when decisions finally are made, that the conduct of athletics at New Haven will no longer be in the hands of one man. Some man of wisdom, poise and experience, and middle-aged — the present incumbent of Farmer's office, Dean Mendell, fills the picture—will attend to matters of policy, as Dean Christian Gauss does at Princeton. A younger graduate will attend to practical affairs, as Ken Fairman does at Princeton.

Dumb Dan Morgan, Wishful, Maybe? Sees Doom of Hank

Wily Punch Pilot Picks Garcia To Outbully Armstrong

By DILLON GRAHAM

New York, Feb. 28—Henry Armstrong tackles Ceferino Garcia March 1 in Los Angeles and Dumb Dan Morgan has the idea that Homicidal Hank will get a punch in the puss that'll set him to star-gazing.

After exactly thirty-seven minutes of punching the bag with his vocal chords, during which he employed several thousand quickly chosen words, some of which have not yet found their way into the dictionary, Dumb Dan managed to express his four-word opinion:

"Garcia will kayo Armstrong."

Dum Dan Morgan, dumb as a slick red fox, has managed enough fighters to start a colony and has the voice of experience. He had three world champions. "You gotta crowd Armstrong, stay on top of him all the time," Dan explained.

"He's a great fighter with a marvelous source of stamina. Hank likes to keep bullying and roughing an opponent. As long as he can run the show and push you around and keep you off balance he'll win.

Must Be Out-Bullied

"It'll take a fellow strong enough to out-bully Hank to beat him. A chap who will push against Hank and make him give ground.

"That's what Garcia will do. He'll have a big weight advantage.

"Garcia should've beaten him last time. He had him ready for a knockout twice but let Hank get away. Garcia was short of stamina that night. Taking off poundage to make the weight taxed his strength.

"This time Garcia will be at his natural middleweight poundage. He'll have his full strength and he'll lick Armstrong," Dumb Dan said.

Armstrong outpointed Garcia a year or so ago when Ceferino challenged for the welterfeight championship. After that defeat the Philippine fighter moved into the middleweight division and won the New York state version of the world championship by knocking out Fred Apostoli.

Championship? How?

Out in California they're billing this fight as a "championship go." Championship of what? Los Angeles?

New York state won't sanction it as a title bout because it isn't a fifteen-rounder. And the National Boxing Association won't recognize it because Al Hostak and not Garcia, is champion in the states under its jurisdiction.

However, it will be interesting to see whether Armstrong, who already has held the featherweight, lightweight and welterweight crowns can also beat the middleweight champion. And, official or not, many fight fans will figure Armstrong as champion if he beats Garcia, regardless of the technical matter of the fight being booked for less than firteen rounds.

Armstrong and Garcia Ready for Fight

Los Angeles, Feb. 28, (AP)—Hammerin' Henry Armstrong and Ceferino Garcia, who meet for the latter's middleweight title Friday night, passed their physical examinations today.

Dr. Lloyd Mace, California athletic commission physician, declared both fighters were in excellent condition for their ten-round battle.

Baseball's Funny Man Keeps Going Because It's Fun

Al Schact Says He'd Go Nuts If Job Ran Out on Him

Miami, Fla., Feb. 28.—Take Al Schact, baseball's funny man, out of the game and he admits he'd just about go nuts!

"If I had a million dollars, I'd still be doing this work," says the national pastime's greatest clown who's on hand for the spring training camps.

"I'd die away from baseball. I love it.

"Some days I drive 500 miles to get to a game at which I'm supposed to work. I'm dead tired and I think: 'Well, Al, old boy, I don't know whether you can make it out there tonight. It's a hot night and you're plumb worn out.'

"But I get out there feelin' fresh as a kitten. I never feel tired working."

Does Solo Now

Schact, who started his now famous clowning act with Nick Altrock when they both were with the Washington Senators, has been doing his baseball antics alone since the pair broke up several years ago.

But the man who played before more than half a million minor league fans last summer and then went into the majors for a few games and his 20th World Series, is just a little bit confused by all the business details and expenses connected with his new venture as a "professional" clown.

"Why, last year I spent more money for expenses than I used to make as a coach for the Senators," said Schact. "I had to have an office, a secretary, and a chauffeur.

"My bills for telegrams, my hotels, gasoline and car repairs—say, it ain't a bit funny to be funny!"

The secret of his success, he says, is—"I just love my work."

Schact Has Fun

The funny-man act Al uses now has been pretty much of a life-saver through the minor leagues. His long association with ball players, as pitcher and as coach, has made him a big crowd puller—and he can still handle the ball with the best of them.

All the time Schact is having the time of his life. He does his funny pitching act, takes infield drill with the home club, umpires a bit, runs the bases, broadcasts—anything to keep the fans laughing.

Once when Al was going to the ball park to pitch the last game of a double-header, he saw a horse-drawn vegetable wagon which he rented for two bucks. Then he got a negro boy to act as valet, rode that vegetable wagon right up to the pitcher's box, nonchalantly got out, and disdainfully motioned the boy and the wagon away. Then the opposing team almost ran Schact out of the park.

Out of that episode and others grew his idea for the variety of clown acts he performed in his years with the majors. Now he has turned "pro" and is touring a number of minor league cities.

Eek! Not Skis!

Yakima, Wash., (AP) — The St. Louis Browns' front office probably will swoon when it hears that Harlond Clift, its star third baseman, spent the winter in skis.

Front offices frown on anything more strenuous than golf and croquet for their high-salaried hands during the off-season, but Clift has skied for four winters without a hint of injury and he plans to continue. He's perhaps the only major leaguer who does ski.

"It's the best winter conditioner I know," says Clift. "I've left pieces of myself on every tree in Yakima county."

With no contract worries — he signed last fall at a boost in pay —Clift, his wife and their two-year-old son, Harlond, Jr., skied all over the Cascade mountains. Clift had a special set of miniature skis built for his son, and the little fellow learned to navigate them in great style.

Clift's first love is hunting, and he gave it a thorough workout last autumn, killing a 150-pound deer and a 750-pound elk near the family cabin on Bald Mountain in nearby Kittitas county.

His mother, Mrs. A. B. Clift, stole the show from Harlond and his father, however, by bagging the first deer, a 210-pounder, and the first elk, a 600-pounder.

The Sportlight

by GRANTLAND RICE

WHETHER HE HITS OR NOT

Miami Beach, Feb. 28 (N. A. N. A.)—Base hits, pieced together, make a ball player's meal ticket. As a result, when the average player isn't hitting, his head goes down and he frets and worries so much he can't field, either.

Frank Crosetti is an exception. The Yankee shortstop, in the company of a bombing crew, doesn't hit much more than his weight, yet every day he is out there hustling and playing a great game of ball. No player in either major league gives a smoother performance from one end of a season to the other. Every day is just like every other day, where he is concerned. And they're all good.

Crosetti, of course, has spurts in which he will average .300 or over and when he hits a ball solidly, he can drive it a long way, having a fine wrist action that makes up for the size and weight that most power hitters have. It was, you may recall, a home run by Crosetti with Myril Hoag on base in the eighth inning that broke the resistance offered by Dizzy Dean to the Yankees in the second game of the 1938 World Series—a smash that wrecked a classic stand by Diz when the odds loomed high against him.

The Best Combination

Frankie's main value to the Yankees lies, naturally, in his superb defensive play. He and Joe Gordon provide the Yanks with the best second-base combination in the game today and one of the best ever. Certainly it is the best the Yankees ever had, going away back to the days when they had Roger Peckinpaugh and Everett Scott at shortstop and Derrill Pratt and Aaron Ward at second and coming up through the combination of Mark Koenig at short and Tony Lazzeri at second and, later, that of Crosetti and Lazzeri.

Of these latter day hook-ups preceding that of Crosetti and Gordon, a balance was lacking. Lazzeri, one of the great second basemen through his first seven years with the Yankees didn't have, in Koenig, a shortstop to mate hhim. Koenig was a good ball player but an erratic one, a much better hitter than Crosetti but nowhere near Crosetti in the matter of fielding skill, so that Lazzeri had to carry him much of the time.

Lazzeri also had to carry Crosetti when Frankie joined the Yankees, schooling him to the majors and working out, between them, some semblance of smoothness. And then, just as Crosetti had learned his way around and learned how to work with Lazzeri, Tony slowed up.

At last Joe McCarthy, striving desperately for a combination that could make double plays, put Crosetti and Gordon together. They are perfectly matched and play together with confidence, speed and rhythm. The plays they made in the World Series last fall—the plays they made during the championship season—satisfied even McCarthy, a hard man to satisfy—a man whose fetish is the double play.

The Treat by Werber

Winning a berth with the Yankees wasn't an easy one for Frosetti—or, rather, holding it after he had won it wasn't easy. Because of his light hitting, his job was in danger in the spring of 1933, after he has been the regular shortstop through 1932, his first year.

Also at the Yankee camp in the spring of 1933 at St. Petersburg was Bill Werber, now third baseman of the Reds. Werber was faster—Crosetti never has been exactly a speed merchant, for all the agility with which he bounces around the short field, spearing line drives, scooping up grounders, starting or pivoting on double plays—and another of McCarthy's demands is for speed—and more speed. Werber was fiery, colorful and aggressive—and Crosetti then, as now, was so quiet as to be almost backward, even on the field.

Werber, just up from Buffalo, started with a rush that spring. Before the stay at St. Petersburg ended, it looked as though the job was his, and other managers, believing McCarthy had made his choice, made offers for Crosetti. Then McCarthy gave Crosetti a fling at the job again and the fine play he turned in as the team swung North decided the tussle. He held on—and Werber went to the Red Sox.

And Now Rizzuto

Now Crosetti is threatened again, however remotely. In Kansas City the Yankees have a kid by the name of Rizzuto—a lusty Italian kid who, starting from practically nowhere, made the American Association in two years and is almost ready for the majors.

Crosetti isn't in danger—yet. But playing with the Yankees has its perils as well as its advantages. A player, no matter how good he is, knows all the time that once he slips—even a little—his number is up. For somewhere, close behind him, is a youngster who has been carefully trained to take his place.

Pirates Have Hard Workout under Frisch

San Bernardino, Calif., Feb. 28. (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates had their first workout under the direction of new Manager Frankie Frisch today, and it left them groggy.

The "Fordham Flash" put his ten athletes through two solid hours of jogging abound the lot, bunting and playing for the base-runners, fielding grounders on the infield, chasing flies and sprinting.

Bob Pastor Rules Favorite To Win From Lee Savold

Odds Are 5 to 2 on Bout In New York Garden Tomorrow

New York, Feb. 28 — Because of his cuteness inside ropes, because of his experience, because of his known ability to evade harm, Ruby Robert Pastor is a current 1-to-2½ favorite to whip belting Lee Savold, pride of the Iowa corn belt, when they trade punches for twelve rounds Friday night at Madison Square Garden. Of course, there are wise men on Jacobs Beach who believe that Savold will punch Robert dizzy, but the majority of sun bathers on the beach have it that Bob will win on points.

The mob has seen Savold in only two fights, tumbling Jackie O'Sullivan on the Pastor-Louis card in Detroit and thrashing clumsy Jim Robinson in the Garden a month or so ago. Now it isn't that the boys have too high regard for O'Sullivan or Robinson, but that they liked the way Savold did it. He went to work on both lads with a vehemence and class that made some sages remember the days when Joe Louis was just coming along. They'd say "Who'd he ever beat?" and then wax slightly rhapsodic about the method used. It's the same way with Savold.

Jimmy Johnston, who is slightly prejudiced, due perhaps to the fact that he's Pastor's manager, can't see why his Robert isn't a dead-sure cinch to wallop the Des Moines slugger. He yelled yesterday, after watching Pastor stab and stick Tommy Tucker for three rounds and Jarl Johnsen for a pair, that Bob is a new man. That he is as ambitious as a kid. That he doesn't see any reason on earth why Robert shouldn't dance past Savold and get in with Louis again. After all, Pastor went into the twenty-first round with Louis before finally getting his lumps.

Reports from California are that Eddie Mead denies that he will have Armstrong defend his welterweight title against Al Davis here May 10, and that round Edward says that Henry will go against Al Hostak in Seattle or Los Angeles if he whips Ceferino Garcia Friday night for the middleweight championship. That sounds a bit fuzzy. Mead is under contract to Mike Jacobs and will be here for the Davis affair.

Wesley Ramey will stab Paul De Bello in the eight-round lightweight fight at Ridgewood Grove Saturday night. . . . John Potter will take office as president of the Referees and Judges Association at the meeting tonight at Bothner's.

Games Tonight To Decide Leadership in Garrett County Church League

Oakland, Feb. 28. — Tomorrow night's church basketball league games will decide which team is to go into undisputed position for first place, and which team will descend into the cellar position, as the second round comes to an end. At the end of the first round the Methodists and Lutherans were tied for first place, but unusual results of games whereing the Lutherans have lost only to the Catholics, while both Episcopals and Methodists have defeated the Irish, have brought about the standing in the league at present.

In last week's games the Lutherans barely nosed out the Episcopals 31-30, while the Methodists won over the Catholics by the narrow margin of 31-28.

Tomorrow the Lutherans and Methodists meet in the first game at 7:30 while the Episcopals and Catholics meet in the nightcap. Two games are scheduled next Monday, March 4, and Thursday, March 7, so that the one night's play the following week, Monday, March 11, will conclude the season prior to Holy Week.

The final round schedule is as follows:

March 4, Catholics vs. Lutherans; Methodists vs. Episcopals.

March 7, Catholics vs. Methodists; Lutherans vs. Episcopals.

March 11, Catholics vs. Episcopals; Methodists vs. Lutherans.

Admission to these games is 5 and 10 cents and the high school auditorium has been filled each time.

Kreevich and Hayes Sign with Sox

Pasadena, Calif., Feb. 28 (AP)—Outfielder Mike Kreevich and Infielder Jackie Hayes came to terms with the Chicago White Sox today, leaving Pitched Clint Brown as the club's only holdout.

Harry Grabiner, Sox vice president, said "we have offered Brown as much as we can afford to pay him and the offer is final."

Games Are Cancelled

Bluefield, W. Va., Feb. 28 (AP)—The request of Bluefield college athletes that Tony Lotito coach them through the remainder of their basketball schedule was refused today.

The intramurals coach was asked to take over the job of Mullie Lenoir, who declined to finish the season. College officials cancelled the remaining games after students demonstrated against the ousting of Bob Herder, basketball captain.

Sounds Like A Different Game

Wichita, Kan. (AP)—When you read "Grundy Center takes baseball contest, 2 up," don't rage at the sports editor, because it may really be a ball game and not a golf match.

Match play will be introduced to the country on Semi-Pro Day, May 5, when 25,000 games throughout the country will officially open the semi-pro season.

Ray Dumont, president of the National Semi-Pro Baseball Congress, says credit for the idea goes to several semi-pro baseball commissioners who argue that match play would reveal the real victor of a ball game as the club that scores in the most innings. The commissioners point out that a club can play sparkling ball for eight innings, scoring in several frames during the interim, and then blow up in the last inning and lose the ball game.

Match play, the commissioner maintains, will reveal the real victor as the ball club that comes through the most often, inning by inning.

Marshall Noses Out Morris-Harvey 52-51

Huntington, W. Va., Feb. 28. (AP)—After toying with Morris Harvey through the first half, Marshall almost lost a basketball game tonight, eking out a 52-51 victory only by virtue of Joe Morecraft's foul shot in the final seconds of play.

Leading 23-15 going into the final period, the Herd relaxed its vigilance, and ten minutes from the final gun found the score knotted at 36.

Thereafter, the Eagles repeatedly tied the score or took short leads as Verlin Adams and Bob Starrett connected for goals.

Chiefly due to the efforts of Julie Rivlin, Marshall center who scored 25 points, the Herd stayed in the game, however, and with less than a minute remaining the score was knotted at 51.

Then Harrington was assessed a personal foul, and Joe Morecraft meshed the point for the victory, 25th in 28 starts for Marshall this year.

Bobby Riggs and Fellow Chicagoan Play Semi-Finals

Frank Froehling Advances in Indoor Tennis Tourney

By BILL WHITE

New York, Feb. 28 (AP) — The National Indoor Tennis Championships took on a tri-city hue today as players from Chicago, Boston and Los Angeles dominated the quarter-finals competition.

Bobby Riggs, who possesses almost every worthwhile title except this one and the French championship, and his fellow Chicagoan, Frank A. Froehling, stormed into the semi-finals of the men's singles, where they will have to contend with each other.

Riggs fiddled around in the first set of his match with S. A. Davenport of New York, but then became the serious workman that he can be and disposed of his foe, 7-5, 6-4, 6-1.

Froehling, unseeded former Northwestern University player, almost had to pay rent for using the courts overtime in beating southpaw Marvin Kantrowitz of New York 6-2, 1-6, 6-3, 6-4.

In the other semi-final match tomorrow Don McNeill of Oklahoma city will be paired against Frank J. Bowden of New York.

Boston and Los Angeles shared honors in the women's singles quarter-finals.

Top-seeded Sarah Palfrey Fabyan swept gracefully past Charlotte C. McNeill of Bound Brook, N. J., 6-1, 6-4, and fourth-seeded Katherine Winthrop finally conquered Louise Raymond of Scarsdale, N. Y., 7-5, 5-7, 6-2, for Boston's behalf.

The Los Angeles victories were gained by defending champion Pauline Betz, who had an easy time conquering Norma Taubele of New York 6-3, 6-2, and by Gracyn Wheeler, who once was ranked nationally and who today stopped Millicent Hirsh of New York 9-7, 7-5.

Like the all-Chicago upper bracket of the men's semi-finals, the two Boston women will play each other and the two Los Angeles women will collide.

Riggs and his partner, Elwood Cooke of Portland, Ore., No. 1 seeded combination, scored the principal doubles conquest of the day by romping over Ray Palmer of New York and Alfred L. Jarvis of Tenafly, N. J., 8-6, 6-4.

And then Cooke and Mrs. Fabyan, top seeded mixed doubles team, nearly shut out Betty Rosenquist and Judah Lober, both of New York, 6-0, 6-1.

'Dutch' Harrison Clips Three off Par To Take Lead

Recovers To Shoot 13 Pars and Four Birdies at St. Petersburg

St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 28 (AP)—E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, Little Rock, Ark., professional, clipped three strokes from par for a 68 and the first round lead in the $3,000 54-hole St. Petersburg open golf tournament at the Lakewood Country Club today.

Harrison, recovering from a bogey 5 on the first hole, shot 13 pars and four birdies, displaying unerring touch with his putter. He held a one-stroke lead over Jimmy Demaret, smiling Houston, Tex., professional and leading money-winner of the winter tournament campaign.

Sammy Snead, the defending champion from Shawnee, Pa., who defeated Henry Picard in a 25-hole play-off for first money last year, occupied third place with his 70, the only other card better than par.

Clayton Heafner, Linville, N. C.; Byron Nelson, U. S. Open champion from Toledo, Ohio, and Billy Burke, former National Open titleholder of Belleair, Fla., equalled par with 71's.

The 72-bracket included John Revolta, Evanston, Ill., and Paul Runyan, White Plains, N. Y., former P.G.A. champions, and Ben Hogan, also from White Plains.

The 60 low professionals and 10 low amateurs qualified for the final 36 holes tomorrow. First money is $700.

WHETHER HE HITS OR NOT

Miami Beach, Feb. 28 (N. A. N. A.)—Base hits, pieced together, make a ball player's meal ticket. As a result, when the average player isn't hitting, his head goes down and he frets and worries so much he can't field, either.

Frank Crosetti is an exception. The Yankee shortstop, in the company of a bombing crew, doesn't hit much more than his weight, yet every day he is out there hustling and playing a great game of ball. No player in either major league gives a smoother performance from one end of a season to the other. Every day is just like every other day, where he is concerned. And they're all good.

Crosetti, of course, has spurts in which he will average .300 or over and when he hits a ball solidly, he can drive it a long way, having a fine wrist action that makes up for the size and weight that most power hitters have. It was, you may recall, a home run by Crosetti with Myril Hoag on base in the eighth inning that broke the resistance offered by Dizzy Dean to the Yankees in the second game of the 1938 World Series—a smash that wrecked a classic stand by Diz when the odds loomed high against him.

The Best Combination

Frankie's main value to the Yankees lies, naturally, in his superb defensive play. He and Joe Gordon provide the Yanks with the best second-base combination in the game today and one of the best ever. Certainly it is the best the Yankees ever had, going away back to the days when they had Roger Peckinpaugh and Everett Scott at shortstop and Derrill Pratt and Aaron Ward at second and coming up through the combination of Mark Koenig at short and Tony Lazzeri at second and, later, that of Crosetti and Lazzeri.

Of these latter day hook-ups preceding that of Crosetti and Gordon, a balance was lacking. Lazzeri, one of the great second basemen, through his first seven years with the Yankees didn't have, in Koenig, a shortstop to mate hhim. Koenig was a good ball player but an erratic one, a much better hitter than Crosetti but nowhere near Crosetti in the matter of fielding skill, so that Lazzeri had to carry him much of the time.

Lazzeri also had to carry Crosetti when Frankie joined the Yankees, schooling him to the majors and working out, between them, some semblance of smoothness. And then, just as Crosetti had learned his way around and learned how to work with Lazzeri, Tony slowed up.

At last Joe McCarthy, striving desperately for a combination that could make double plays, put Crosetti and Gordon together. They are perfectly matched and play together with confidence, speed and rhythm. The plays they made in the World Series last fall—the plays they made during the championship season—satisfied even McCarthy, a hard man to satisfy—a man whose fetish is the double play.

The Treat by Werber

Winning a berth with the Yankees wasn't an easy one for Frosetti—or, rather, holding it after he had won it wasn't easy. Because of his light hitting, his job was in danger in the spring of 1933, after he has been the regular shortstop through 1932, his first year.

Also at the Yankee camp in the spring of 1933 at St. Petersburg was Bill Werber, now third baseman of the Reds. Werber was faster—Crosetti never has been exactly a speed merchant, for all the agility with which he bounces around the short field, spearing line drives, scooping up grounders, starting or pivoting on double plays—and another of McCarthy's demands is for speed—and more speed. Werber was fiery, colorful and aggressive—and Crosetti then, as now, was so quiet as to be almost backward, even on the field.

Werber, just up from Buffalo, started with a rush that spring. Before the stay at St. Petersburg ended, it looked as though the job was his, and other managers, believing McCarthy had made his choice, made offers for Crosetti. Then McCarthy gave Crosetti a fling at the job again and the fine play he turned in as the team swung North decided the tussle. He held on—and Werber went to the Red Sox.

And Now Rizzuto

Now Crosetti is threatened again, however remotely. In Kansas City the Yankees have a kid by the name of Rizzuto—a lusty Italian kid who, starting from practically nowhere, made the American Association in two years and is almost ready for the majors.

Crosetti isn't in danger—yet. But playing with the Yankees has its perils as well as its advantages. A player, no matter how good he is, knows all the time that once he slips—even a little—his number is up. For somewhere, close behind him, is a youngster who has been carefully trained to take his place.

Pirates Have Hard Workout under Frisch

San Bernardino, Calif., Feb. 28. (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates had their first workout under the direction of new Manager Frankie Frisch today, and it left them groggy.

The "Fordham Flash" put his ten athletes through two solid hours of jogging abound the lot, bunting and playing for the base-runners, fielding grounders on the infield, chasing flies and sprinting.

Bob Pastor Rules Favorite To Win From Lee Savold

Odds Are 5 to 2 on Bout In New York Garden Tomorrow

New York, Feb. 28 — Because of his cuteness inside ropes, because of his experience, because of his known ability to evade harm, Ruby Robert Pastor is a current 1-to-2½ favorite to whip belting Lee Savold, pride of the Iowa corn belt, when they trade punches for twelve rounds Friday night at Madison Square Garden. Of course, there are wise men on Jacobs Beach who believe that Savold will punch Robert dizzy, but the majority of sun bathers on the beach have it that Bob will win on points.

The mob has seen Savold in only two fights, tumbling Jackie O'Sullivan on the Pastor-Louis card in Detroit and thrashing clumsy Jim Robinson in the Garden a month or so ago. Now it isn't that the boys have too high regard for O'Sullivan or Robinson, but that they liked the way Savold did it. He went to work on both lads with a vehemence and class that made some sages remember the days when Joe Louis was just coming along. They'd say "Who'd he ever beat?" and then wax slightly rhapsodic about the method used. It's the same way with Savold.

Jimmy Johnston, who is slightly prejudiced, due perhaps to the fact that he's Pastor's manager, can't see why his Robert isn't a dead-sure cinch to wallop the Des Moines slugger. He yelled yesterday, after watching Pastor stab and stick Tommy Tucker for three rounds and Jarl Johnsen for a pair, that Bob is a new man. That he is as ambitious as a kid. That he doesn't see any reason on earth why Robert shouldn't dance past Savold and get in with Louis again. After all, Pastor went into the twenty-first round with Louis before finally getting his lumps.

Reports from California are that Eddie Mead denies that he will have Armstrong defend his welterweight title against Al Davis here May 10, and that round Edward says that Henry will go against Al Hostak in Seattle or Los Angeles if he whips Ceferino Garcia Friday night for the middleweight championship. That sounds a bit fuzzy. Mead is under contract to Mike Jacobs and will be here for the Davis affair.

Wesley Ramey will stab Paul De Bello in the eight-round lightweight fight at Ridgewood Grove Saturday night. . . . John Potter will take office as president of the Referees and Judges Association at the meeting tonight at Bothner's.

Games Tonight To Decide Leadership in Garrett County Church League

Oakland, Feb. 28. — Tomorrow night's church basketball league games will decide which team is to go into undisputed position for first place, and which team will descend into the cellar position, as the second round comes to an end. At the end of the first round the Methodists and Lutherans were tied for first place, but unusual results of games whereing the Lutherans have lost only to the Catholics, while both Episcopals and Methodists have defeated the Irish, have brought about the standing in the league at present.

In last week's games the Lutherans barely nosed out the Episcopals 31-30, while the Methodists won over the Catholics by the narrow margin of 31-28.

Tomorrow the Lutherans and Methodists meet in the first game at 7:30 while the Episcopals and Catholics meet in the nightcap. Two games are scheduled next Monday, March 4, and Thursday, March 7, so that the one night's play the following week, Monday, March 11, will conclude the season prior to Holy Week.

The final round schedule is as follows:

March 4, Catholics vs. Lutherans; Methodists vs. Episcopals.

March 7, Catholics vs. Methodists; Lutherans vs. Episcopals.

March 11, Catholics vs. Episcopals; Methodists vs. Lutherans.

Admission to these games is 5 and 10 cents and the high school auditorium has been filled each time.

Kreevich and Hayes Sign with Sox

Pasadena, Calif., Feb. 28 (AP)—Outfielder Mike Kreevich and Infielder Jackie Hayes came to terms with the Chicago White Sox today, leaving Pitched Clint Brown as the club's only holdout.

Harry Grabiner, Sox vice president, said "we have offered Brown as much as we can afford to pay him and the offer is final."

Games Are Cancelled

Bluefield, W. Va., Feb. 28 (AP)—The request of Bluefield college athletes that Tony Lotito coach them through the remainder of their basketball schedule was refused today.

The intramurals coach was asked to take over the job of Mullie Lenoir, who declined to finish the season. College officials cancelled the remaining games after students demonstrated against the ousting of Bob Herder, basketball captain.

Sounds Like A Different Game

Wichita, Kan. (AP)—When you read "Grundy Center takes baseball contest, 2 up," don't rage at the sports editor, because it may really be a ball game and not a golf match.

Match play will be introduced to the country on Semi-Pro Day, May 5, when 25,000 games throughout the country will officially open the semi-pro season.

Ray Dumont, president of the National Semi-Pro Baseball Congress, says credit for the idea goes to several semi-pro baseball commissioners who argue that match play would reveal the real victor of a ball game as the club that scores in the most innings. The commissioners point out that a club can play sparkling ball for eight innings, scoring in several frames during the interim, and then blow up in the last inning and lose the ball game.

Match play, the commissioner maintains, will reveal the real victor as the ball club that comes through the most often, inning by inning.

Marshall Noses Out Morris-Harvey 52-51

Huntington, W. Va., Feb. 28. (AP)—After toying with Morris Harvey through the first half, Marshall almost lost a basketball game tonight, eking out a 52-51 victory only by virtue of Joe Morecraft's foul shot in the final seconds of play.

Leading 23-15 going into the final period, the Herd relaxed its vigilance, and ten minutes from the final gun found the score knotted at 36.

Thereafter, the Eagles repeatedly tied the score or took short leads as Verlin Adams and Bob Starrett connected for goals.

Chiefly due to the efforts of Julie Rivlin, Marshall center who scored 25 points, the Herd stayed in the game, however, and with less than a minute remaining the score was knotted at 51.

Then Harrington was assessed a personal foul, and Joe Morecraft meshed the point for the victory, 25th in 28 starts for Marshall this year.

'Dutch' Harrison Clips Three off Par To Take Lead

Recovers To Shoot 13 Pars and Four Birdies at St. Petersburg

St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 28 (AP)—E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, Little Rock, Ark., professional, clipped three strokes from par for a 68 and the first round lead in the $3,000 54-hole St. Petersburg open golf tournament at the Lakewood Country Club today.

Harrison, recovering from a bogey 5 on the first hole, shot 13 pars and four birdies, displaying unerring touch with his putter. He held a one-stroke lead over Jimmy Demaret, smiling Houston, Tex., professional and leading money-winner of the winter tournament campaign.

Sammy Snead, the defending champion from Shawnee, Pa., who defeated Henry Picard in a 25-hole play-off for first money last year, occupied third place with his 70, the only other card better than par.

Clayton Heafner, Linville, N. C.; Byron Nelson, U. S. Open champion from Toledo, Ohio, and Billy Burke, former National Open titleholder of Belleair, Fla., equalled par with 71's.

The 72-bracket included John Revolta, Evanston, Ill., and Paul Runyan, White Plains, N. Y., former P.G.A. champions, and Ben Hogan, also from White Plains.

The 60 low professionals and 10 low amateurs qualified for the final 36 holes tomorrow. First money is $700.

Bobby Riggs and Fellow Chicagoan Play Semi-Finals

By BILL WHITE

New York, Feb. 28 (AP) — The National Indoor Tennis Championships took on a tri-city hue today as players from Chicago, Boston and Los Angeles dominated the quarter-finals competition.

Bobby Riggs, who possesses almost every worthwhile title except this one and the French championship, and his fellow Chicagoan, Frank A. Froehling, stormed into the semi-finals of the men's singles, where they will have to contend with each other.

Riggs fiddled around in the first set of his match with S. A. Davenport of New York, but then became the serious workman that he can be and disposed of his foe, 7-5, 6-4, 6-1.

Froehling, unseeded former Northwestern University player, almost had to pay rent for using the courts overtime in beating southpaw Marvin Kantrowitz of New York 6-2, 1-6, 6-3, 6-4.

In the other semi-final match tomorrow Don McNeill of Oklahoma city will be paired against Frank J. Bowden of New York.

Boston and Los Angeles shared honors in the women's singles quarter-finals.

Top-seeded Sarah Palfrey Fabyan swept gracefully past Charlotte C. McNeill of Bound Brook, N. J., 6-1, 6-4, and fourth-seeded Katherine Winthrop finally conquered Louise Raymond of Scarsdale, N. Y., 7-5, 5-7, 6-2, for Boston's behalf.

The Los Angeles victories were gained by defending champion Pauline Betz, who had an easy time conquering Norma Taubele of New York 6-3, 6-2, and by Gracyn Wheeler, who once was ranked nationally and who today stopped Millicent Hirsh of New York 9-7, 7-5.

Like the all-Chicago upper bracket of the men's semi-finals, the two Boston women will play each other and the two Los Angeles women will collide.

Riggs and his partner, Elwood Cooke of Portland, Ore., No. 1 seeded combination, scored the principal doubles conquest of the day by romping over Ray Palmer of New York and Alfred L. Jarvis of Tenafly, N. J., 8-6, 6-4.

And then Cooke and Mrs. Fabyan, top seeded mixed doubles team, nearly shut out Betty Rosenquist and Judah Lober, both of New York, 6-0, 6-1.

The Flickers' loss, coupled with a 2-1 triumph by the Canaries over the Catbirds, dropped them into third place, a game behind the Canaries.

The Woodpeckers gained possession of fourth place by handing the Eagles their fourth straight second-half shutout in the other match of the evening. The victory gives the winners a record of six wins against the same amount of losses.

Scholastic Court Schedule Nears Finale

Curtain Will Fall This Week-End for Basketball Teams

"Booster Day" Programs for LaSalle and Beall Highs

Allegany and LaSalle To Do Encore March 8 at Campobello

With the exception of Allegany High's clash with LaSalle Friday, March 8, at Campobello, the coming weekend will see the end of scholastic basketball in this district for the 1939-40 season.

LaSalle High and Beall High, will round out their home campaigns with "Booster Day" attractions this weekend.

Coach Eddie Finzel's Beall outfit, which scored its thirteenth victory in 23 starts by nosing out LaSalle Tuesday, will close its season by meeting an Alumni aggregation Friday night in the feature game of the school's "Booster Day" tripleheader.

Beall's Program

LaSalle, slated to oppose the Frostburg Jayvees away Friday night will drop the curtain on its home program Sunday afternoon with a similar "Booster" card.

Beall's Friday program will open at 6:30 with the all-star girls' teams clashing in the first of the night's three games. Faculty passers will meet the Junior Class quint, winner of Beall's intramural league race, at 7:30 and the Beall-Alumni battle will start an hour later. The special low admission price of 10 cents will prevail.

Lasalle's Program

LaSalle's Sunday matinee bill will start at 1:30 with the LaSalle Midgets opposing an all-star team composed of eighth grade students of the St. Patrick's, St. Mary's and SS. Peter and Paul parochial schools. The LaSalle Ramblers will meet LaSalle Reserves in the 2:30 game, and at 3:30 Coach Art Slocum will trot out his LaSalle regulars against the St. Vincent's College freshman quint.

The Loretto, Pa., plebes are reported to be one of the strongest freshman outfits in Western Pennsylvania this season. LaSalle has been successful in most of its engagements against scholastic opponents, but has not been able to handle collegiate opposition—losing to College Alumni tossers early in the season and bowing to the Potomac State yearlings in a recent game.

Fort Hill Away Friday

In other Friday games, Fort Hill's Sentinels will go to Hagerstown to close the Cumberland Valley Athletic League season, Oakland will play at Grantsville, and Frostburg State will be host to St. Francis of Loretto, Pa.

Sectional tournaments at Parsons and Keyser, with ten teams competing at Parsons and six at Keyser, will get under way Friday when the Martinsburg Sectional will draw to a close. Saturday night, the other three representatives in the regional tourney, to be held at Keyser next week, will be determined.

Harry Cioni's 728 Sets New County Bowling Record

Gets 33 of Possible 36 Marks in City League Match

A new Allegany county bowling record went into books Sunday at Club Recreation where Harry Cioni, rolling for the Embassy team in the City League, blasted 728 pins in the three-game set.

As far as can be ascertained, this is a new high for an individual rolling in a county loop and may also be the best score ever turned in by an Alleganian outside of county league circles.

Cioni had a total of 33 marks of a possible 36. He scattered 226 the first game and then snapped the City League single game record with a 267. In the third contest, he polished off 235 sticks to climax his feat.

Loop Team Marks Fall

The former City League highs were 247 for one game made by Francis Twigg of Club Recreation and 676 for set turned in by "Bud" Edenhart of Club.

Both loop team marks also fell as a result of Cioni's feat. Embassy, in winning three from SS. Peter and Paul, spilled 930 uprights in the first game and 2,731 for the set for new records. The former marks were 920 and 2,645, both made by Club.

Paul Cioni, Harry's brother, had 518 for SS. Peter and Paul while Bill Lee cleared the paths of 503. In two of their games, the Saints were over 800.

Diamonds Hold Lead

The Diamonds, first half champions, remained four games in front of Club Recreation in the current dash by winning three from Martin's Market at the Diamond. Club pinmen copped a 3-0 victory over the Cumberland Outdoor Club at the Savoy.

The Martin crew, after losing the first game to Diamond by one pin, forfeited the last two contests. It was announced that the Markets would be reorganized under the managership of Earl Brooks and resume the schedule next week.

Donelli Reported Seeking Coaching Position at Loyola

Los Angeles, Feb. 28. (AP)—Head Coach Buff Donelli of Duquesne University at Pittsburgh was reported by reliable sources today to be seeking the football coaching position at Loyola University.

Steve Sinko, Donelli's assistant, wrote a letter to a close friend here asking him to open negotiations with Loyola for Donelli and himself.

Donelli's Duquesne team was one of the best in the country last year.

Maurice (Clipper) Smith of Villanova reported two weeks ago he had accepted Loyola's offer for the position but abruptly "resigned" last Saturday. He explained he had not been able to get a release from Villanova on his contract.

LaSalle A. A. Drive For Funds Lagging

Volunteers Needed To Get Subscriptions and Secure New Donations

A special meeting of the LaSalle High Athletic Association has been called for Friday night at 8:15 at Carroll Hall by the president, W. Arnold "Doc" Gunther, to devise ways and means of speeding up the annual drive for funds.

The work of collecting second installments of three-year subscriptions and securing new donations has been dragging, Gunther said, and Friday's session has been called to organize the campaign on a more businesslike basis.

"Some volunteers have not been heard from since our first meeting early this month," Gunther said, "and others have failed to secure the cards of persons they contacted last year. We can complete the campaign in a week or 10 days if 30 or 40 members give us their full cooperation, but it's going to be very difficult to reach our goal unless we secure more support."

The campaign is being staged to secure funds to pay the salary of "Pat" Conway, who returns to LaSalle as coach and athletic director this spring after four years at West Philadelphia Catholic High, and to defray other expenses of the school's athletic program.

By BILL BONI

New York, Feb. 28 (AP)—Despite the presence of so many badge-wearers that there should have been efficient checking at all points, it now has developed that Joe McCluskey actually was "short-changed" out of a world indoor record in last Saturday's National Track Championships.

The two-mile steeplechase McCluskey won was fast all the way, and Joe finished off with a fine two-lap sprint. Therefore there was some surprise, but little more than that, when his time was announced as 10 minutes 3.4 seconds, 16.6 seconds slower than the mark he set in 1932.

The first squawk came from McCluskey, who claimed the official assigned to announce the number of laps to the runners yelled "seven to go" on two successive trips past the checking station.

Dan Ferris, secretary-treasurer of the A. A. U., insists an extra lap would have been impossible because McCluskey was checked at each quarter-mile and every one tallies down to the last, which was reported as 1 minute 33 seconds. Actually that was his fastest 440 but, as Ferris put it, Joe could have done 1:33 "on his hands and knees."

Ferris' explanation, therefore, ties up with the watches used by the timers. These show two sets of figures, one in red, the other black, and a hasty glance can lead to confusion by a matter of 30 seconds. Dan says the timer must have read "10.03.4" when actually it should have been "9:33.4"—and the latter time would have given McCluskey a new record by a margin of 13.5 seconds.

Asked why the timers wouldn't have noticed that the time they were reporting was inordinately slow, Ferris said:

"The timers weren't sufficiently well acquainted with steeplechase performances to notice any discrepancy."

The government was to have sponsored the meet, but couldn't under such unsettled conditions. . . . Scholastic Court Schedule Nears Finale

Curtain Will Fall This Week-End for Basketball Teams

"Booster Day" Programs for LaSalle and Beall Highs

Allegany and LaSalle To Do Encore March 8 at Campobello

With the exception of Allegany High's clash with LaSalle Friday, March 8, at Campobello, the coming weekend will see the end of scholastic basketball in this district for the 1939-40 season.

LaSalle High and Beall High, will round out their home campaigns with "Booster Day" attractions this weekend.

Coach Eddie Finzel's Beall outfit, which scored its thirteenth victory in 23 starts by nosing out LaSalle Tuesday, will close its season by meeting an Alumni aggregation Friday night in the feature game of the school's "Booster Day" tripleheader.

Beall's Program

LaSalle, slated to oppose the Frostburg Jayvees away Friday night will drop the curtain on its home program Sunday afternoon with a similar "Booster" card.

Beall's Friday program will open at 6:30 with the all-star girls' teams clashing in the first of the night's three games. Faculty passers will meet the Junior Class quint, winner of Beall's intramural league race, at 7:30 and the Beall-Alumni battle will start an hour later. The special low admission price of 10 cents will prevail.

Lasalle's Program

LaSalle's Sunday matinee bill will start at 1:30 with the LaSalle Midgets opposing an all-star team composed of eighth grade students of the St. Patrick's, St. Mary's and SS. Peter and Paul parochial schools. The LaSalle Ramblers will meet LaSalle Reserves in the 2:30 game, and at 3:30 Coach Art Slocum will trot out his LaSalle regulars against the St. Vincent's College freshman quint.

The Loretto, Pa., plebes are reported to be one of the strongest freshman outfits in Western Pennsylvania this season. LaSalle has been successful in most of its engagements against scholastic opponents, but has not been able to handle collegiate opposition—losing to College Alumni tossers early in the season and bowing to the Potomac State yearlings in a recent game.

Fort Hill Away Friday

In other Friday games, Fort Hill's Sentinels will go to Hagerstown to close the Cumberland Valley Athletic League season, Oakland will play at Grantsville, and Frostburg State will be host to St. Francis of Loretto, Pa.

Sectional tournaments at Parsons and Keyser, with ten teams competing at Parsons and six at Keyser, will get under way Friday when the Martinsburg Sectional will draw to a close. Saturday night, the other three representatives in the regional tourney, to be held at Keyser next week, will be determined.

Harry Cioni's 728 Sets New County Bowling Record

Gets 33 of Possible 36 Marks in City League Match

A new Allegany county bowling record went into books Sunday at Club Recreation where Harry Cioni, rolling for the Embassy team in the City League, blasted 728 pins in the three-game set.

As far as can be ascertained, this is a new high for an individual rolling in a county loop and may also be the best score ever turned in by an Alleganian outside of county league circles.

Cioni had a total of 33 marks of a possible 36. He scattered 226 the first game and then snapped the City League single game record with a 267. In the third contest, he polished off 235 sticks to climax his feat.

Loop Team Marks Fall

The former City League highs were 247 for one game made by Francis Twigg of Club Recreation and 676 for set turned in by "Bud" Edenhart of Club.

Both loop team marks also fell as a result of Cioni's feat. Embassy, in winning three from SS. Peter and Paul, spilled 930 uprights in the first game and 2,731 for the set for new records. The former marks were 920 and 2,645, both made by Club.

Paul Cioni, Harry's brother, had 518 for SS. Peter and Paul while Bill Lee cleared the paths of 503. In two of their games, the Saints were over 800.

Diamonds Hold Lead

The Diamonds, first half champions, remained four games in front of Club Recreation in the current dash by winning three from Martin's Market at the Diamond. Club pinmen copped a 3-0 victory over the Cumberland Outdoor Club at the Savoy.

The Martin crew, after losing the first game to Diamond by one pin, forfeited the last two contests. It was announced that the Markets would be reorganized under the managership of Earl Brooks and resume the schedule next week.

Simmons Looks Great

Anaheim, Calif., Feb. 28. (AP)—While the younger players stand around admiringly, old Al Simmons is slamming out a lot of solid line drives in the Athletics' training camp.

PITCHER TAKES TIME OUT

One of the three dozen Yankees now in training at St. Petersburg, Fla., for the coming campaign, Lefty Gomez takes time out for a siesta in the open air with his lovely wife, the former June O'Dea, ex-Follies star. An heir to the Gomez fortune is expected this spring.

George Brodbeck paced the Eagles in their record-breaking game with a sensational 267, one of the highest competitive scores of the year. The Eagles posted their phenomenal count in the third game of the set. Shipes' 178 total was low.

W.O.W. extended its winning streak to 11 games before dropping the second clash to DeMolay. Ellis Batdorf and Roy Ammons were high for the winners with 178-483 and 178-453, respectively, while Paul Smith topped DeMolay with 204-590.

Donelli Reported Seeking Coaching Position at Loyola

Los Angeles, Feb. 28. (AP)—Head Coach Buff Donelli of Duquesne University at Pittsburgh was reported by reliable sources today to be seeking the football coaching position at Loyola University.

Steve Sinko, Donelli's assistant, wrote a letter to a close friend here asking him to open negotiations with Loyola for Donelli and himself.

Donelli's Duquesne team was one of the best in the country last year.

Maurice (Clipper) Smith of Villanova reported two weeks ago he had accepted Loyola's offer for the position but abruptly "resigned" last Saturday. He explained he had not been able to get a release from Villanova on his contract.

LaSalle A. A. Drive For Funds Lagging

Volunteers Needed To Get Subscriptions and Secure New Donations

A special meeting of the LaSalle High Athletic Association has been called for Friday night at 8:15 at Carroll Hall by the president, W. Arnold "Doc" Gunther, to devise ways and means of speeding up the annual drive for funds.

The work of collecting second installments of three-year subscriptions and securing new donations has been dragging, Gunther said, and Friday's session has been called to organize the campaign on a more businesslike basis.

"Some volunteers have not been heard from since our first meeting early this month," Gunther said, "and others have failed to secure the cards of persons they contacted last year. We can complete the campaign in a week or 10 days if 30 or 40 members give us their full cooperation, but it's going to be very difficult to reach our goal unless we secure more support."

The campaign is being staged to secure funds to pay the salary of "Pat" Conway, who returns to LaSalle as coach and athletic director this spring after four years at West Philadelphia Catholic High, and to defray other expenses of the school's athletic program.

Sport Shorts

By BILL BONI

New York, Feb. 28 (AP)—Despite the presence of so many badge-wearers that there should have been efficient checking at all points, it now has developed that Joe McCluskey actually was "short-changed" out of a world indoor record in last Saturday's National Track Championships.

The two-mile steeplechase McCluskey won was fast all the way, and Joe finished off with a fine two-lap sprint. Therefore there was some surprise, but little more than that, when his time was announced as 10 minutes 3.4 seconds, 16.6 seconds slower than the mark he set in 1932.

The first squawk came from McCluskey, who claimed the official assigned to announce the number of laps to the runners yelled "seven to go" on two successive trips past the checking station.

Dan Ferris, secretary-treasurer of the A. A. U., insists an extra lap would have been impossible because McCluskey was checked at each quarter-mile and every one tallies down to the last, which was reported as 1 minute 33 seconds. Actually that was his fastest 440 but, as Ferris put it, Joe could have done 1:33 "on his hands and knees."

Ferris' explanation, therefore, ties up with the watches used by the timers. These show two sets of figures, one in red, the other black, and a hasty glance can lead to confusion by a matter of 30 seconds. Dan says the timer must have read "10.03.4" when actually it should have been "9:33.4"—and the latter time would have given McCluskey a new record by a margin of 13.5 seconds.

Asked why the timers wouldn't have noticed that the time they were reporting was inordinately slow, Ferris said:

"The timers weren't sufficiently well acquainted with steeplechase performances to notice any discrepancy."

The forthcoming Cuban election forced cancellation of plans for an international sports program in Havana this month? The government was to have sponsored the meet, but couldn't under such unsettled conditions. . . . Wallace Opposes "Market Basket" Purchasing Plan

Against Plan of Forcing Foreign Nations To Buy in U. S.

Washington, Feb. 28 (AP)—A "market basket" plan of forcing nations at war to buy farm products in the United States along with purchases of munitions is frowned upon by Secretary Wallace because, he says, it might bring retaliations from affected countries after the war.

For instance, he told the Senate Finance Committee, an effort to compel Great Britain to buy tobacco here undoubtedly would result in "very deep resentment against us and deep distrust of us." He added that "feelings of that sort usually reflect themselves in an economic way."

The agriculture department head was testifying in support of those approved legislation to extend the reciprocal trade program three years beyond its June 12 expiration date.

Senator La Follette (Prog-Wis) had contended that American farmers were "getting it in the neck as the result of the belligerent nations."

La Follette expressed the view that something could be done to offset secret trade agreements between belligerents and European neutrals.

Wallace replied that the government had certain powers but he did not wish to discuss them for the record.

The secretary said, under La Follette's questioning, that the "market basket" plan had been mentioned off-hand in his department, along with a possible tax on munitions.

Under the "market basket" plan a belligerent who bought munitions would have to purchase a specified amount of non-military supplies.

Your Federal Income Tax

Allowable Deductions for Losses Are Further Explained

Deductions for losses are divided into four classes, and to be allowed must follow closely the wording of the income-tax law. Losses are deductible if incurred (1) in the taxpayer's trade, business, or profession; (2) in any transaction entered into for profit; (3) from fires, storms, shipwreck, or other casualties, or from theft; and (4) from wagering transactions.

Business losses, result, usually from the purchase and sale of merchandise. Such losses usually are ascertained by means of inventories, which are required whenever in the opinion of the commissioner of internal revenue their use is necessary to determine the income of any taxpayer.

The term "transaction entered into for profit" means any kind of business proposition. For example, a taxpayer purchases an automobile to be used solely for business purposes, and which is sold at a loss. As this is a business proposition, from start to finish, the loss is deductible, subject to the limitations of section 117 as amended. But if he had purchased the automobile to be used for pleasure or convenience, the deduction would not be allowed; it was not a transaction entered into for profit.

A loss sustained in the theft of an automobile purchased for pleasure or convenience is deductible, as it falls in class 3. If, because of faulty driving but not of "willful negligence," an automobile maintained for pleasure is damaged, the taxpayer may claim the loss sustained, as it comes within the meaning of the word casualty." Where damages result from the faulty driving of an automobile with which the automobile of the taxpayer collides, the loss occasioned the taxpayer likewise is deductible.

Losses from wagering transactions, whether legal or illegal, are deductible only to the extent of gains from such transactions. The excess of such losses over the gains is not deductible.

All losses are deductible only to the extent to which they are not compensated for by insurance or otherwise. Deductible capital losses are further subject to the limitations of section 117, as amended.

Capacity To Produce Steel Decreases

New York, Feb. 28 (AP) — The American Steel Industry's capacity to produce declined during 1939, the American Iron and Steel Institute reports.

While the open-hearth process remained the steel master's favored method for output of ingots, and electric furnace capacity rose to a new record high, Bessemer converters of more than 1,000,000 tons capacity were scapped.

The industry's ingot capacity by all processes was rated at 80,950,901 net (2,000-pound) tons yearly, a drop of less than ½ of 1 per cent from 81,238,045 tons a year earlier, which was the highest total on record.

Open hearth furnace capacity set a new peak of 73,343,547 tons, compared with 72,596,153. Electric furnace capacity rose to 1,497,658 net tons of ingots from 1,592,080.

Bessemer converters capacity sank to 6,009,920, the lowest in 40 years, from 7,138,880 at the close of 1938.

When the Bessemer process was favored from 1905 through 1918 production ran from eleven to thirteen million tons a year.

CHAPTER FORTY-TWO

"But you're not happy, dear. Not quite," said Cissie.

THE NEXT month was a busy one for everyone in Cecelia's newly formed family circle. Cissie was like a proud mother hen clucking over her two chicks as she watched their amazing radio careers unfold.

"I wouldn't have missed all this for the world," she told Romany one day in the studio, watching the first televised broadcast she had ever seen.

In her South Shore drive apartment, she had engineers install the best television reception equipment money could buy. And she invited all her friends to drop in for tea and watch and listen to her lovely niece as she came over the air.

Cissie was as unselfishly devoted to Charlotte as to Romany. At first Cholly was overwhelmed with the idea of being introduced to Chicago society as Cecelia Harlowe's ward. But she soon grew accustomed to her new role and found herself having a marvelous time playing Cinderella. Much to her amazement, she learned that a lot of people in the upper brackets were quite as human and unaffected as anyone else. And she began seriously to doubt that a lot of ideas she had entertained regarding the rich were entirely sound. For instance: There was Dover. Would he be any different if he had been brought up on a farm than with a silver spoon in his mouth? If you were a real person, did it matter whether you were rich or poor?

A few days before Christmas, Cecelia asked Romany:

"Do you know how to drive a car, dear? If you don't, you'd better take some lessons."

"Yes, I know how to drive. But why?" Romany looked puzzled.

"Because," — Cissie looked up from the magazine she was reading in her boudoir—"I bought one for you today. And I can't wait till Christmas to give it to you."

"Oh!" Romany jumped up. "Aunt Cissie, you shouldn't have done it!"

Cissie kissed her affectionately.

"Don't you think I know how much money you've been sending home to your father and mother, and if you won't buy anything but annuities for yourself, I'll just have to buy the luxuries for you. Besides, I think you should have a car in your position. You seem to forget you're a famous young lady now."

Romany buried her head in her aunt's lap.

"Oh,"—her voice caught—"everybody is so good and so many lovely things are happening to me. I ought to be the happiest girl in the world."

Cissie raised her head, looking into her eyes.

"But you're not happy, dear. Not quite," she said gently. "Could you tell me about it? I'd like to know. I'm rather fond of you, you know."

Romany stirred uneasily, her green eyes troubled.

"I—it's something I can't quite explain, Aunt Cissie. Not even to myself. I—wish I could."

"Is it about Brent Nelson?" Cecelia asked, stroking her hair. "Is it that you aren't sure you love him, and want to marry him?"

"That's part of it," Romany sighed. "I know I'm very fond of him, and he has begged me to marry him. I think I'm crazy not to. But—I just don't feel—"

When she stopped, Cissie nodded, sighing.

"You just don't feel! Yes, I know, darling. Well, if you're not sure, be very careful. It would be terrible if you married someone you didn't love. I've seen so much of marriage for social position, and for money, I couldn't bear to see you marry and have your home smashed on the rocks. I guess I'm not very modern."

"That's the way I feel." Romany held tightly to her aunt's hand, as if she needed something to cling to. "I thought once that I wasn't the sort of person who would ever really fall in love. That if I married it would be because I met someone who would be good to me and congenial. But now I'm not sure."

Cecelia said gently:

"Is there someone else, Romany, besides Brent? Someone you met at the university, perhaps?"

As if in answer to her aunt's thoughts, Romany said:

"There's—Baxter Tree. The writer I told you about. I'm very fond of him. I do miss him terribly. But I guess he's crossed me off his list. He really wasn't away for Thanksgiving. I doubt if he had the fare to go home. He's so poor."

Cissie watched Romany's face closely.

"But—he's just a friend, isn't he? You couldn't be in love with him."

"Oh, no." Romany turned away. "There's never been any romance between Bax and me. But"—she hesitated—"he did kiss me down by the lake the night I went to his apartment to find out why he hadn't come to see us."

Aunt Cissie was highly amused.

"He kissed you! Did he act as though he meant it? Or just as though he thought it might be expected of him and he'd better get it over with?"

Romany smiled wistfully.

"Very much as though he meant it the first time. But later, when I wanted him to kiss me again, he just looked at me and said no, he wouldn't like to get the habit."

"You brazen thing!" Cissie laughed. "I can't imagine your going around asking men to kiss you."

"I can't either," Romany said, in a low voice. "And I'll know better next time. But he was so discouraged and unhappy. I felt so sorry for him, it just about broke my heart."

"Oh," said Cecelia, "so that's it!"

"What?" Romany looked up questioningly.

"Pity, my darling, is akin to love. Didn't anyone ever tell you that? And when a woman feels like kissing away a man's aches and pains, it looks pretty serious to me."

Cissie said it teasingly. But she decided Baxter Mason Tree would come to her Christmas house party for lonesome and homeless radio performers if she had to go and bring him herself. She said a little later:

"What is Bax's show like? Is he clever?"

Romany said fervently:

"He writes out of this world, Aunt Cissie! If 'Paradise Is Here' gets on the air, it will make radio history. I've some of the scripts. I think about ten of them, here. Would you like to read them when you aren't busy?"

"I'd love it!" enthused Cecelia. "I'm getting to be quite a radio dramatic show addict. I find myself hurrying home for fear Lizzie Corntassel will fall off the cliff the author left her on the day before and I'll miss it."

Romany took Bax's scripts to Aunt Cissie before she went to her own room to bed. Cissie kissed her tenderly.

"Good night, baby. I hope your starving genius is as entertaining as you think he is. We'll invade his attic and talk some sense into him some of these days if he spurns us much longer."

"You'd better stay away from him," Romany warned her, smiling. "Brent asked me today if I'd mind if he invited you to the opera with him next week when I was broadcasting. You're dangerous competition, Cecelia darling."

In the lobby of Interstate the next morning, Romany met Bob Lane. He held out his hand, grinning.

"Well, Miss Television, I haven't seen you in a long time. But I've been reading and hearing things."

"Not Miss Television," Romany smiled. "I've withdrawn from the contest."

"You'd have won it," Lane said with assurance. "I hear the votes are pouring in for your girl friend, Miss O'Neil."

"Isn't it marvelous!" Romany said happily.

"She's a sensation," Bob nodded. "But I knew she would be when I saw her and heard her play. By the way, Baxter Tree was in to see me today. He's leaving for New York, he tells me."

"Oh!" Romany's heart sank. "When? Do you know?"

"Next week. The day after Christmas, he says. I've done everything I can, but I don't seem to have any luck getting a break for him. He's got the best show in town, too. This radio is a crazy business!"

Cissie watched Romany's face closely.

"But—he's just a friend, isn't he? You couldn't be in love with him."

"Oh, no." Romany turned away. "There's never been any romance between Bax and me. But"—she hesitated—"he did kiss me down by the lake the night I went to his apartment to find out why he hadn't come to see us."

Aunt Cissie was highly amused.

"He kissed you! Did he act as though he meant it? Or just as though he thought it might be expected of him and he'd better get it over with?"

Romany smiled wistfully.

"Very much as though he meant it the first time. But later, when I wanted him to kiss me again, he just looked at me and said no, he wouldn't like to get the habit."

"You brazen thing!" Cissie laughed. "I can't imagine your going around asking men to kiss you."

"I can't either," Romany said, in a low voice. "And I'll know better next time. But he was so discouraged and unhappy. I felt so sorry for him, it just about broke my heart."

"Oh," said Cecelia, "so that's it!"

"What?" Romany looked up questioningly.

"Pity, my darling, is akin to love. Didn't anyone ever tell you that? And when a woman feels like kissing away a man's aches and pains, it looks pretty serious to me."

Cissie said it teasingly. But she decided Baxter Mason Tree would come to her Christmas house party for lonesome and homeless radio performers if she had to go and bring him herself. She said a little later:

"What is Bax's show like? Is he clever?"

Romany said fervently:

"He writes out of this world, Aunt Cissie! If 'Paradise Is Here' gets on the air, it will make radio history. I've some of the scripts, I think about ten of them, here. Would you like to read them when you aren't busy?"

"I'd love it!" enthused Cecelia. "I'm getting to be quite a radio dramatic show addict. I find myself hurrying home for fear Lizzie Corntassel will fall off the cliff the author left her on the day before and I'll miss it."

Romany took Bax's scripts to Aunt Cissie before she went to her own room to bed. Cissie kissed her tenderly.

"Good night, baby. I hope your starving genius is as entertaining as you think he is. We'll invade his attic and talk some sense into him some of these days if he spurns us much longer."

"You'd better stay away from him," Romany warned her, smiling. "Brent asked me today if I'd mind if he invited you to the opera with him next week when I was broadcasting. You're dangerous competition, Cecelia darling."

In the lobby of Interstate the next morning, Romany met Bob Lane. He held out his hand, grinning.

"Well, Miss Television, I haven't seen you in a long time. But I've been reading and hearing things."

"Not Miss Television," Romany smiled. "I've withdrawn from the contest."

"You'd have won it," Lane said with assurance. "I hear the votes are pouring in for your girl friend, Miss O'Neil."

"Isn't it marvelous!" Romany said happily.

"She's a sensation," Bob nodded. "But I knew she would be when I saw her and heard her play. By the way, Baxter Tree was in to see me today. He's leaving for New York, he tells me."

"Oh!" Romany's heart sank. "When? Do you know?"

"Next week. The day after Christmas, he says. I've done everything I can, but I don't seem to have any luck getting a break for him. He's got the best show in town, too. This radio is a crazy business!"

Lost Silver Mine May Have Been Vein of Lead

Webster County Oldtimers Discredit Theory of Silver Discovery

Webster Springs, W. Va., Feb. 28 (AP)—Maybe the "lost silver mine" on the Gauley river wasn't a silver mine after all.

Recent accounts of the "lost mine" and the legendary treasure of kegs of silver dollars supposed to have been buried somewhere in Nicholas or Webster county 150 years ago brought renewed speculation on the part of some residents and frank skepticism from others.

Webster county oldtimers, remembering stories told by their fathers and grandfathers, are inclined to believe the four men who buried the "silver" along the Gauley did not find a silver lode, but did discover a vein of lead, and that the money they made was counterfeit.

Sherman Gregory, former town policeman, recalled he had often heard his father tell of men hunting for lead in the years just before the Civil War.

Silver Not Mentioned

Gregory said his father told stories of Indians coming to hunt game at the salt sulphur springs, and then going to the head of the Elk river to get lead to make bullets.

He said his father never mentioned a silver mine, but talk of a lead mine was common when he was a boy. His mother, when a girl, he said, once found lead in the mud of a little brook.

Other oldtimers recall a time many years ago when several men were engaged in some mysterious work in the Gauley river neighborhood. These men, the stories said, went into Kentucky and Virginia and bought cattle with silver coins. The gang disappeared when officers said to have been sent by the Bank of Richmond came into the county, and it was later reported the bank had taken in many silver dollars which turned out to be counterfeit.

Richwood people, however, are not inclined to brush aside the silver legend.

Had Copy of Map

Melvin Morton, of Richwood, announced he had an exact copy of the map showing the location of the silver mine and smelting furnace as left by William Swift, one of the four men who are supposed to have discovered the lode and buried kegs of money after refining the ore.

Morton said he made the copy from the original twenty-five years ago, but never bothered to hunt for the silver because Swift had neglected to mark the latitude and longitude.

Other oldtimers recalled that a man named Vincent, who lived near Craigsville, once rented an instrument for detecting buried treasure, and after using it for awhile later bought it outright for $1.500.

It is not recorded that he ever found the Gauley silver, or any other metal, but the oldtimers reason he must have found something or he would not have bought the instrument after trying it out.

Both May Be Right

It may be that both schools of thought are right about the matter. Geologists say it is not often that either silver or lead is found in a pure state, and in many cases where one is found, the other is also present.

One West Virginia geologist, informed of the silver legend, said that "while it is not very likely, it still is quite possible that there are both silver and lead deposits in eastern West Virginia.

Considering the primitive methods by which the discoverers of the silver must have used to refine the ore, it seems possible then that the result may have been a silver and lead alloy. This would account for the presence of the lead and the story of the counterfeit coins.

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 28 (AP) — Net income of the Virginian railway during January amounted to $798,385, an increase of $180,471 over the net income of $617,914, in January 1939, according to a statement just released.

The line's operating income in January 1940 was $2,219,014, and its railway operating expenses were $934,851, leaving a balance for the month in net revenue from railway operations of $1,274,162. The net revenue from railway operations in January 1939 was $1,048,224.

The railway operating income amounted to $959,162 in this past January, after the deduction of railway tax accruals. The same income was $778,224 in January 1939.

Stage Show At Strand Is Like "Hellzapoppin'"

"Wake Up and Cheer," a stage show showing at the Strand, is on the order of "Hellzapoppin'", the revue that is now in its second year in New York.

There are thirty-five artists on the stage composed of excellent vaudeville acts, a very pretty chorus, a good stage band, an exceptional group of comedians.

The picture showing with this hit show is based on revelations in J. Edgar Hoover's book, "Persons In Hiding." The film features William Henry, Virginia Dale, Anthony Quinn, Robert Paige, Richard Denning and Lyle Talbot at the head of a strong featured cast. The plot shows how a parole-fixing lawyer uses his power over the criminals he has freed to engineer the kidnaping of a society woman's daughter. Clever work on the scanty clues left by the kidnapers leads the G-Men unerringly to their quarry.

The federal men know that they have bigger game in their gasp, however, and by a series of clever manipulations they manage to unmask the crooked attorney and his political associates before they spring the trap on the criminals.

Darryl F. Zanuck's production of "The Grapes of Wrath," John Steinback's best-seller which John Ford directed and Twentieth Century-Fox produced, will be at the Strand Friday.

The film version of "The Grapes of Wrath" has Henry Fonda as Tom Joad, Jane Darwell as Mo Joad, John Carradine as Casy, the preacher, Charley Grapewin as Grampa, Dorris Bowden as Rosasharn, Russell Simpson as Pa Joad, O. Z. Whitehead as Al, John Qualen as Muley, Eddie Quillan as Connie and Zeffie Tilbury as Granma.

Laughs Pack Film of Race Track Cabbies

Hilariously depicting the experiences of a group of New York taxidrivers who evolve a unique scheme to beat the racetrack book-makers, "The Day the Bookies Wept," presents comedian Joe Penner in the stellar role at the Garden Theater.

Forming a pool, the cabmen purchase a race horse, electing Penner, also a hackman, to buy the steed at a Kentucky auction. But Penner unwittingly buys a nag which is addicted to alcoholics. The hectic adventures the cabbies have with their eccentric pony, and the manner in which they eventually realize their ambition to make "the bookies weep," are said to afford excruciatingly funny moments.

Betty Grable plays the romantic lead opposite the radio and screen comic in this RKO Radio funfest.

Also on the Garden program is "Jamaica Inn", starring Charles Laughton.

George Washington weighed 210 pounds when he was 40 years old. He stood six feet two inches.

"Wake Up and Cheer," a stage show showing at the Strand, is on the order of "Hellzapoppin'", the revue that is now in its second year in New York.

There are thirty-five artists on the stage composed of excellent vaudeville acts, a very pretty chorus, a good stage band, an exceptional group of comedians.

The picture showing with this hit show is based on revelations in J. Edgar Hoover's book, "Persons In Hiding." The film features William Henry, Virginia Dale, Anthony Quinn, Robert Paige, Richard Denning and Lyle Talbot at the head of a strong featured cast. The plot shows how a parole-fixing lawyer uses his power over the criminals he has freed to engineer the kidnaping of a society woman's daughter. Clever work on the scanty clues left by the kidnapers leads the G-Men unerringly to their quarry.

The federal men know that they have bigger game in their gasp, however, and by a series of clever manipulations they manage to unmask the crooked attorney and his political associates before they spring the trap on the criminals.

Darryl F. Zanuck's production of "The Grapes of Wrath," John Steinback's best-seller which John Ford directed and Twentieth Century-Fox produced, will be at the Strand Friday.

The film version of "The Grapes of Wrath" has Henry Fonda as Tom Joad, Jane Darwell as Mo Joad, John Carradine as Casy, the preacher, Charley Grapewin as Grampa, Dorris Bowden as Rosasharn, Russell Simpson as Pa Joad, O. Z. Whitehead as Al, John Qualen as Muley, Eddie Quillan as Connie and Zeffie Tilbury as Granma.

Laughs Pack Film of Race Track Cabbies

Hilariously depicting the experiences of a group of New York taxidrivers who evolve a unique scheme to beat the racetrack book-makers, "The Day the Bookies Wept," presents comedian Joe Penner in the stellar role at the Garden Theater.

Forming a pool, the cabmen purchase a race horse, electing Penner, also a hackman, to buy the steed at a Kentucky auction. But Penner unwittingly buys a nag which is addicted to alcoholics. The hectic adventures the cabbies have with their eccentric pony, and the manner in which they eventually realize their ambition to make "the bookies weep," are said to afford excruciatingly funny moments.

Betty Grable plays the romantic lead opposite the radio and screen comic in this RKO Radio funfest.

Also on the Garden program is "Jamaica Inn", starring Charles Laughton.

George Washington weighed 210 pounds when he was 40 years old. He stood six feet two inches.

D. Boone Dawson Announces for Governor in West Virginia

Charleston Mayor Third Republican To Enter Race

Platform Includes Thrift, Clean Elections and Money for Cities

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 28 (AP)—D. Boone Dawson, serving term as Republican mayor of Charleston and long considered a gubernatorial aspirant, announced tonight he will run in the May 14 primary.

Dawson, the third to seek the Republican nomination for governor, announced on a platform of thrift, clean elections and sufficient money for operation of municipalities.

The mayor's announcement followed by just a week the statement of Circuit Judge Dewis M. Miller of Ripley, that he would be in the race. Dr. D. B. Ealy of Moundsville, state senator from the second district, announced several weeks ago.

Mentioned Frequently

Since Dawson was reelected mayor last April he had been mentioned frequently in connection with the Republican gubernatorial contest.

The forty-two-year-old mayor, a native of Kanawha county, was Municipal Police Judge prior to his first term as the Capital city's chief executive.

His entry was expected by many to be the last on the Republican side in the primary campaign. Others have been mentioned but have given no definite indication of announcing.

In his statement Dawson said:

"I am well aware that there is a job to be done in West Virginia and pledge myself to the gigantic task that will face the next chief executive.

"To render our government stable, taxes must be applied wisely without imposing a burden that is too great to be borne by our citizens and our industry. Principals of thrift and good management can be applied to the operation of our state government.

"I believe that this can best be accomplished by slashing dead-wood from the payroll and eliminating the needless political employes that have crowded the capacity of our large and beautiful capitol building."

Announced Platform

Dawson's platform included financial aid for municipalities. As Charleston's representative in the State League of Municipalities he has been active in the league's efforts to obtain more funds for communities whose property tax revenues were decreased by the tax limitation amendment of 1932.

"Cities are important units of our state," he said. "That they have sufficient funds to operate properly and keep pace with our state's growth and progress along other lines is essential."

Dawson's terms have been marked by a large amount of municipal building, including a boulevard along the Kanawha river, a municipal auditorium, a new incinerator, three new bridges, four new fire stations, a deep sewer system and several miles of street paving.

Patrolman Charges Huntington Is Becoming "Wide Open" Again

Huntington, W. Va., Feb. 28 (AP)—Patrolman Cecil Kessick, who charged that Huntington is becoming "wide open" again, and was removed from the police department for insubardination by Mayor George R. Seamonds, will receive a Civil Service Commission hearing March 7.

He denied flatly today in a brief filed with the commission, the mayor's charges that he had disobeyed orders, or that he had been disrespectful toward superiors, including Seamonds and Police Chief Lon H. Whitten.

Kessick was one of a group of eight "insurgent" members of the force who conducted vice raids on their own time last December without department authorization.

These and parallel raids by independent reform agencies resulted in more than 100 arrests and padlocking of most of Huntington's gambling establishments and speakeasies.

Since then, Kessick charged, in a statement shortly before his ouster by Seamonds early this week, "we (The Insurgents) have been so scattered we can't do anything about conditions now."

He added that the town is becoming "wide open" again.

Grantsville, W. Va. Editor Is Stabbed

H. F. Leggett, 55, Is in Critical Condition in Spencer Hospital

Grantsville, W. Va., Feb. 28 (AP)—H. F. Leggett, 55-year-old editor of the Grantsville News, was stabbed twice and was cut about the throat today by a visitor in his office.

Doctors at Spencer held little hope for his recovery.

Leggett was alone in the office of the weekly paper at the time of the assault, about 2:45 p. m.

Mrs. Leggett, who entered the building a few minutes later, said she heard a gurgling noise and discovered her husband on the floor behind the press.

She said that as she entered a young man who had been sitting in the editor's chair ran out the door and toward the river.

Sergeant N. L. Sidebottom of the State Police said he had arrested George Carter, 25, for questioning but filed no charges pending outcome of Leggett's injuries.

State Trooper C. C. Stewart, assisting in the investigation, said Carter had been drinking.

Questioned as to "why he did it," Stewart quoted Carter as saying:

"I just don't remember."

Stewart identified Carter as a laborer employed on a National Youth Administration project three miles from Grantsville.

Carter is being held without charge at the state police barracks in Grantsville.

Dr. Marshall De Pue of the De Pue hospital at Spencer said Leggett suffered a severe cut in the back of the neck, near the spinal cord, and stab wounds in the right cheek and above the eyes.

He described the editor's condition as "very critical." An operation was performed immediately after Leggett reached Spencer.

Sergeant Sidebottom said no motive had been established.

Leggett, who had been a resident of Grantsville, Calhoun county seat, for about ten years, managed one of the papers in the weekly chain operated by Woodyard Publications, Inc., of Spencer.

Series of Meetings Are Being Held in Hardy County

Moorefield, W. Va., Feb. 28—Approximately 300 of 1,000 Hardy county farmers who are participating in the Agricultural Conservation program are being informed of important changes in the 1940 program over the 1939 set-up through a series of twelve meetings being held throughout the county by S. L. Dodd, county agent.

According to Mr. Dodd, several changes have taken place which should be brought to the attention of the individual farmer so that he may plan his participation more accurately for the 1940 season. In explaining the several phases of the program, Mr. Dodd is especially emphasizing the goals of thoughtful, effective farming and the use of the devices recommended by the Conservation Association to accomplish these ends.

Twelve centers were selected for the educational meetings in order to reach the maximum number of farmers. Finding of Three Skeletons Points To Triple Murder

Richmond, W. Va., State Police Attempting To Solve Mystery

Richwood, W. Va., Feb. 28 (AP)—A thirty-man hunt through mountain brush and trees furnished little hope tonight to police trying to get a lead on a triple murder, apparently disclosed by discovery of a mouldy cardboard box filled with the partial skeletons of three persons.

State Trooper W. L. Pence, after disclosing the box had been found by a WPA workman near U. S. Highway 19 on Powell mountain near Birch river, said it obviously had been thrown from an automobile and may have rested in that isolated section as long as a month.

Both Pence and Nicholas county Sheriff F. C. Perkins of Summersville expressed the preliminary opinion that murders had been committed, but probably far from the spot where the bones were found.

Pence, Perkins and Sergeant B. F. McLaughlin of the state police led WPA workers in covering the drab and rugged countryside, a mile or so from the Braxton county line. They were to go out again in the morning.

Completely in Dark

"We are completely in the dark," Pence said, "and our efforts today produced nothing. We have no reports of missing persons from surrounding counties although we have not sent out a broadcast as yet."

The old box, gaping open after considerable exposure to snow and rain, contained only the bones of the lower part of the bodies of three persons, Pence said.

A Richwood physician expressed the opinion the flesh had been removed by acid and the bones burned, but it would take an expert to determine how long the bones had been separated from the flesh.

He said some of the bones were those of a man, apparently one who led an active life. There also was a part of a skeleton of a child, probably about nine or ten years old. The other partial skeleton was that of a person of "intermediate" age.

There were no skulls or arm bones.

Pence said the skeletons probably would be sent to the State Police Criminal Identification Bureau in Charleston.

The spot where the bones were found is about thirty-five miles from Richwood, in the heart of Central West Virginia. It is about ten miles from Sutton, Braxton county seat, and fifteen miles from Summersville, Nicholas county seat.

U. S. Route 19 is a through highway but passes over a sparsely populated hill country. There were no houses within a half mile of the scene.

WPA Worker Finds Bones

Free Carpenter, a Birch river WPA worker, discovered the box of bones Saturday while with a group of men repairing a guard rail on Powell mountain. Pence said he was not notified until Monday night.

The trooper described the bones as "chopped and broken apart at the joints and very roughly handled."

"There is a possibility, of course, that they came from a medical college or a doctor's office," he added, "but the manner in which they were treated leads to the opinion that the persons were murdered."

Sheriff Perkins commented "that we are convinced these persons were slain," adding that "there is absolutely nothing to indicate that a crime was committed in the vicinity where the box was discovered."

Dr. E. J. Vanllere, head of the West Virginia University School of Medicine, said at Morgantown that all of the school's skeletons released in the last five years had been returned. He expressed the belief it was the general practice for medical schools to reclaim all skeletons sent out.

D. Boone Dawson Announces for Governor in West Virginia

Platform Includes Thrift, Clean Elections and Money for Cities

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 28 (AP)—D. Boone Dawson, serving term as Republican mayor of Charleston and long considered a gubernatorial aspirant, announced tonight he will run in the May 14 primary.

Dawson, the third to seek the Republican nomination for governor, announced on a platform of thrift, clean elections and sufficient money for operation of municipalities.

The mayor's announcement followed by just a week the statement of Circuit Judge Dewis M. Miller of Ripley, that he would be in the race. Dr. D. B. Ealy of Moundsville, state senator from the second district, announced several weeks ago.

Mentioned Frequently

Since Dawson was reelected mayor last April he had been mentioned frequently in connection with the Republican gubernatorial contest.

The forty-two-year-old mayor, a native of Kanawha county, was Municipal Police Judge prior to his first term as the Capital city's chief executive.

His entry was expected by many to be the last on the Republican side in the primary campaign. Others have been mentioned but have given no definite indication of announcing.

In his statement Dawson said:

"I am well aware that there is a job to be done in West Virginia and pledge myself to the gigantic task that will face the next chief executive.

"To render our government stable, taxes must be applied wisely without imposing a burden that is too great to be borne by our citizens and our industry. Principals of thrift and good management can be applied to the operation of our state government.

"I believe that this can best be accomplished by slashing dead-wood from the payroll and eliminating the needless political employes that have crowded the capacity of our large and beautiful capitol building."

Announced Platform

Dawson's platform included financial aid for municipalities. As Charleston's representative in the State League of Municipalities he has been active in the league's efforts to obtain more funds for communities whose property tax revenues were decreased by the tax limitation amendment of 1932.

"Cities are important units of our state," he said. "That they have sufficient funds to operate properly and keep pace with our state's growth and progress along other lines is essential."

Dawson's terms have been marked by a large amount of municipal building, including a boulevard along the Kanawha river, a municipal auditorium, a new incinerator, three new bridges, four new fire stations, a deep sewer system and several miles of street paving.

Patrolman Charges Huntington Is Becoming "Wide Open" Again

Huntington, W. Va., Feb. 28 (AP)—Patrolman Cecil Kessick, who charged that Huntington is becoming "wide open" again, and was removed from the police department for insubardination by Mayor George R. Seamonds, will receive a Civil Service Commission hearing March 7.

He denied flatly today in a brief filed with the commission, the mayor's charges that he had disobeyed orders, or that he had been disrespectful toward superiors, including Seamonds and Police Chief Lon H. Whitten.

Kessick was one of a group of eight "insurgent" members of the force who conducted vice raids on their own time last December without department authorization.

These and parallel raids by independent reform agencies resulted in more than 100 arrests and padlocking of most of Huntington's gambling establishments and speakeasies.

Since then, Kessick charged, in a statement shortly before his ouster by Seamonds early this week, "we (The Insurgents) have been so scattered we can't do anything about conditions now."

He added that the town is becoming "wide open" again.

Grantsville, W. Va. Editor Is Stabbed

H. F. Leggett, 55, Is in Critical Condition in Spencer Hospital

Grantsville, W. Va., Feb. 28 (AP)—H. F. Leggett, 55-year-old editor of the Grantsville News, was stabbed twice and was cut about the throat today by a visitor in his office.

Doctors at Spencer held little hope for his recovery.

Leggett was alone in the office of the weekly paper at the time of the assault, about 2:45 p. m.

Mrs. Leggett, who entered the building a few minutes later, said she heard a gurgling noise and discovered her husband on the floor behind the press.

She said that as she entered a young man who had been sitting in the editor's chair ran out the door and toward the river.

Sergeant N. L. Sidebottom of the State Police said he had arrested George Carter, 25, for questioning but filed no charges pending outcome of Leggett's injuries.

State Trooper C. C. Stewart, assisting in the investigation, said Carter had been drinking.

Questioned as to "why he did it," Stewart quoted Carter as saying:

"I just don't remember."

Stewart identified Carter as a laborer employed on a National Youth Administration project three miles from Grantsville.

Carter is being held without charge at the state police barracks in Grantsville.

Dr. Marshall De Pue of the De Pue hospital at Spencer said Leggett suffered a severe cut in the back of the neck, near the spinal cord, and stab wounds in the right cheek and above the eyes.

He described the editor's condition as "very critical." An operation was performed immediately after Leggett reached Spencer.

Sergeant Sidebottom said no motive had been established.

Leggett, who had been a resident of Grantsville, Calhoun county seat for about ten years, managed one of the papers in the weekly chain operated by Woodyard Publications, Inc., of Spencer.

Finding of Three Skeletons Points To Triple Murder

Richmond, W. Va., State Police Attempting To Solve Mystery

Richwood, W. Va., Feb. 28 (AP)—A thirty-man hunt through mountain brush and trees furnished little hope tonight to police trying to get a lead on a triple murder, apparently disclosed by discovery of a mouldy cardboard box filled with the partial skeletons of three persons.

State Trooper W. L. Pence, after disclosing the box had been found by a WPA workman near U. S. Highway 19 on Powell mountain near Birch river, said it obviously had been thrown from an automobile and may have rested in that isolated section as long as a month.

Both Pence and Nicholas county Sheriff F. C. Perkins of Summersville expressed the preliminary opinion that murders had been committed, but probably far from the spot where the bones were found.

Pence, Perkins and Sergeant B. F. McLaughlin of the state police led WPA workers in covering the drab and rugged countryside, a mile or so from the Braxton county line. They were to go out again in the morning.

Completely in Dark

"We are completely in the dark," Pence said, "and our efforts today produced nothing. We have no reports of missing persons from surrounding counties although we have not sent out a broadcast as yet."

The old box, gaping open after considerable exposure to snow and rain, contained only the bones of the lower part of the bodies of three persons, Pence said.

A Richwood physician expressed the opinion the flesh had been removed by acid and the bones burned, but it would take an expert to determine how long the bones had been separated from the flesh.

He said some of the bones were those of a man, apparently one who led an active life. There also was a part of a skeleton of a child, probably about nine or ten years old. The other partial skeleton was that of a person of "intermediate" age.

There were no skulls or arm bones.

Pence said the skeletons probably would be sent to the State Police Criminal Identification Bureau in Charleston.

The spot where the bones were found is about thirty-five miles from Richwood, in the heart of Central West Virginia. It is about ten miles from Sutton, Braxton county seat, and fifteen miles from Summersville, Nicholas county seat. U. S. Route 19 is a through highway but passes over a sparsely populated hill country. There were no houses within a half mile of the scene.

WPA Worker Finds Bones

Free Carpenter, a Birch river WPA worker, discovered the box of bones Saturday while with a group of men repairing a guard rail on Powell mountain. Pence said he was not notified until Monday night.

The trooper described the bones as "chopped and broken apart at the joints and very roughly handled."

"There is a possibility, of course, that they came from a medical college or a doctor's office," he added, "but the manner in which they were treated leads to the opinion that the persons were murdered."

Sheriff Perkins commented "that we are convinced these persons were slain," adding that "there is absolutely nothing to indicate that a crime was committed in the vicinity where the box was discovered."

Dr. E. J. Vanliere, head of the West Virginia University School of Medicine, said at Morgantown that all of the school's skeletons released in the last five years had been returned. He expressed the belief it was the general practice for medical schools to reclaim all skeletons sent out.

Buck was arrested at Phoenix, February 22 on a telegraphic warrant from Missoula, Mont.

Wrestler Tells of Film Cowboy Death

Los Angeles, Feb. 28 (AP)—"Yukon Jake" Jackson, a wrestler, has told in language all his own how one film cowboy shot another.

". . . Then I heard the glass fly and the gravel kick up and I knew it was a bullet that just went by my kisser," he told a coroner's jury.

"I says: This is no picture—This is real."

The coroner's jury decided it was real, too. It held that the death of Johnnie Tyke last Friday, was homicide and recommended that his fellow film cowboy, Jerome (Blackjack) Ward be held for trial.

Ward did not testify. He had told arresting officers that Tyke "just pestered me until I couldn't stand it no longer."

Yukon Jake, asked what he did for a living, replied, "I grapple."

Then he swung into his description of the shooting.

"Did you hear a shot and see Tyke hit?" interrupted a deputy coroner.

"Yes, I heard a shot and he did a little wobblin."

Yukon Jake followed the two men down an alley and saw them grapple.

The wrestler was asked if he knew the "the deceased."

Puzzled, he shook his head.

"I don't know nobody by that name," he said.

Planned Economy Hit by Taft

Baltimore, Feb. 27 (AP) — Senator Robert A. Taft, a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, tonight characterized theories of "planned economy, collective production, restricted output and price-fixing" as akin to "instruments which kept Europe poor" in the middle ages.

Speaking at a celebration marking the five hundredth anniversary of the birth of printing, Taft traced world development from the day of Johann Gutenberg, printing pioneer, to the U. S. depression of 1929.

After 1929, he said, "because confidence was at a low ebb, the ideology of new despotisms in Europe spread to this country and were embraced, consciously or unconsciously by many people."

"Some of these rose to influence in the government," he continued. "I don't think they realized how closely the ideas they promulgated resembled the idology which characterized society 500 years ago.

"We abandoned the time-honored methods with which we emerged from past depressions and embarked tentatively on the road to a static economy. That road is only, however, I am confident, a detour."

Time and the Tides Wait for No One

"Neither Do Sickness and Disease," Says the World's Tonic Man

You've often heard of ships waiting to sail on the tide but did you ever hear of the tide waiting for a ship to get ready? Sickness and disease are like that too. They do not wait until you get ready to give attention. They may get a partial start in the poisonous wastes of a clogged intestinal tract and these, if allowed to run their course unheeded, can develop to a stage where pain, misery and suffering might bring on despair and hopelessness that often finds relief only when the heart mercifully stops beating. Don't wait until these aches and pains start flashing their warning signals. Play safe by getting World's Tonic aid into your intestinal tract today. Constipation may be preparing to get busy. It's not easy to tell until the warning signals start, And at the first painful signal from this destroyer, and no matter what its symptoms may appear like, get that intestinal tract open and the bowels free. Mrs. Charles Bozier is a well known lady of 723 W. Church St., Hagerstown, Md. Read her story and then compare her symptoms with your own. Sail with the tide of satisfied users of World's Tonic. Remember, the tide may flow and leave you stranded high and dry on the island of despair if you wait too long.

"I feel that I owe my freedom to the help World's Tonic gave me in relieving my constipation and taking away all its distressing results. I've had rheumatic-like pains in my knees and joints so bad I could hardly work. Gas and pains in my stomach after meals would almost double me up like a jackknife. The small of my back ached so badly at times I could neither sit down or stand up. I lost my appetite and rolling and tossing in bed at night brought on a state of nervousness that had me worn to a thread. I haven't been to a picture show in two years because the crowds made me so jumpy.

"My husband has been taking World's Tonic and he insisted I try it. How thankful I am that he did. The first few bottles gave me such beautiful relief from my constipation and the things it brought on that I feel like a slave set free. The aches and pain are all going away and I'm eating so good that I'm gaining weight already. With both of us taking World's Tonic we are now buying half a dozen bottles at a time. We don't care to chance ever being without this splendid medicine."

Skillful blending of roots and herbs with valuable alkalines enables World's Tonic to help prevent premature aging which poisons accumulating from constipation may bring on.

Get World's Tonic at Ford, Keech, Lichtenstein, Peoples, Truitt and Cumberland Drug and all other reliable Drug Stores. (E 91)

Dewey Says New Deal Has Failing Report Card

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 27 (AP) — Thomas E. Dewey, a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, foresaw tonight a New Deal "woodshed" reckoning for a seven-year "failing" report card of "borrowing, spending, experimentation and falsification."

"Of course, anybody on the way to the wood-shed always has an alibi," the Manhattan prosecutor said in an address prepared for delivery before the Republican Association of rural counties. "The New Dealers' alibi is that this is a world depression.

"But only one of twenty other nations for which we have reliable figures up to last summer reports a smaller recovery than the United States. All but three of those foreign nations had surpassed 1929 levels. The New Deal not only didn't get a passing grade, it is at the foot of the class."

Dewey said President Roosevelt "apparently is waiting with the rest of the country for someone to tell him the answer to our unemployment problem."

Helena, Mont., Feb. 28 (AP)—Gov. Roy F. Ayers has refused to ask extradition of Gene Buck, president of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, from Arizona on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses.

Buck was arrested at Phoenix, February 22 on a telegraphic warrant from Missoula, Mont.

County Attorney Edward T. Dussalt of Missoula said the charges were based on Ascap notification to Montana radio stations and other enterprises that their licenses to play Ascap-owned music would be revoked unless demands for payments were met.

She is the former wife of Eddy Brandt, New York song writer, who in 1938 sued Marshall for $250,000 charging alienation of affections. Brandt later said the case had been settled out of court for $10,000, but Marshall denied any payment had been made.

Walton School Is Destroyed by Fire

Walton, W. Va., Feb. 28 (AP)—The fifteen-room brick and tile Walton high school building was destroyed by fire today, throwing 218 high school students out of classes and causing the closure of an adjacent elementary school.

County School Superintendent O. R. Karickhoff estimated the loss at $60,000.

Flames in the high school building were first seen by residents of Walton, fifteen miles from Spencer, about 3:30 a. m. and less than an hour later only walls of the structure remained.

The town has no water pressure system.

Karickhoff said the loss is partly covered by insurance. He said the cause of the fire was not determined.

The elementary school building 150 feet away was not damaged but the school, attended by 135 students, was closed because electric and water facilities were disrupted.

Wrestler Tells of Film Cowboy Death

Los Angeles, Feb. 28 (AP)—"Yukon Jake" Jackson, a wrestler, has told in language all his own how one film cowboy shot another.

". . . Then I heard the glass fly and the gravel kick up and I knew it was a bullet that just went by my kisser," he told a coroner's jury.

"I says: This is no picture—This is real."

The coroner's jury decided it was real, too. It held that the death of Johnnie Tyke last Friday, was homicide and recommended that his fellow film cowboy, Jerome (Blackjack) Ward be held for trial.

Ward did not testify. He had told arresting officers that Tyke "just pestered me until I couldn't stand it no longer."

Yukon Jake, asked what he did for a living, replied, "I grapple."

Then he swung into his description of the shooting.

"Did you hear a shot and see Tyke hit?" interrupted a deputy coroner.

"Yes, I heard a shot and he did a little wobblin."

Yukon Jake followed the two men down an alley and saw them grapple.

The wrestler was asked if he knew the "the deceased."

Puzzled, he shook his head.

"I don't know nobody by that name," he said.

Planned Economy Hit by Taft

Baltimore, Feb. 27 (AP)—Senator Robert A. Taft, a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, tonight characterized theories of "planned economy, collective production, restricted output and price-fixing" as akin to "instruments which kept Europe poor" in the middle ages.

Speaking at a celebration marking the five hundredth anniversary of the birth of printing, Taft traced world development from the day of Johann Gutenberg, printing pioneer, to the U. S. depression of 1929.

After 1929, he said, "because confidence was at a low ebb, the ideology of new despotisms in Europe spread to this country and were embraced, consciously or unconsciously by many people."

"Some of these rose to influence in the government," he continued. "I don't think they realized how closely the ideas they promulgated resembled the idology which characterized society 500 years ago.

"We abandoned the time-honored methods with which we emerged from past depressions and embarked tentatively on the road to a static economy. That road is only, however, I am confident, a detour."

Time and the Tides Wait for No One

"Neither Do Sickness and Disease," Says the World's Tonic Man

You've often heard of ships waiting to sail on the tide but did you ever hear of the tide waiting for a ship to get ready? Sickness and disease are like that too. They do not wait until you get ready to give attention. They may get a partial start in the poisonous wastes of a clogged intestinal tract and these, if allowed to run their course unheeded, can develop to a stage where pain, misery and suffering might bring on despair and hopelessness that often finds relief only when the heart mercifully stops beating. Don't wait until these aches and pains start flashing their warning signals. Play safe by getting World's Tonic aid into your intestinal tract today. Constipation may be preparing to get busy. It's not easy to tell until the warning signals start, And at the first painful signal from this destroyer, and no matter what its symptoms may appear like, get that intestinal tract open and the bowels free. Mrs. Charles Bozier is a well known lady of 723 W. Church St., Hagerstown, Md. Read her story and then compare her symptoms with your own. Sail with the tide of satisfied users of World's Tonic. Remember, the tide may flow and leave you stranded high and dry on the island of despair if you wait too long.

"I feel that I owe my freedom to the help World's Tonic gave me in relieving my constipation and taking away all its distressing results. I've had rheumatic-like pains in my knees and joints so bad I could hardly work. Gas and pains in my stomach after meals would almost double me up like a jackknife. The small of my back ached so badly at times I could neither sit down or stand up. I lost my appetite and rolling and tossing in bed at night brought on a state of nervousness that had me worn to a thread. I haven't been to a picture show in two years because the crowds made me so jumpy.

"My husband has been taking World's Tonic and he insisted I try it. How thankful I am that he did. The first few bottles gave me such beautiful relief from my constipation and the things it brought on that I feel like a slave set free. The aches and pain are all going away and I'm eating so good that I'm gaining weight already. With both of us taking World's Tonic we are now buying half a dozen bottles at a time. We don't care to chance ever being without this splendid medicine."

Skillful blending of roots and herbs with valuable alkalines enables World's Tonic to help prevent premature aging which poisons accumulating from constipation may bring on.

Get World's Tonic at Ford, Keech, Lichtenstein, Peoples, Truitt and Cumberland Drug and all other reliable Drug Stores. (E 91)

Dewey Says New Deal Has Failing Report Card

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 27 (AP) — Thomas E. Dewey, a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, foresaw tonight a New Deal "woodshed" reckoning for a seven-year "failing" report card of "borrowing, spending, experimentation and falsification."

"Of course, anybody on the way to the wood-shed always has an alibi," the Manhattan prosecutor said in an address prepared for delivery before the Republican Association of rural counties. "The New Dealers' alibi is that this is a world depression.

"But only one of twenty other nations for which we have reliable figures up to last summer reports a smaller recovery than the United States. All but three of those foreign nations had surpassed 1929 levels. The New Deal not only didn't get a passing grade, it is at the foot of the class."

Dewey said President Roosevelt "apparently is waiting with the rest of the country for someone to tell him the answer to our unemployment problem."

ETTA KETT — By ROBINSON

Post Lets Loose Campaign Blast At Mayor Irvine

Police Furloughs Made the Issue In First Address

Opening gun in the municipal campaign was fired last night by mayoral candidate Thomas S. Post, who charged that Mayor Harry Irvine "has failed to give the taxpayers what they have paid for," in an address before the South End Boosters Club.

Speaking at the club's headquarters on Virginia avenue, Post told applauding members that Mayor Irvine's "gross mismanagement" made it necessary to put the entire police department on part time, an act which he said constituted "a special invitation to the criminal element to come to Cumberland where they could run rampant with little fear of being arrested and brought to justice."

"Petty crimes have reached a new high in our once safe city," Mr. Post continued. "We are lucky that to date there have been no major crimes or catastrophes. Although each and every member of our police department is competent, their numbers during the present furlough which was forced on them through no fault of theirs have been so depleted that we are at the present time virtually unprotected. To secure protection of our life and our property is one of the prime reasons we pay taxes. Why have we not received a fair return for our money?"

Tolerance Group To Organize

Christians and Jews Join in Round-Table

Plans were under way today for organization here of a round-table of the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

Formal establishment of the organization is scheduled to be made at a meeting at 8 p. m. March 11 at the Cumberland Free Public Library, it was announced yesterday.

Leaders in the organization are Dr. Leslie E. Daugherty, Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce Jr. and Clarence Lippel.

The proposed round-table is an outgrowth of the annual goodwill dinner-meeting sponsored Monday night at the Fort Cumberland hotel by the Brotherhood of B'er Chayim congregation.

The speaker at the meeting, the Rev. Dr. Theodore E. Miller, pastor of the First Baptist church of Baltimore and executive secretary of the Baltimore round-table, conferred later with the Cumberland organizers and advised them on organizational procedure.

The new group will be governed by an executive committee consisting of ten Protestants, ten Jews and ten Catholics. Its membership will be open to all interested persons of any faith or creed.

The conference has for its principal objective the elimination of intolerance.

Chamber Committee To Discuss Recent Downtown Blazes

A conference relative to Cumberland's recent downtown fires will be held tomorrow at 4 p. m. by the fire prevention committee of the Chamber of Commerce, H. W. Smith, chamber secretary, said yesterday.

Commissioner Thomas F. Conlon, chairman of the fire prevention committee, will preside at the session. Fire Chief Reid C. Hoenicka and Harry A. Manley, police and fire commissioner, have been invited to attend.

Snow Melts Slowly, Rain or Snow Due

Thawing weather continued in Cumberland last night, with the temperature thirty-five degrees at midnight, according to the B. & O. dispatcher.

Skies remained overcast, and rain or snow was predicted for today.

Mrs. Ethel Whiteside, wife of Dr. J. D. Whiteside, of Aberdeen, S. D., died yesterday at her home after an illness of several months.

Mrs. Whiteside was a graduate of the old Western Maryland hospital here and served as lieutenant in the Army Nurses Corps during the World War. She was attended during her illness by a sister, Miss Mae Matlick, a registered nurse, of Cumberland. Burial will be at Aberdeen.

Surviving, besides her husband, are three daughters, Mary, Jane, and Ruth Ann, and one son, William, all at home; her father, C. L. Matlick, of Cumberland; five sisters, Miss Mae Matlick, Miss Eunice Matlick, Mrs. J. K. Moreland, and Mrs. William Sluss, all of Cumberland, and Mrs. L. B. Brown, of Hagerstown; and four brothers, J. I. Matlick, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Thomas A., H. R., and Robert C. Matlick, of Cumberland.

Waitresses Lose Clothes, Police Hunt Thief

Police today were looking for whoever stole a fur jacket, two coats, and a dress from the cloak room of Porter's restaurant sometime before midnight Tuesday.

The robbery was discovered by waitresses at the restaurant as they went off duty at midnight. It is said the room can be entered from the street without going through the restaurant. The clothing belonged to the waitresses.

Three Streams Can Be Fished For Trout Only

Attorney General Gives Ruling On Law's Intent

Two streams in Garrett county and one in Allegany county have been closed to all angling except for trout, State Game Warden E. Lee LeCompte has announced on the basis of a ruling by Attorney-General William C. Walsh.

The streams are Big Savage and Little Savage rivers and their tributaries in Garrett county and Evitts creek and its tributaries in Allegany county.

A legislative act, in the case of the Garrett county streams, and a regulation of the State Game and Inland Fish Commission, in the case of Evitts creek, prohibit the taking of fish in the streams except during the trout season, April 1 to June 30 of each year.

The question arose as to the taking of bass and other fish from these waters, and the commission, unable to interpret the law, asked the attorney-general for a ruling.

Trout only can be taken from the waters, and then only from April 1 to June 30, Walsh held, declaring it unlawful to catch bass or any other species of fish.

The opinion pointed out that the general law established the bass season from July 1 to Nov. 30, and "it seems clear, therefore, that even if the reference to trout were disregarded, it would be unlawful to take bass anywhere in the state except between July 1 and Nov. 30. And there is a closed season on all species of fish between those dates in the waters mentioned . . ."

Although the law is "somewhat ambiguous," the attorney-general continued, "I think the reference to the 'trout season' indicates a legislative intention to confine fishing in those waters to trout.

"If it had been the intention to permit the taking of fish othed than trout during the trout season, the reference to the 'trout season' would have been surplusage . . . and the section was obviously conceived as a restriction over and above the restrictions in the general law."

1,134 New Voters Here, Final Figures Show

Complete registration figures revealed yesterday that 1,134 persons became eligible to vote as the result of the city's two registration days, the last on Monday.

This figure failed to top the registration total of 1938 when 1,546 persons registered in the city.

Records in City Clerk S. E. Griminger's office showed yesterday that 793 persons registered this past Monday, compared to 341 on the first registration day, Feb. 19.

Precincts reporting yesterday, making the list complete, were: 2-1, 27; 3-1, 36; and 5-2, 60.

"Government Snooping" Opposed by Tobey

Washington, Feb. 28 (AP) —Senator Tobey (R-NH) sponsor of a resolution to eliminate personal income questions from the census, spent an hour and a half today reading to a Senate committee excerpts from a batch of 4,000 letters which he described as protests against "government snooping."

When impatient committeemen, who took no immediate action, inquired how long he planned to continue, Tobey replied that he had "heard government experts drool through hours of committee time without knowing what they were saying" and that he wanted "to put the people's views in the record."

William L. Austin, director of the census, contended there was "ample legal justification for the questions."

Edward W. Donahue, sales manager of the Washington branch of the General Outdoor Advertising Company, will be the speaker at the weekly luncheon-meeting of the Kiwanis club at the Fort Cumberland hotel today.

Motorist, Charged with Hit-Skip, Says He Didn't Know He Hit Man

James W. Stevenson, 41-year-old Celanese worker, is in Allegany hospital with a broken leg and Wilbur E. Thrasher, of 237 South Water street, is free under $1,000 bond as the alleged hit-run driver in an accident early yesterday morning.

Stevenson was allegedly struck by the Thrasher car as he stepped from his own car after stopping in front of his home at 724 Frederick street.

Thrasher, who said he did not know he had struck the man, returned to the scene after a taxi driver overtook him and informed him of the accident. Stevenson, however, had been taken to the hospital by a passing motorist, George Cunningham, of 102 Independence street.

The victim, suffering from a compound fracture of the right leg, was in "good" condition last night, hospital attendants said.

Thrasher was arrested on the hit-run charge by Lieut. James E. Van.

Police reported late last night that J. M. Lilley, of 220 Glenn street, was slightly injured on Henderson avenue when struck by a car which did not stop. The accident occurred about 11:30 p. m.

Chamber To Hear Rep. Joe Starnes

Dies Committeeman To Speak March 14

Interest in the annual spring dinner of the Chamber of Commerce March 14 was considerably quickened yesterday with the announcement by H. W. Smith, chamber secretary, that Congressman Joe Starnes, of Alabama, would be the principal speaker.

Congressman Starnes, colorful acting chairman of the Dies Committee, has been requested to speak on the subject, "Americanism," Smith revealed yesterday. The chamber secretary said the congressman should be well qualified to speak on such a topic due to his activities in investigating un-American activities in Washington.

Prospect yesterday was that the annual dinner would be unusually well-attended due to local interest in the work of the Dies Committee and the Congressman from Alabama.

Dies Committee Will Investigate Activities in West

Washington, Feb. 28 (AP)—The Dies committee, after a two-day secret session on policy and procedure, has announced that it soon would investigate what its chairman termed "Nazi and Communist activities on the West coast, including those of the motion picture industry."

A statement by Chairman Dies (D-Texas) said the committee also agreed to look into "alleged Communist activities in consumers' organizations" and "charges and information that Communist and Nazi agents from Mexico are carrying on their activities in the United States."

"Fortunate Fifty" To Have Fine Dinner

Baltimore, Feb. 28 (AP) —An ancient Maryland dinner bell will summon fifty fortunate diners tomorrow night to the kind of meal about which gourmets dream.

The "fortunate fifty" hold the only tickets to the annual dinner of Les Amis D'Escoffier, a society of the fond-of-food formed in honor of a famous old-time French chef, Escoffier.

"Just fifty—no more," he ruled.

A chef, he said, can't worry about great quantities of food if he's seeking the most delicate achievements in quality. There will be but fifty portions of the Terrapin and chicken Maryland and other dishes indigenous to the state.

Among other things which kept the "fortunate fifty" clinging to their sought-after tickets was the pronouncement that their discriminating appetites won't have to be covered by stiff shirts and black ties—any kind of clothes will do.

And there wont be any speeches, either.

Weller was formerly a superintendent of schools in Somerset county, a state representative and a member of the state agriculture board.

Alleged Looters Under Arrest

Police Bullets Hit Car as Men Flee

Three young men, arrested in Baltimore yesterday on charges of looting a railroad boxcar of $700 worth of cigarettes and tobacco at Keyser, W. Va., late Tuesday night, apparently tried the same stunt here earlier in the evening and fled in a burst of gunfire from B & O railroad police.

The three were identified by Baltimore authorities as Gilbert J. Stump, 23, of Lafayette avenue, Cumberland; John T. Smith, 24, of Baltimore; and Herbert Ruffenberg, 23, of Hagerstown.

Railroad police said last night they believed the captured trio is the same gang that fled when discovered looting cars on the B & O tracks along North George street at 8 p. m.

A check yesterday revealed that nothing was missing from the cars here, the would-be robbers leaving cigarettes and tobacco scattered through the cars and over the ground in their wild flight.

Making good their escape despite the firing of at least two shots into their car, the trio boldly proceeded to Keyser, where they hauled away a carload of the same loot they failed to get here. The Keyser job was pulled at about midnight, it was said.

The gang was picked up in Baltimore yesterday morning at 7 o'clock after the broadcast of an alarm. Their car was reportedly loaded with the merchandise stolen at Keyser, and had one bullet hole near the right rear door and a bullet mark on the trunk rack, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Baltimore.

The railroad authorities called in Federal Bureau of Investigation agents, since the robbery of goods interstate shipment is a federal offense.

The men will be arraigned today before the United States Commissioner in Baltimore to determine whether they shall be held for federal grand jury action. If ordered held, they will face action by the grand jury for the Northern West Virginia district, whose spring term opens April 16 at Wheeling.

Stork Blocks Traffic In Cincinnati Street

Cincinnati, Feb. 22 (AP)—The stork blocked traffic today but Ambulance Driver Roy Crawford "delivered," oblivious to squawking automobile horns and the jangle of street car bells.

Crawford was en route to General Hospital with Mrs. Virgie Lambert, 34, when, he reported, she called frantically to him from her cot.

Stopping the ambulance in the middle of a busy uptown intersection, Crawford began his ministrations and paused only to signal an attendant at a nearby filling station to "come here and drive us to the curb." Later Mrs. Lambert and nine-pound son continued the interrupted trip and tonight were reported by hospital attaches to be "doing nicely."

Mrs. Ralph Caldwell Is Held for Murder

Washington, Pa., Feb. 28 (AP)—Mrs. Ralph Caldwell, 26, who admitted killing her husband's slayer, was moved today from Washington hospital to the county jail where she was held on a technical charge of murder, without bail.

Mrs. Caldwell was wounded in both arms when she unsuccessfully tried to shield her husband from a shotgun blast fired by a dismissed farmhand, Glenn Plants, 28, just two weeks ago.

Mrs. Caldwell told police Plants forced her on threat of death to pull the trigger which fired a shot killing him.

Her arms still bandaged, the housewife will be held for the inquest of Coroner James B. Jones, taking place probably on Friday.

Leisurely Robbers Loot Ohio Bank

Cincinnati, Feb. 28 (AP)—Two leisurely robbers scooped up between $6,100 and $6,300 in the First National Bank of suburban Elmwood place today, forced two employes into an unlocked steel vault and fled in greater Cincinnati's first bank holdup in eight years.

While one robber held bank attaches at gunpoint, his companion entered the vault, dumped currency into a bag, then emptied a cash drawer located in the rear of the cages.

La Salle P-TA To Meet

The monthly meeting of the La Salle high school Parent-Teacher Association will be held at 8 o'clock tonight. The Rev. John H. Mountain, of St. Patrick's Catholic church will speak.

on High Roads Low Roads and By-Ways

A friend wants us to say that he has done more sliding on the uncleaned sidewalks of his West Side neighbors this winter than we have done on the ski slopes.

Yes, and just check the hospital records and you will see that many more people have been injured on Cumberland sidewalks than all the ski trails in Maryland.

But, of course, a lot more people walk than ski.

—o—

Before we pay any money to see "Gone with the Wind", we are going to try sitting in the same chair for three hours and fifty-five minutes just to see whether we can take it, or not.

Another friend who has been doing quite a bit of skiing lately says she is going to quit for a while—so she'll be in shape to sit through "G.w.t.W."

The Liberty, by the way, still has a sign out front announcing that "Castle on the Hudson" is "Now Playing". Oh, yeah.

—o—

The story of a railroad accident was one of the apt illustrations used Tuesday night by Dr. Vernon E. Nash to drive home the need for adoption of the plan for a world union.

There had been a terrific collision, he said, and authorities were investigating. One of the witnesses was a trackman who the authorities thought might have averted the crash.

"And what did you do when you saw those two speeding trains heading toward each other on the same track?" he was asked.

"Do?," he answered. "I didn't do anything. But I thought to myself, 'That's a helluva way to run a railroad.' "

Dr. Nash, a member of the executive committee of the Inter-Democracy Federal Unionists, said that was the attitude of too many people today on world affairs.

"We sit by and moan and groan about conditions and the way the world is being run, but we don't do anything about it," he declared. "And as long as that attitude persists, we're going to continue to have wrecks — much more serious wrecks than that railroad crash."

—o—

The other day, a News reporter telling about a car theft wrote: "Meanwhile, the owner of the car, a Celanese spinner, said goodnight to his girl on Maryland avenue and started to get into his car when he suddenly noticed it wasn't there."

This amused young Mr. F. G. Cowherd, Jr., who writes from the Mercersburg Academy: "What made the Celanese spinner suddenly notice his car wasn't there when he started to get in? Did you ever start to get in a car when it wasn't there? I'm sure that I never."

Quie so, young man, quite so. But maybe you never said goodnight to a girl on Maryland avenue, either.

To tell the truth, we never tried to get in a car that wasn't there—that is, not that we remembered about the next day. We have been hitchhiking on a number of occasions, however, when we tried to get into a good many cars that might as well not have been there.

We also climbed into a tubfull of hot water, only to find the hot water wasn't there. Upon which occasions, it is just as well the landlady wasn't there, too, for more reasons than one.

We have also started to eat a forkful of peas, only to find the peas weren't there.

We have also started to drink the last drop of that kind of coffee that's good to the last drop, only to find the last drop wasn't there. And in some restaurants we have drunk water that wasn't there half a dozen times before the waitress caught on and filled the glass again.

And haven't we all tried, time and again, to put our automobile in that parking space that wasn't there? Fishermen have told us, time and again, of pulling in the big fish that wasn't there.

And then there's the story of the man who told the judge he wasn't drunk, but only arguing with another man. He went to jail when the arresting officer told the judge that he was arguing all right—but with that little man who wasn't there.

We could go on and on telling about things that weren't there, except that we would be filling space that isn't there for readers who aren't reading.

We only wish we had a girl on Maryland avenue. We'd be willing to walk home.

60 Miners Killed In Blast, 100 Hurt

Arsa, Italy, Feb. 28 (AP) — Sixty miners were killed and 100 slightly injured today when an explosion shattered a gallery of the Arsa coal mines.

Several hundred miners were at work in the gallery several thousand feet underground when the gas explosion occurred.

The mines in this area of Istria province on the eastern shore of the Adriatic are the most productive in Italy.

Woman Wed at 18 Tells of Threats, Wins Divorce

Husband Chased Her With Knife Several Times, She Says

A 21-year-old wife who said that "things went from bad to worse" despite her efforts at reconciliation today had been granted a divorce from the man she married when a girl of 18.

She was Mrs. Phyllis I. Williams, of 222 Harrison street, a five-and-ten-cent store clerk, who won a partial divorce in Circuit court from Frank R. Williams, a truck driver.

She left her husband three or four times, Mrs. Williams said, but returned "thinking things might get better."

Instead, however, "things went from bad to worse," she told a court examiner.

The couple was wed Nov. 24, 1936, and lived together until June 10, 1939, according to the testimony.

Mrs. Williams, whose suit was uncontested by her husband, charged that he was "drunk almost continuously, stayed out most of the night," and refused to provide for her and their young son, born in July, 1938.

Accusing her husband of a "violent temper," she said he beat her, chased her out of the hous with a knife on several occasions, and threatened to kill her and the baby.

On the day of the final separation, Williams, while drunk, took the baby and said he was going to kill himself and the child, Mrs. Williams declared. The baby was later returned unharmed, however.

She had hoped that her husband would "reform," but "it was to no avail," she went on, saying that her nerves cracked and her health was affected.

Since she left him, Williams has continued to drink, the young wife said, and a month after the separation, came to her mother's house, where she was staying, "grabbed me by the hair and dragged me out in the street." She was rescued by her brother and a neighbor, she added.

The divorce decree, signed by Associate Judge William A. Huster, awarded Mrs. Williams custody of the child and ordered the defendant to pay the costs.

Mrs. Williams was represented by Attorney Edward J. Ryan, while Attorney Simon F. Reilly was counsel for the husband.

Meanwhile, Walter S. Rizer, of Wellersburg, Pa., filed suit for an absolute divorce from Mrs. Rachel May Rizer, of Cumberland, just a few days after their eleventh wedding anniversary. The couple was wed here Feb. 23, 1929, according to the bill of complaint, docketed by Attorney Urner G. Carl, and lived together until September, 1935, when Mrs. Rizer allegedly deserted her husband.

Utilities Concerns Must Simplify Structures

Washington, Feb. 28. (AP)—The Securities Commission ordered Electric Bond and Share Company and the Engineers Public Service Company today to start simplifying their corporate structures under the so-called "death sentence" clause of the utilities holding company act.

Electric Bond and Share, largest utility holding company in the nation, has assets of $2,600,000,000. Engineers Public Service Company, thirteenth ranking, is a $373,000,000 concern.

The companies were given until April 6 to reply. Public hearings were set tentatively for April 26.

In its order against Electric Bond and Share, the SEC said it appeared to it that the holding company system "was not confined in its operations to those of a single integrated public utility system within the meaning of the act.

The holding company act of 1935 called upon the SEC to begin as soon as practical after January 1, 1938, the simplification of the companies along geographical and corporate lines.

Congressman's Widow Returns $10,000 Check

Cleveland, Feb. 28 (AP)—A $10,000 check is in the mail addressed to the sergeant-at-arms of the House of Representatives—but with a request that he return it to the U. S. treasury for cancellation.

Mrs. Frances P. Bolton, who successfully contended for her late husband's seat in Congress, mailed the check which she received as a member's widow. It represents a year's salary for a representative.

"To accept this under the circumstances would be excessive," she wrote.

Government Payments Boost Farm Income

Washington, Feb. 28 (AP)—Supplemented by a record monthly outlay of government benefit payments, the January cash income of farmers totaled $733,000,000, exceeding that of the same month last year by $99,000,000.

The agriculture department reported today that benefit payments in January totaled $126,000,000, the largest for any month since the crop programs started in 1933.

The January income reflected the usual seasonal decline, falling $68,000,000 below December.

Pedestrian, 83, Hit by Auto

An eighty-three year old pedestrian was slightly injured yesterday afternoon when hit by a car on Park street about 1 o'clock.

Addison Robinette, of Bowman's Addition, was treated at Allegany hospital for lacerations and bruises of the back and right leg, after being hit by a car driven by Mrs. Daniel Robertson, also of Bowman's Addition.

Students To Give Spectacular Play

'The American Way' Is Allegany's Next

"The American Way," a spectacular patriotic production will be presented by Allegany high school early in April, it was announced yesterday.

Harold C. Wickard, director of dramatics, said that casting for the play, in which Frederic March starred in New York City, will begin Monday.

The pageant, written by George Kauffman and Moss Hart, has twenty-two scenes and calls for 140 speaking parts. Among its requirements are two bands, a company of soldiers and scores of extras.

The production has never been presented outside New York City, and neither has any amateur group undertaken it.

Two Denied Paroles By Director Moser

Annapolis, Feb. 28 (AP)—A Montgomery county bandit who almost severed his victim's head and a WPA worker responsible for a fatal Labor Day auto crash were denied paroles today.

Parole Director Hiram M. Moser said there was "nothing in the record" to indicate Edward Reed, the bandit, would ever return to society as a useful member.

Montgomery county officials had protested against his release, and Moser said his background was bad.

A jury convicted Reed of slashing John F. Kolar's throat in 1934 and dumping the unconscious man beside the road to die. Kolar's life was saved after doctors placed 160 stitches in his wound.

One of Reed's brothers is serving a ten-year term for armed robbery and another was hanged for murder-robbery in West Virginia. In that case the victim's body was burned.

Moser also said Nicholas Smith, Pennsylvania WPA worker, could not expect parole after getting drunk on public money, going an a holiday excursion, and finally causing a woman's death in a traffic crash. Smith was convicted of manslaughter in Harford county.

His pretty wife collapsed in the parole hearing room when he was denied release.

Wesley Baker, Talbot county negro who was convicted of assault for attacking his girl with a mixing spoon, was the only convict to win a parole recommendation. He was serving three years.

Mayor Jackson Puts On a Tumbling Act

Baltimore, Feb. 28 (AP)—Mayor Howard W. Jackson put on an unscheduled but none-the-less spectacular tumbling act today before the luncheon meeting of the Baltimore Advertising Club.

Chair and all, the mayor fell backward off the speaker's platform.

Shaken but otherwise unhurt, he hopped up and regained his place at the able.

He had completed his speech and had shoved back his chair to sit down, not realizing how narrow the platform was.

Hearing Ordered on Rouzerville Water Case

The Rouzerville, Pa., firm supplies water to between forty and fifty residences of Pen Mar Park, in Washington county just across the Pennsylvania line.

If it is required to continue the service, it proposes increasing the rates from $18 to $25 per season for water supplied to a residence of one family with one spigot. The season would extend from May 1 to Oct. 15, the company told the commission.

Celanese Union Backs Roosevelt For Third Term

Textile Workers Hear National Officials, Install New Officers

Unswerving faith in President Roosevelt was evinced last night at Textile Workers Hall where members of Local 1874 heard addresses by two national officers and installed their new slate of officers.

The statement by William Pollock, general secretary-treasurer of the Textile Workers Union of America, that the national union stood behind the President 100 per cent for a third term resulted in crashing applause from the large union audience.

CIO Weathers Attacks

"We are just emerging from one of the most savage reactionary propaganda campaigns against the CIO in history," Pollock declared, "and we have not only remained firm, but our dues collection are now at an all-time high."

Commenting on the establishment of the new Celanese plant at Pearisburg, Pollock stated that "you may rest assured we will organize this plant when the time is ripe.

"As you well know, any unorganized group in the industry constitutes a constant threat to the organized workers."

Congratulates Local Union

The speaker congratulated the local union on its progress since it was first organized, declared that its advance had been rapid and successful.

Pollock read the oath of office to the new officers including James A. Dundon, who last night started his third term as president of the largest CIO unit in the rayon industry and one of the largest labor organizations in the United States.

Other leading officials installed last night were Clyde D. Lucas, business manager and secretary-treasurer, for the fourth consecutive time; Earl J. Luther, vice-president; and George A. Meyers Jr., recording secretary.

Payne Also Speaks

Herbert W. Payne, director of the rayon division of the union, was another leading union official who was on hand for last night's ceremony and who congratulated the Cumberland unit on its successes and choice of leaders.

A question from the floor concerning John L. Lewis's recent Columbus statement attacking President Roosevelt was answered by Pollock with the statement that the textile union unanimously endorsed the President for a third term. The answer caused a demonstration on the part of the audience, which applauded enthusiastically.

Work for Fuel Plan Succeeds in Frederick

Frederick, Md., Feb. 28. (AP) — Frederick's work-for-fuel program kept nearly 100 needy city residents at work more than fifty-eight days this winter, records in Mayor Lloyd C. Culler's office showed today.

Coal and wood was supplied by the city to 130 additional families unable to work for their shares.

Approximately 150 tons of coal and 125 cords of wood have been "paid" workers under the program to date since the plan was put into operation late in November. It was proposed by Mayor Culler.

Under the program, persons seeking fuel apply to the mayor's office, are investigated and, if accepted sent to the East All Saints street quarry where they break stone for use on city streets.

Men must work nine hours for 900 pounds of coal worth about $2.70 and four and a half hours for one-quarter of a cord of wood worth about $1.50. The city forwards the fuel direct to the worker's home.

During inclement weather, particularly snow-storms, Street Supt. John T. Best uses the work-for-fuel gang in clearing streets.

Records showed some of the men had returned to the program as many as six times.

Gun Club Gets $7,000 For Woodland Tract

Elkton, Md., Feb. 28 (AP) — A Cecil county Circuit Court jury awarded the Elk Neck rod and gun club of Philadelphia $7,000 today for a 126-acre woodland tract sought by the state forestry department in a condemnation suit.

The action was the first of its kind ever brought by the forestry department.

Located between property already owned by the state, the Elk Neck property was required, the department said, in connection with plans for a recreational area. It adjoined 1500 acres of farm land bequeathed to Maryland by the late Dr. William Henry of Philadelphia who stipulated his property should become a park.

The department offered the club $5,600 and the club demanded $17,000. During the last two years a CCC camp on the Henry tract completed a number of improvements in the area.

Post Lets Loose Campaign Blast At Mayor Irvine

Police Furloughs Made the Issue In First Address

Opening gun in the municipal campaign was fired last night by mayoral candidate Thomas S. Post, who charged that Mayor Harry Irvine "has failed to give the taxpayers what they have paid for," in an address before the South End Boosters Club.

Speaking at the club's headquarters on Virginia avenue, Post told applauding members that Mayor Irvine's "gross mismanagement" made it necessary to put the entire police department on part time, an act which he said constituted "a special invitation to the criminal element to come to Cumberland where they could run rampant with little fear of being arrested and brought to justice."

"Petty crimes have reached a new high in our once safe city," Mr. Post continued. "We are lucky that to date there have been no major crimes or catastrophes. Although each and every member of our police department is competent, their numbers during the present furlough which was forced on them through no fault of theirs have been so depleted that we are at the present time virtually unprotected. To secure protection of our life and our property is one of the prime reasons we pay taxes. Why have we not received a fair return for our money?"

Three Streams Can Be Fished For Trout Only

Attorney General Gives Ruling On Law's Intent

Two streams in Garrett county and one in Allegany county have been closed to all angling except for trout, State Game Warden E. Lee LeCompte has announced on the basis of a ruling by Attorney-General William C. Walsh.

The streams are Big Savage and Little Savage rivers and their tributaries in Garrett county and Evitts creek and its tributaries in Allegany county.

A legislative act, in the case of the Garrett county streams, and a regulation of the State Game and Inland Fish Commission, in the case of Evitts creek, prohibit the taking of fish in the streams except during the trout season, April 1 to June 30 of each year.

The question arose as to the taking of bass and other fish from these waters, and the commission, unable to interpret the law, asked the attorney-general for a ruling.

Trout only can be taken from the waters, and then only from April 1 to June 30, Walsh held, declaring it unlawful to catch bass or any other species of fish.

The opinion pointed out that the general law established the bass season from July 1 to Nov. 30, and "it seems clear, therefore, that even if the reference to trout were disregarded, it would be unlawful to take bass anywhere in the state except between July 1 and Nov. 30. And there is a closed season on all species of fish between those dates in the waters mentioned . . ."

Although the law is "somewhat ambiguous," the attorney-general continued, "I think the reference to the 'trout season' indicates a legislative intention to confine fishing in those waters to trout.

"If it had been the intention to permit the taking of fish othed than trout during the trout season, the reference to the 'trout season' would have been surplusage . . . and the section was obviously conceived as a restriction over and above the restrictions in the general law."

"Government Snooping" Opposed by Tobey

Washington, Feb. 28 (AP) —Senator Tobey (R-NH) sponsor of a resolution to eliminate personal income questions from the census, spent an hour and a half today reading to a Senate committee excerpts from a batch of 4,000 letters which he described as protests against "government snooping."

When impatient committeemen, who took no immediate action, inquired how long he planned to continue, Tobey replied that he had "heard government experts drool through hours of committee time without knowing what they were saying" and that he wanted "to put the people's views in the record."

William L. Austin, director of the census, contended there was "ample legal justification for the questions."

Motorist, Charged with Hit-Skip, Says He Didn't Know He Hit Man

James W. Stevenson, 41-year-old Celanese worker, is in Allegany hospital with a broken leg and Wilbur E. Thrasher, of 237 South Water street, is free under $1,000 bond as the alleged hit-run driver in an accident early yesterday morning.

Stevenson was allegedly struck by the Thrasher car as he stepped from his own car after stopping in front of his home at 724 Frederick street.

Thrasher, who said he did not know he had struck the man, returned to the scene after a taxi driver overtook him and informed him of the accident. Stevenson, however, had been taken to the hospital by a passing motorist, George Cunningham, of 102 Independence street.

The victim, suffering from a compound fracture of the right leg, was in "good" condition last night, hospital attendants said.

Thrasher was arrested on the hit-run charge by Lieut. James E. Van.

Police reported late last night that J. M. Lilley, of 220 Glenn street, was slightly injured on Henderson avenue when struck by a car which did not stop. The accident occurred about 11:30 p. m.

Chamber To Hear Rep. Joe Starnes

Dies Committeeman To Speak March 14

Interest in the annual spring dinner of the Chamber of Commerce March 14 was considerably quickened yesterday with the announcement by H. W. Smith, chamber secretary, that Congressman Joe Starnes, of Alabama, would be the principal speaker.

Congressman Starnes, colorful acting chairman of the Dies Committee, has been requested to speak on the subject, "Americanism," Smith revealed yesterday. The chamber secretary said the congressman should be well qualified to speak on such a topic due to his activities in investigating un-American activities in Washington.

Prospect yesterday was that the annual dinner would be unusually well-attended due to local interest in the work of the Dies Committee and the Congressman from Alabama.

Dies Committee Will Investigate Activities in West

"Fortunate Fifty" To Have Fine Dinner

Baltimore, Feb. 28 (AP) —An ancient Maryland dinner bell will summon fifty fortunate diners tomorrow night to the kind of meal about which gourmets dream.

The "fortunate fifty" hold the only tickets to the annual dinner of Les Amis D'Escoffier, a society of the fond-of-food formed in honor of a famous old-time French chef, Escoffier.

Chef John Pietrelli of Baltimore's Belvedere hotel drew on his twenty year's experience to determine limits on the number of diners.

"Just fifty—no more," he ruled.

A chef, he said, can't worry about great quantities of food if he's seeking the most delicate achievements in quality. There will be but fifty portions of the Terrapin and chicken Maryland and other dishes indigenous to the state.

Among other things which kept the "fortunate fifty" clinging to their sought-after tickets was the pronouncement that their discriminating appetites won't have to be covered by stiff shirts and black ties—any kind of clothes will do.

And there wont be any speeches, either.

Police Bullets Hit Car as Men Flee

Three young men, arrested in Baltimore yesterday on charges of looting a railroad boxcar of $700 worth of cigarettes and tobacco at Keyser, W. Va., late Tuesday night, apparently tried the same stunt here earlier in the evening and fled in a burst of gunfire from B & O railroad police.

The three were identified by Baltimore authorities as Gilbert J. Stump, 23, of Lafayette avenue, Cumberland; John T. Smith, 24, of Baltimore; and Herbert Ruffenberg, 23, of Hagerstown.

Railroad police said last night they believed the captured trio is the same gang that fled when discovered looting cars on the B & O tracks along North George street at 8 p. m.

A check yesterday revealed that nothing was missing from the cars here, the would-be robbers leaving cigarettes and tobacco scattered through the cars and over the ground in their wild flight.

Making good their escape despite the firing of at least two shots into their car, the trio boldly proceeded to Keyser, where they hauled away a carload of the same loot they failed to get here. The Keyser job was pulled at about midnight, it was said.

The gang was picked up in Baltimore yesterday morning at 7 o'clock after the broadcast of an alarm. Their car was reportedly loaded with the merchandise stolen at Keyser, and had one bullet hole near the right rear door and a bullet mark on the trunk rack, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Baltimore.

The railroad authorities called in Federal Bureau of Investigation agents, since the robbery of goods interstate shipment is a federal offense.

The men will be arraigned today before the United States Commissioner in Baltimore to determine whether they shall be held for federal grand jury action. If ordered held, they will face action by the grand jury for the Northern West Virginia district, whose spring term opens April 16 at Wheeling.

Stork Blocks Traffic In Cincinnati Street

Cincinnati, Feb. 22 (AP)—The stork blocked traffic today but Ambulance Driver Roy Crawford "delivered," oblivious to squawking automobile horns and the jangle of street car bells.

Crawford was en route to General Hospital with Mrs. Virgie Lambert, 34, when, he reported, she called frantically to him from her cot.

Stopping the ambulance in the middle of a busy uptown intersection, Crawford began his ministrations and paused only to signal an attendant at a nearby filling station to "come here and drive us to the curb." Later Mrs. Lambert and nine-pound son continued the interrupted trip and tonight were reported by hospital attaches to be "doing nicely."

Washington, Pa., Feb. 28 (AP)—Mrs. Ralph Caldwell, 26, who admitted killing her husband's slayer, was moved today from Washington hospital to the county jail where she was held on a technical charge of murder, without bail.

Mrs. Caldwell was wounded in both arms when she unsuccessfully tried to shield her husband from a shotgun blast fired by a dismissed farmhand, Glenn Plants, 28, just two weeks ago.

Mrs. Caldwell told police Plants forced her on threat of death to pull the trigger which fired a shot killing him.

Her arms still bandaged, the housewife will be held for the inquest of Coroner James B. Jones, taking place probably on Friday.

The monthly meeting of the La Salle high school Parent-Teacher Association will be held at 8 o'clock tonight. The Rev. John H. Mountain, of St. Patrick's Catholic church will speak.

on High Roads Low Roads and By-Ways

A friend wants us to say that he has done more sliding on the uncleaned sidewalks of his West Side neighbors this winter than we have done on the ski slopes.

Yes, and just check the hospital records and you will see that many more people have been injured on Cumberland sidewalks than all the ski trails in Maryland.

But, of course, a lot more people walk than ski.

—o—

Before we pay any money to see "Gone with the Wind", we are going to try sitting in the same chair for three hours and fifty-five minutes just to see whether we can take it, or not.

Another friend who has been doing quite a bit of skiing lately says she is going to quit for a while—so she'll be in shape to sit through "G.w.t.W."

The Liberty, by the way, still has a sign out front announcing that "Castle on the Hudson" is "Now Playing". Oh, yeah.

—o—

The story of a railroad accident was one of the apt illustrations used Tuesday night by Dr. Vernon E. Nash to drive home the need for adoption of the plan for a world union.

There had been a terrific collision, he said, and authorities were investigating. One of the witnesses was a trackman who the authorities thought might have averted the crash.

"And what did you do when you saw those two speeding trains heading toward each other on the same track?" he was asked.

"Do?," he answered. "I didn't do anything. But I thought to myself, 'That's a helluva way to run a railroad.' "

Dr. Nash, a member of the executive committee of the Inter-Democracy Federal Unionists, said that was the attitude of too many people today on world affairs.

"We sit by and moan and groan about conditions and the way the world is being run, but we don't do anything about it," he declared. "And as long as that attitude persists, we're going to continue to have wrecks — much more serious wrecks than that railroad crash."

—o—

The other day, a News reporter telling about a car theft wrote: "Meanwhile, the owner of the car, a Celanese spinner, said goodnight to his girl on Maryland avenue and started to get into his car when he suddenly noticed it wasn't there."

This amused young Mr. F. G. Cowherd, Jr., who writes from the Mercersburg Academy: "What made the Celanese spinner suddenly notice his car wasn't there when he started to get in? Did you ever start to get in a car when it wasn't there? I'm sure that I never."

Quie so, young man, quite so. But maybe you never said goodnight to a girl on Maryland avenue, either.

To tell the truth, we never tried to get in a car that wasn't there—that is, not that we remembered about the next day. We have been hitchhiking on a number of occasions, however, when we tried to get into a good many cars that might as well not have been there.

We also climbed into a tubfull of hot water, only to find the hot water wasn't there. Upon which occasions, it is just as well the landlady wasn't there, too, for more reasons than one.

We have also started to eat a forkful of peas, only to find the peas weren't there.

We have also started to drink the last drop of that kind of coffee that's good to the last drop, only to find the last drop wasn't there. And in some restaurants we have drunk water that wasn't there half a dozen times before the waitress caught on and filled the glass again.

And haven't we all tried, time and again, to put our automobile in that parking space that wasn't there? Fishermen have told us, time and again, of pulling in the big fish that wasn't there.

And then there's the story of the man who told the judge he wasn't drunk, but only arguing with another man. He went to jail when the arresting officer told the judge that he was arguing all right—but with that little man who wasn't there.

We could go on and on telling about things that weren't there, except that we would be filling space that isn't there for readers who aren't reading.

We only wish we had a girl on Maryland avenue. We'd be willing to walk home.

Woman Wed at 18 Tells of Threats, Wins Divorce

Husband Chased Her With Knife Several Times, She Says

A 21-year-old wife who said that "things went from bad to worse" despite her efforts at reconciliation today had been granted a divorce from the man she married when a girl of 18.

She was Mrs. Phyllis I. Williams, of 222 Harrison street, a five-and-ten-cent store clerk, who won a partial divorce in Circuit court from Frank R. Williams, a truck driver.

She left her husband three or four times, Mrs. Williams said, but returned "thinking things might get better."

Instead, however, "things went from bad to worse," she told a court examiner.

The couple was wed Nov. 24, 1936, and lived together until June 10, 1939, according to the testimony.

Mrs. Williams, whose suit was uncontested by her husband, charged that he was "drunk almost continuously, stayed out most of the night," and refused to provide for her and their young son, born in July, 1938.

Accusing her husband of a "violent temper," she said he beat her, chased her out of the hous with a knife on several occasions, and threatened to kill her and the baby.

On the day of the final separation, Williams, while drunk, took the baby and said he was going to kill himself and the child, Mrs. Williams declared. The baby was later returned unharmed, however.

She had hoped that her husband would "reform," but "it was to no avail," she went on, saying that her nerves cracked and her health was affected.

Since she left him, Williams has continued to drink, the young wife said, and a month after the separation, came to her mother's house, where she was staying, "grabbed me by the hair and dragged me out in the street." She was rescued by her brother and a neighbor, she added.

The divorce decree, signed by Associate Judge William A. Huster, awarded Mrs. Williams custody of the child and ordered the defendant to pay the costs.

Mrs. Williams was represented by Attorney Edward J. Ryan, while Attorney Simon F. Reilly was counsel for the husband.

Meanwhile, Walter S. Rizer, of Wellersburg, Pa., filed suit for an absolute divorce from Mrs. Rachel May Rizer, of Cumberland, just a few days after their eleventh wedding anniversary. The couple was wed here Feb. 23, 1929, according to the bill of complaint, docketed by Attorney Urner G. Carl, and lived together until September, 1935, when Mrs. Rizer allegedly deserted her husband.

Utilities Concerns Must Simplify Structures

Washington, Feb. 28. (AP)—The Securities Commission ordered Electric Bond and Share Company and the Engineers Public Service Company today to start simplifying their corporate structures under the so-called "death sentence" clause of the utilities holding company act.

Electric Bond and Share, largest utility holding company in the nation, has assets of $2,600,000,000. Engineers Public Service Company, thirteenth ranking, is a $373,000,000 concern.

The companies were given until April 6 to reply. Public hearings were set tentatively for April 26.

In its order against Electric Bond and Share, the SEC said it appeared to it that the holding company system "was not confined in its operations to those of a single integrated public utility system within the meaning of the act.

The holding company act of 1935 called upon the SEC to begin as soon as practical after January 1, 1938, the simplification of the companies along geographical and corporate lines.

Congressman's Widow Returns $10,000 Check

Cleveland, Feb. 28 (AP)—A $10,000 check is in the mail addressed to the sergeant-at-arms of the House of Representatives—but with a request that he return it to the U. S. treasury for cancellation.

Mrs. Frances P. Bolton, who successfully contended for her late husband's seat in Congress, mailed the check which she received as a member's widow. It represents a year's salary for a representative.

"To accept this under the circumstances would be excessive," she wrote.

Washington, Feb. 28 (AP)—Supplemented by a record monthly outlay of government benefit payments, the January cash income of farmers totaled $733,000,000, exceeding that of the same month last year by $99,000,000.

The agriculture department reported today that benefit payments in January totaled $126,000,000, the largest for any month since the crop programs started in 1933.

The January income reflected the usual seasonal decline, falling $68,000,000 below December.

Harold C. Wickard, director of dramatics, said that casting for the play, in which Frederic March starred in New York City, will begin Monday.

The pageant, written by George Kauffman and Moss Hart, has twenty-two scenes and calls for 140 speaking parts. Among its requirements are two bands, a company of soldiers and scores of extras.

The production has never been presented outside New York City, and neither has any amateur group undertaken it.

Two Denied Paroles By Director Moser

Annapolis, Feb. 28 (AP)—A Montgomery county bandit who almost severed his victim's head and a WPA worker responsible for a fatal Labor Day auto crash were denied paroles today.

Parole Director Hiram M. Moser said there was "nothing in the record" to indicate Edward Reed, the bandit, would ever return to society as a useful member.

Montgomery county officials had protested against his release, and Moser said his background was bad.

A jury convicted Reed of slashing John F. Kolar's throat in 1934 and dumping the unconscious man beside the road to die. Kolar's life was saved after doctors placed 160 stitches in his wound.

One of Reed's brothers is serving a ten-year term for armed robbery and another was hanged for murder-robbery in West Virginia. In that case the victim's body was burned.

Moser also said Nicholas Smith, Pennsylvania WPA worker, could not expect parole after getting drunk on public money, going an a holiday excursion, and finally causing a woman's death in a traffic crash. Smith was convicted of manslaughter in Harford county.

His pretty wife collapsed in the parole hearing room when he was denied release.

Wesley Baker, Talbot county negro who was convicted of assault for attacking his girl with a mixing spoon, was the only convict to win a parole recommendation. He was serving three years.

Mayor Jackson Puts On a Tumbling Act

Baltimore, Feb. 28 (AP)—Mayor Howard W. Jackson put on an unscheduled but none-the-less spectacular tumbling act today before the luncheon meeting of the Baltimore Advertising Club.

Chair and all, the mayor fell backward off the speaker's platform.

Shaken but otherwise unhurt, he hopped up and regained his place at the able.

He had completed his speech and had shoved back his chair to sit down, not realizing how narrow the platform was.

Hearing Ordered on Rouzerville Water Case

Baltimore, Feb. 28 (AP)—The Public Service Commission today ordered a hearing March 20 on an application of the Rouzerville Water Company for authority to discontinue supplying water to its Maryland customers, or to increase its rates to them.

The Rouzerville, Pa., firm supplies water to between forty and fifty residences of Pen Mar Park, in Washington county just across the Pennsylvania line.

Celanese Union Backs Roosevelt For Third Term

Textile Workers Hear National Officials, Install New Officers

Unswerving faith in President Roosevelt was evinced last night at Textile Workers Hall where members of Local 1874 heard addresses by two national officers and installed their new slate of officers.

The statement by William Pollock, general secretary-treasurer of the Textile Workers Union of America, that the national union stood behind the President 100 per cent for a third term resulted in crashing applause from the large union audience.

CIO Weathers Attacks

"We are just emerging from one of the most savage reactionary propaganda campaigns against the CIO in history," Pollock declared, "and we have not only remained firm, but our dues collection are now at an all-time high."

Commenting on the establishment of the new Celanese plant at Pearisburg, Pollock stated that "you may rest assured we will organize this plant when the time is ripe.

"As you well know, any unorganized group in the industry constitutes a constant threat to the organized workers."

Congratulates Local Union

The speaker congratulated the local union on its progress since it was first organized, declared that its advance had been rapid and successful.

Pollock read the oath of office to the new officers including James A. Dundon, who last night started his third term as president of the largest CIO unit in the rayon industry and one of the largest labor organizations in the United States.

Other leading officials installed last night were Clyde D. Lucas, business manager and secretary-treasurer, for the fourth consecutive time; Earl J. Luther, vice-president; and George A. Meyers Jr., recording secretary.

Payne Also Speaks

Herbert W. Payne, director of the rayon division of the union, was another leading union official who was on hand for last night's ceremony and who congratulated the Cumberland unit on its successes and choice of leaders.

A question from the floor concerning John L. Lewis's recent Columbus statement attacking President Roosevelt was answered by Pollock with the statement that the textile union unanimously endorsed the President for a third term. The answer caused a demonstration on the part of the audience, which applauded enthusiastically.

Work for Fuel Plan Succeeds in Frederick

Frederick, Md., Feb. 28. (AP) — Frederick's work-for-fuel program kept nearly 100 needy city residents at work more than fifty-eight days this winter, records in Mayor Lloyd C. Culler's offiee showed today.

Coal and wood was supplied by the city to 130 additional families unable to work for their shares.

Approximately 150 tons of coal and 125 cords of wood have been "paid" workers under the program to date since the plan was put into operation late in November. It was proposed by Mayor Culler.

Under the program, persons seeking fuel apply to the mayor's office, are investigated and, if accepted, sent to the East All Saints street quarry where they break stone for use on city streets.

Men must work nine hours for 900 pounds of coal worth about $2.70 and four and a half hours for one-quarter of a cord of wood worth about $1.50. The city forwards the fuel direct to the worker's home.

Durjng inclement weather, particularly snow-storms, Street Supt. John T. Best uses the work-for-fuel gang in clearing streets.

Records showed some of the men had returned to the program as many as six times.

Gun Club Gets $7,000 For Woodland Tract

Elkton, Md., Feb. 28 (AP) — A Cecil county Circuit Court jury awarded the Elk Neck rod and gun club of Philadelphia $7,000 today for a 126-acre woodland tract sought by the state forestry department in a condemnation suit.

The action was the first of its kind ever brought by the forestry department.

Located between property already owned by the state, the Elk Neck property was required, the department said, in connection with plans for a recreational area. It adjoined 1500 acres of farm land bequeathed to Maryland by the late Dr. William Henry of Philadelphia who stipulated his property should become a park.

The department offered the club $5,600 and the club demanded $17,000. During the last two years a CCC camp on the Henry tract completed a number of improvements in the area.
